CONGRESS ENDS NEARLY ALL OF MAIN BUSINESS

SENATE WINS POINT ON ANNAPOLIS CLASS

(Associated Press.)

Congress virtually completed its major business yesterday with the final adoption of the naval appropriation bill and enactment of the veterans' loan measure.

President Hoover intervened to break a last-minute deadlock between the Senate and House conferees on the $358,000,000 naval bill, the last of the regular annual supply proposals requiring passage to make an extra session unnecessary.

Within a few hours after Mr. Hoover had called the disputing congressional leaders to the breakfast table, the week-old dispute over the Navy bill was laid aside and the House and Senate both disapproved the conference report on the legislation.

Extra Session Threat.

The President called the Republican leaders to the White House after Senator Watson, of Indiana, had sought to break the deadlock and had expressed fear of an extra session threat in the dispute. Mr. Hoover, after hearing the arguments, sided with Watson and the Senate forces and the agreement was quickly reached.

The controversy revolved chiefly around a Senate provision, which was retained, giving preference to Government navy yards in building and repairing vessels. The bill carries, among other things, $10,000,000 for eleven new destroyers.

The Senate won another provision, that the entire 1931 graduating class at Annapolis be commissioned regardless of whether this exceeds the authorized officer strength, but receded from its amendment giving senators and representatives four annual appointments to the academy. The House provision for three appointments was retained.

House Wins Point.

The House also won its point to give naval reserve pilots trained at Pensacola, Fla., two years' schooling with the fleet instead of one as provided by the Senate.

Elimination of an amendment to insure maintenance in Government yards of existing wage scales among the first three classes brought a criticism from Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, author of the amendment.

He said the administration had pledged that wage scales would be maintained, and although the wages had not been reduced the general level was being curtailed through the placing of newly hired men in the lower classes to fill vacancies in the upper classes.

Shoals Bill In Doubt.

With the Navy bill out of the way, the only major measure remaining was the $100,000,000 second deficiency bill. It is now in conference.

The Muscle Shoals Government operation bill, passage of which climaxed a 12-year controversy in Congress, still was at the White House

Capone Is Sentenced To Six Months' Term

Chicago's Gangster Chief, Tried First Time in Home City, Convicted for Contempt; Tony Volpe, His Bodyguard, Ordered Deported.

Chicago, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Alphonse Capone, the scarfaced "big fellow" of Chicago gangs, was adjudged in contempt of Federal court today and sentenced to six months imprisonment in Cook County Jail.

It was a double blow for the gang chieftain for during the closing hours of the hearing he was told that Tony "Mopes" Volpe, his reputed chief lieutenant, had been ordered deported to Italy by the United States Department of Labor.

The genial smile faded from the lips of the heavy, swarthy gangster as he heard United States District Judge James H. Wilkerson rebuke his falsification in an affidavit that had pleaded illness as excuse for his dilatory return from Florida to face a grand jury two years ago.

It was the first sentence passed upon Capone in Chicago.

The Government had won its first engagement with the reputed master of the underworld that thrives on the big business of vice, gambling, bootlegging.

That Capone did appear, belatedly, before the grand jury in 1929 was held immaterial. Judge Wilkerson ruled that his intention was to deceive the court and suppress the true facts. He cited the Government's evidence in immigration records of an airplane trip to the Bahama Islands February 2, 1929, when his physician's affidavit stated he was "confined in bed."

Shocked by the suddenness of the verdict, the burly gang chief paused in his gum-chewing, rose to his feet and, surrounded by a battalion of detectives, shouldered his way out of the courtroom.

"We'll get another court to overrule this court," he commented.

Then his ensemble of brown—the third suit in three days of court—disappeared in the corridor and he was rushed in a squad car to the daily rendezvous with his bodyguard.

Capone is at liberty under $5,000 bond, and the commitment to jail was stayed until 30 days from next Monday to permit his attorneys to appeal. Another $50,000 property bond allows him liberty pending trial on a vagrancy warrant issued by Judge

SENATE SEEKS CAUSE HALTING DROUGHT LOAN

Hyde Is Asked to Explain Reason $20,000,000 Is Not Available.

FUNDS ANTICIPATED DURING NEXT WEEK

Department of Agriculture Moves to Use Half for Credit Corporations.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday called upon Secretary Hyde to "explain immediately" why the supplementary $20,000,000 drought relief fund had not been made available.

Even as it did so, the Department of Agriculture moved to use half of the appropriation as a reserve to assist the formation and extension of agricultural credit corporations.

Applications for such loans from the $10,000,000 thus set aside will be received by the seed loan office of the department early next week and actual loans probably will be made by the end of the week.

The Senate's demand was made in a resolution by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas. It requested him to "inform the Senate immediately why the $20,000,000 has not been made available for drought loans and when he proposes "to act in this matter."

Attaches Decline to Talk.

Mr. Hyde was in Cincinnati yesterday to address the Commonwealth and Commercial Clubs, and in his absence attaches of his offices declined to comment on the Senate's action.

Regulations under which the $10,000,000 fund for agricultural credit corporations will be administered require that such organizations have at least $25,000 capital and that "sufficient local capital be subscribed to assure local interest and good management."

Loans at 3½ per cent interest, which will be made to individuals who have subscribed to the capital stock of the corporation, will be in amounts depending on the merits of each case. Renewals for one year at the end of the first year will be considered, but there will be no extensions beyond the second year.

New Regulations Approved.

George L. Hoffman, chief of the office, also announced new regulations had been approved to liberalize the original plan of drought relief. They will permit small loans to buy food for dairy cows, hogs and poultry which produce food for the farm family.

Mr. Hyde has also approved raising the limit of loans to tenant farmers in Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio and Michigan from $600 to $2,000. This brings the maximum for loans in these States to the same figure as in other drought and storm afflicted areas.

Veterans March on Loan Bureau As Vote Echo Rings Over Capital

Veterans stood in line at the Veterans Bureau yesterday, waiting for the Senate to approve the loan bill over President Hoover's veto. They were ready to file their applications as soon as word was received that the measure had become a law.

SENATE PASSES BONUS AGAIN BY COUNT OF 76-17

MEASURE EFFECTIVE AS VOTE IS TOTALED

Hastings Arouses Ire of Members by Remark About Soldiers.

HOOVER WILL SPEED PLAN'S APPLICATION

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The veterans' loan bill became the law of the land at 2:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and by 3 o'clock the big parade of borrowers was on.

After a two-hour period of futile oratory, punctuated at one stage by hisses, the Senate passed the bill over President Hoover's veto by a vote of 76 to 17. This was 14 more than the two-thirds needed to override the President.

The House had overridden the veto the day before by a vote of 328 to 79, so that the action of the Senate yesterday completed the process of placing the bill on the statute books over the President's objections.

March on Bureau Begins.

A small army of veterans, many of them from out of town, immediately headed for the Veterans' Bureau to take advantage of the legislation, which permits them to borrow up to 50 per cent of the value of their World War bonus certificates.

President Hoover was promptly notified of the Senate's action, and issued a statement in which he said that, while he had been "greatly opposed" to the legislation, he proposed to see that it was carried out as quickly as possible.

That it will be was indicated by the fact that before the day was out, the Veterans' Bureau had mailed out 1,000 loan checks. It had been ready for days to function the moment the bill became a law.

Asks Priority for Needy.

President Hoover announced that he had asked Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, to see that complete priority was given to those veterans who were mostly in need.

Consequently, the first loan check went to a Baltimore veteran who needed money to pay for an operation on his baby.

The high spot in the Senate debate came when Senator Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, said:

"I know many former soldiers, who if given the chance, would steal a certificate from their wives, and go out with some other woman."

Hastings' Remark Hissed.

Hisses and cries of "No! No!" were heard in the galleries, and Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, dared Senator Hastings to name any veteran who would do such a thing. This the Delaware senator declined to do, and stated that he had as much respect for veterans as anybody in the chamber.

The statement of President Hoover, issued at his press conference about an hour and a half after the Senate voted, follows:

"Although I have been greatly opposed to the passage of the bonus legislation in its provisions for loans from the Treasury to people not in need, now that it is a law we propose to facilitate the working of it in every way possible.

Hoover Praises Veterans' Groups.

"Inasmuch as the physical task of making loans to 3,500,000 veterans, or even half that number, who might apply, will require many months, even with the most intensive organization, I have requested Gen. Hines to give

BOULEVARD FUNDS OPPOSED IN HOUSE

Members Reserve Right for Separate Vote Upon Road Measure.

The sarcastic statements heard by the Senate from Senator Robert Howell (Republican), Nebraska, about the high cost of the George Washington Memorial Boulevard, along the Potomac River from Washington to Mount Vernon, were words of kind praise compared to those offered in the House yesterday, when it received the second deficiency appropriation bill passed by the Senate.

The deficiency bill carried, among other items totaling more than $100,000,000, an appropriation of $2,700,000 for completion of the boulevard.

The House sent the bill to conference because of the Senate amendment providing additional funds for the boulevard and specified that its members should have opportunity to have a separate vote on the boulevard item.

Representative Garner (Democrat), Texas, declared that the Senate apparently had gone crazy about money and had no thought of any limit which might be put on appropriations.

Representative Wood (Republican), Indiana, chairman of the appropriations committee, said he agreed with Mr. Garner's criticism but asserted there was a limit and the senators were the limit.

Representative Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, displayed seven silver dollars and, laying them out on the table close together, declared that if the boulevard were paved with silver dollars it could not cost any more.

Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, also joined in the attack, protesting against the amounts the Senate proposed to appropriate.

Representative Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, inquired if it were not true that the boulevard expenditures never had been formally authorized, and was told it had not been passed on by the House, although the additional appropriation had been put in the deficiency bill.

SCHOFIELD BLAMES RUM ON CLUBMEN

Philadelphia, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety, today criticised "highly respectable members of prominent Philadelphia clubs who violate the liquor law in these places and then permit club employes to take the punishment."

The director made this criticism while testifying at the hearing of John Triebel, steward of the exclusive Philadelphia Club, raided yesterday. Triebel was held in $600 bail for court. It is alleged more than 400 bottles of liquor were found in the club. The raid followed that on the wealthy Manufacturers' Club earlier in the day when 255 bottles of wines and liquor were seized in lockers.

The hearing was brief and no members of the Philadelphia Club were present.

The policeman who led the raiders into the Philadelphia Club testified he saw a man whom he knew to be a bootlegger enter the club with a suitcase and also observed members carrying satchels in and out of the place.

"We found one cocktail on the bar when we entered," he said, "and all the ingredients and utensils for mixing drinks."

The witness said they found liquor in 155 of 185 lockers on the third floor of the club.

"The police department realizes that this liquor did not belong to the defendant," said Director Schofield. "It is a club of renowned prominence, the members occupying high positions. Obviously these men are allowing this man, an employe, to come and assume the responsibility in this flagrant violation.

"It is a pure case of unsportsmanship, and the police department expects to ascertain who owned the liquor in these lockers and ask for warrants.

"The law must be enforced against such establishments just as well as it is against a speakeasy on a corner. It is a sad condition of affairs when eminent respectable men hide behind the skirts of an employe to carry on violations of the law."

BARONET ROSS FREE UNDER $60,000 BOND

Nobleman, Named in Suit by Wife, Makes Joke of Arrest and Detention.

Sir Charles Henry Augustus Frederick Lockhart Ross, Scot baronet, was a free man again last night after having undergone a period of detention in a hotel room due to his inability to raise a $100,000 bond demanded by the District Supreme Court to prevent him from fleeing from a maintenance suit secretly instituted by his wife, Lady Patricia Ross.

The suit and the baronet's arrest on a ne exeat warrant Thursday night culminated a series of matrimonial entanglements, which have reached the courts and which stretch from one continent to another.

The release of the baronet was effected late yesterday after a conference that lasted several hours in the chambers of Justice Jesse C. Adkins, who signed the ne exeat warrant. Following the conference, which was attended by Breckenridge Long, former Secretary of State, Ross' chief counsel, Justice Adkins reduced the bond to $60,000. It was immediately secured by a Philadelphia bonding house. Hearing on the ne exeat warrant is expected at an early date.

Sir Charles, who is listed locally as a consulting engineer, but who is alleged to own vast estates and to receive big royalties as a result of the invention of the Ross gun, used by

First Check Is Mailed to Baltimore; 1,000 Is Day's Total.

The local regional office of the Veterans' Bureau passed a hectic day as the bonus bill became a law over President Hoover's veto yesterday. Even before the Senate pushed the measure through a second time, veterans had begun the march on the officers. As news spread that the act had passed, the crowd became so great that it was necessary to form the men in lines to receive applications for the 50 per cent loans.

The veterans came in waves, like troops occupying a new sector. A detachment would form in the lobby to line up in front of room 132, contact division of the Veterans' Bureau, rapidly file through, displaying the little pink slips and then melt away with applications in hand.

There would be a lull, and another group would form.

As one veteran said as he drove up before the building: "Gosh, all the birds I know seem to be up here already!"

The palpably needy rubbed elboys with those giving the appearance of prosperity.

A man in a patched coat stood in front of another in a neat blue serge suit, while just behind stood a man in a chauffeur's cap. There was a postman in his gray uniform, and near him stood a man who might have been a detective on the Metropolitan Police Force.

Machinery to care for the added burden worked smoothly, however, and five minutes after the bureau received notification that the bill was a law, a check for $431.50 was speeding to a Baltimore veteran, which will furnish a badly needed operation for his young son.

This application had been before the bureau for some time, in hope Congress would override the veto, and the circumstances were investigated personally by Director G. E. Ijams. The director found that the son of this veteran, who is in great want, needed an operation badly to recover from a serious illness and that the loan would be used for that purpose.

It was the first check issued and officials estimated that approximately

FAILURE PREDICTED FOR OIL PRORATION

(Associated Press.)

Complete breakdown of domestic oil proration and conservation from failure to limit imports was predicted yesterday by oil State representatives formulating plans for carrying the restriction fight into the next Congress.

Both Representatives O'Connor and Garber, Oklahoma Republicans, forecast that Oklahoma would repeal her proration law and that other States, including Texas, California and Kansas, would follow suit.

This prediction was indorsed by the five Kansas regulars who Thursday night bolted the party caucus to protest the failure of import limitations and by Representative Barbour (Republican), California, from the kettleman Field District.

Abandonment of proration, they all agreed, would break the price of crude oil to unknown levels.

"I believe under the conditions, State authorities will not feel justified in denying our producers when foreign oil is being dumped on the market," Mr. Garber said. "It will have one of the most disastrous effects possible on oil conservation and will bring anarchy to the crude oil market."

Mr. O'Connor said failure of embargo legislation "will almost inevitably result in legislative action repealing legal authority for proration."

Mr. Barbour said if Oklahoma takes this action other States would be forced to do likewise.

Mr. O'Connor asserted the "bitter fight" between independents in Oklahoma over the question of proration was in his opinion "the explanation why the ways and means committee after apparently being sympathetic and favorable decided to deny members an opportunity to vote on embargo legislation."

Meanwhile the Kansas Bolters, led by Representative Hoch, served notice that before the next House is organized there will be a showdown with leaders on obtaining a tariff on oil.

"We intend to sit down and discuss this matter with party leaders next

Germans Are Linked In Plot, Soviet Says

Second Sabotage Trial to Involve Former High Teuton Officials Through Broad Confession Slated for Publication, Moscow States.

Moscow, Feb. 27.—Broad confession tending to involve former high officials in the German government will be made public in the second interventionist plot trial which begins here Sunday, Soviet authorities indicated today.

The fourteen Menshevist Economists and government officials indicted on charges of sabotage as part of a plot to weaken the Soviet State in preparation for foreign intervention were all declared to have confessed and pleaded guilty. Their action was strikingly similar to that of Prof. Leonid Ramzin and his seven co-defendants in the initial "Interventionist War" trial some weeks ago.

The confession of Vladimir Groman, Government Economist and erstwhile member of the presidium of the State Planning Commission, was said to declare that Rudolf Hilferding, former German Finance Minister, actively had supported the plot.

Nicholas Krylenko, prosecutor, indicated that the new trial—presumably to follow along the same lines as the Ramzin trial—would differ in that it would bring out a wealth of documentary evidence, including coded messages on wrappers of newspapers mailed between Berlin and Moscow.

The Menshevists are, incidentally, remnants of the old Menshevist, or minority, political party, traditionally opposed to the Bolshevists, or majority party.

The charges declare that the Menshevists and the Peasant Party, cooperating with the Ramzinites, planned a coalition provisional government. It is alleged in the 110-page indictment that Isaac Rubin, indicted Menshevist professor of political economy, kept secret documents in his private study at the Marx-Engels Institute throughout last year, handing them to David Ryazanov, famous Marxist authority, who was expelled from the Communist party yesterday "for treason," but was not indicted.

Aside from the German connections alleged in the indictment, the charges in this trial, as in the Ramzin affair, seek to invoke the French general staff and white Russians organizations in Paris. Ramzin and his codefendants were given prison sentences up to ten years.

The fourteen men to stand trial, beginning Sunday, are: Vladimir Groman, 56, government economist and member of the Presidium of the State Planning Commission; Vasily Sher, 47, a manager of the State Bank; Nicholas Sukhanov, 48, economist; Abraham Ginsburg, 52, member of Supreme Council of National Economy; Michael Yakubovich, 39, former assistant chief of supplies section of the Trade Commissariat; Alexander Finnenotayevsky, 58, professor of political economy; Aaron Sokolovsky, 47; Lazar Zalkind, 45, and Ivan Volkov, 47, all members of the Supreme Council of National Economy; Ivan Petunin, 46, of the managing board of the Central Cooperatives; Boris Berlatsky, 41, of the State Bank; Vladimir Ikov, 49, a journalist; Moses Teittelbaum, 54, of the Trade Commissariat, and Isaac Rubin, the political economy professor.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

In addition to the apparent escape of the Spanish people from the ravages of revolution, the encouraging news comes from Europe there is a good prospect of a naval agreement between France and Italy. Nothing could be more reassuring to the real friends of Europe in this country than concrete actions demonstrating that the desire for peace through mutual good understandings and concessions is the predominant sentiment of the continental people.

It is seldom that even an event of great importance can bring on war between nations unless the way has been prepared by a long series of disagreements over comparatively trifling incidents. If the little disputes are adjusted as they arise, a genial condition of friendship exists between people of different countries so that they are immune from the contagion of the serious maladies of hospitality.

These recent developments indicate clearly that in spite of some friction and some intemperate language the people of Europe have a strong underlying public opinion in favor of peaceable adjustment. That sentiment will produce more security than great squadrons and heavy battalions. Common sense is saving the day.

Second Couple in Double Elopement Is Separated

An elopement which startled Capital society five years ago, when Grace C. Waggaman, daughter of Mrs. Alexander B. Legare, was married to George M. Pulver, has apparently ended in a separation.

As far as is known, no application for divorce has been made, although Mr. and Mrs. Pulver have been separated for several months. The former is living at the Racquet Club and the latter with her mother, at 1737 N street.

This apparently completes the break-up of the foursome which supplied fashionable tea tables with gossip for several weeks with news of a double elopement. The other two involved were Lilie Roosevelt, daughter of Mrs. Robert B. Roosevelt, and James Lee, who worked as a reporter on a Washington newspaper. After securing a divorce from Mr. Lee a little over a year ago, Miss Roosevelt married Hugh O'Donnell.

Deputy Denies He 'Framed' Former Wife in Graft Quiz

Eight years ago in Philadelphia the romance of a pretty red-haired artist and her husband went on the rocks. A divorce led their paths in opposite directions and the years raised a wall of silence between them.

Yesterday the one-time husband, John C. Bischoff, now a deputy marshal at the District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Va., learned the grim fate of the woman, whose brutal murder in New York City stirred an investigation of alleged graft, bribery and judicial corruption agitating there for months.

She had lived in New York as Vivian Gordon, 32-year-old former reformatory inmate. On February 17, she wrote authorities that she intended to reveal a "frame-up by a police officer." Wednesday night she was taken for a ride, strangled with a knotted clothesline and dumped over a cliff in Van Cortlandt Park in the Bronx.

complete priority to applications from veterans who are in need, and have asked him to set up some machinery for the certification of these cases, especially giving regard to the certification of the veterans' service organizations and the various relief organizations dealing with unemployment. The recent survey of the larger cities shows, in the opinion of the administrator of veterans' affairs, that about 6 per cent of the total number of veterans in industrial centers are now receiving support from the local unemployment and other relief committees. The bill will relieve some of the burden now being carried by these committees, but as the amount possible for many veterans to borrow under the bill is so small, it is urgently necessary that the local committees shall continue their service to many veterans.

Hoover Lauds Veterans' Groups.

"I wish to compliment the veterans' service organizations for their cooperation in undertaking a campaign amongst all veterans, urging them not to take advantage of the loan provisions except in cases of absolute necessity. I understand they are placing it on the ground of assistance to the Federal Government in minimizing the amount of money we shall be called upon to borrow and upon the fact that loans upon the bonus certificates exhaust the protection the veterans' families under the endowment insurance features of the certificates.

"Taking Gen. Hines' survey of the number of veterans being assisted by local committees as a basis, it would appear that if all loans were confined to need, the drain on the Treasury may be limited to 10 per cent of the potential liability created by the law."

Legion Issues Statement.

Capt. Watson B. Miller, national chairman of the American Legion's rehabilitation committee, announced yesterday that a statement had been sent to Legion officials throughout the country to be published, broadcast and otherwise disseminated.

"The American Legion suggests," the statement says, "that veterans not actually in need defer their applications for 60 or 90 days so as to permit the needful applicants to get early action."

The statement warns veterans against following up their applications with telegrams and letters. These, it said, can only clutter up the Veterans' Bureau and delay action on the loans.

75 Per Cent May Apply.

Legion officials also plan to urge veterans not to make loans unless they are absolutely in need of them. Privately, however, they express the opinion that fully 75 per cent of the veterans will apply for them. In this case, $1,000,000,000 must be raised by the Treasury to meet the demand.

Evidently a large number of veterans still are of the opinion that they can take out a bonus certificate now and get a loan on it immediately. The Veterans' Bureau yesterday emphasized that this is not so; that the veteran in such a case must wait two years.

Gen. Hines turned over a memorandum to President Hoover yesterday, which the President mentioned in his statement, which estimated that of 3,400,000 holders of bonus certificates about 6 per cent are in distress. No figures were given for the District of Columbia.

Nine Senators Increase Vote.

The vote to override the President's veto—76 to 17—indicates that nine more senators took part in the voting yesterday than took part when the bill was first passed. On that occasion the bill was passed, 72 to 12.

Of the 76 senators who voted to override the President yesterday, 36 were Republicans (two more than voted for the bill last week), 39 were Democrats and 1 was a Farmer-Laborite.

The debate yesterday was opened by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who, though ordinarily a strong supporter of the President, went against him on the loan bill. Senator Vandenberg denied that the bill represented a raid on the Treasury. All it did, he said, was give the veterans what they were entitled to: "unfreeze" money that was held to their credit in the Treasury.

Hastings Says Money Lacking.

Senator Hastings, who later was to cause a furore, insisted that there was no money in the Treasury to meet the loans. Passage of the bill, he said, meant that the Government would have to borrow from one class of citizens to lend it to another, or else raise the money by taxation. Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, denied this, saying the money was in the Treasury to the credit of the veterans.

Finally, Senator Hastings, who generally is temperate in his speeches, declared that many veterans would buy automobiles and luxuries with their loan money and then, when challenged on this, made the statement that he knew of veterans who would "steal" the certificates from their wives and go out with other women.

At this point came the hisses.

Senators Assail Hastings.

Senators Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, a veteran, said that if this were true of veterans it also was true of business men and senators who obtained possession of money.

Senator Cutting (Republican), of New Mexico, another veteran, scolded Senator Hastings for saying that veterans would use their money for "debauchery," and added that it was hardly likely that he would have said such a thing in 1917-18.

Senator Hastings insisted that he was not trying to reflect on the veterans, but, rather, was trying to prevent some of them from obtaining money that really was intended for their wives and children, the beneficiaries named in their bonus certificates.

When Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, also a veteran, read letters from two veterans in distress who said that they were opposed to the bill, Senator Heflin (Democrat), declared that he would like to see the pair. Whereupon Heflin, who goes out of office Wednesday, told a story about frogs.

Bingham Praises Hoover.

Senator Bingham praised President Hoover's courage in vetoing the bonus loan bill. An election is not far off, he said, and yet the President was not afraid to disapprove a bill which, though wanted by a large part of the population, seemed harmful to him.

"He has shown a degree of courage," Bingham said, "seldom seen in the White House since the days of Grover Cleveland."

Once Bingham had concluded, the Senate voted to override the President. It was the second veterans' measure which had been passed over President Hoover's veto, the other having been the Spanish War pension bill, which was enacted a year ago.

Downes alleges he was seriously injured last December 30 when struck down by the defendant's automobile.

Policeman Robert Langdon, who figured in the Limerick case, was noticed in the line, waiting for an application.

There were 3,510,818 adjusted compensation certificates in force at January 31, 1931, and they represented a total value of $3,536,667,980. Of these certificates, loans have already been made on 2,692,532, amounting to $249,505,525.

There will be plenty of money to take care of the added rush, according ot bureau officials. Yesterday $17,750,000 was telegraphed to the various regional offices, and $2,250,000 remains for use by the central office in Washington.

Congress is ready to pass measures which will provide $2,000,000 to hire additional clerical help in the Veterans' Bureau. In view of this fact it was said yesterday that the bureau would probably start a night shift in order to expedite the labor of providing for the increased application for loans.

The regional office in Washington differs materially in its work from the others scattered about the country, Maj. E. T. Hitch, regional manager, explained yesterday, for it receives calls from veterans living over the globe. Many of them do not realize there is a regional office to care for their needs, so they write to Washington, and the office here is called upon to act on their applications.

Come From Many Sections.

While the local office has a residential clientele of only 15,000 it has already made loans on 60,000 applications since the bonus bill of May 19, 1924, according to Maj. Hitch. These applications came from Mexico, Canada and nearly every State in the Union.

"I believe every man in Porto Rico must have served in the World War, judging from the number of applications we receive from there," Maj. Hitch laughed.

Maj. Hitch has no means of estimating how many will apply for loans under the new bonus bill, he said. Some additional clerks were employed since January 1, and up until noon yesterday 16,332 loans had been made since that time—the second largest number granted by any office in the United States with the exception of New York.

He estimated that 95 per cent of these veterans will borrow again under the terms of the new act, and that in addition, others who have refrained from borrowing on their certificates because the amounts they could raise were so small, will take out applications now that most of them can raise $500 or more in a lump sum.

However, Maj. Hitch declares that the machinery for making loans is working so smoothly that even with the increased applications he will need few more clerks, certainly no more than 25.

These, of course, will be placed from the Civil Service lists, and there are plenty available. He does not expect to need an added force except for the next four months when the peak of the borrowing will be reached.

The time it will take veterans to realize on their applications is problematical, Maj. Hitch said. In normal times a veteran could often ask for a loan on one day and receive his money the next, Maj. Hitch said.

Naturally it will be impossible to work with this speed now, but the office hopes to get checks out within 15 days of application time.

"The big period of applications will be during the first four to six months," Maj. Hitch said. "In this connection I would like to stress one point."

Must Be Two Years Old.

"If the veterans who are not actually in dire need only wait for a time before making applications for loan and allow us to issue checks to those who are really in distress, the real purpose of this bonus bill would be served. If the veterans would only show some of their brotherly spirit toward their "buddies" the aid feature of the bill would certainly be furthered."

Many of the veterans are under a misapprehension about the loan value of their certificates, he explained. They have a loan value only if they have been in force for two years.

The 50 per cent, which the service men are now allowed to borrow will put an end to borrowing on the bonus for the next two years.

Veterans' Bureau officials estimate that the veteran who borrows $500 on the $1,000 average certificate will have only $74.03 left in 1945 is he fails to pay the interest. However, if the interest payments are met the borrowers will receive the face value less the actual amount borrowed when the certificates mature in fourteen years.

The loan will be $500. Interest at 4½ per cent, compounded annually, totals $425.97. The balance is $74.03.

HOLLAND TO PROBE DAVIS LOBBY CASE

Pennsylvania Senator Makes Personal Appearance to Deny Charges.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate lobby committee has reemployed its veteran investigator, John Holland, to assist in its inquiry into published charges that a senator received $100,000 or more from a sugar company in connection with the sugar tariff.

Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, voluntarily appeared before the committee to deny charges if they referred to him. He said he had contracted for $80,000 or $100,000 of stock in the Celotex Co., but had not been lobbied or received money for lobbying.

Holland, a native of Montana, is a veteran of the Senate's Teapot Dome, lobby and postoffice lease investigations.

He has been engaged in gathering evidence for the special committee investigating postal leases since the lobby inquiry last year. His return to the lobby committee will delay completion of the postoffice investigation.

Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee, has announced it will make an exhaustive inquiry into the charges of senatorial lobbying. He said yesterday the investigation probably will not be resumed until after the session ends next Wednesday.

Chairman Blaine, of the postal lease committee, had planned to resume hearings immediately after the end of the session.

CAPONE SENTENCED TO 6 MONTHS' TERM

Thus the man whose name has been mentioned in connection with nearly every major crime in Chicago in the last five years, the man who is supposed to have gained a virtual monopoly on the liquor vice and gambling trade in the Chicago area, toppled from his throne of immunity.

First Trial In Chicago.

Questioned many times, out on bond now on a vagrancy charge, Capone had never before been brought to trial in his home city. Philadelphia police found a concealed weapon on him in the spring of 1929 and locked him up for almost a year.

There was no doubt about how hard Capone fought the contempt of court case. Although he did not take the stand himself, he employed three attorneys to defend him, offered suggestions as to the cross-examination of witnesses, and was visibly shaken at the verdict.

Another Victory Won.

Volpe has been a resident of the United States since 1906 and once was naturalized, but his certificate was canceled. He served 30 days in jail after pleading guilty to possession of counterfeit war savings stamps, but it was as bodyguard to Alphonse Capone that he merited third place in rank among the "public enemies" listed by the Chicago Crime Commission.

Technical Avenue for Writ.

A visit to Cuba in 1928 was the technical avenue for the deportation writ approved today by the Secretary of Labor.

In opposing Volpe's exile, John Elliott Byrne, his attorney and formerly first assistant to the Federal district attorney here, argued that his jail sentence did not constitute moral turpitude, since he was not given a penitentiary term. Byrne also contended the Cuban visit did not constitute leaving and reentering the country.

"FRAMING" OF WOMAN IS DENIED BY DEPUTY

versation with The Post, denied a report that he had received a letter from his former wife. The letter, according to an Associated Press dispatch was supposed to have been written to him by his former wife, charging he had been implicated in a frame-up of her.

"I have never seen the letter and had no knowledge of its existence, and I most certainly have not taken any part in any frame-up."

He added that he had no intention of going to New York, that he had not been summoned there by authorities, and that he had no interest whatsoever in the woman.

He expressed surprise to learn that the woman was living under the name of Vivian Gordon and said that it was assumed.

"Her maiden name was Benita Franklin, and she came originally from Chicago," he explained. "We were married in 1917 in Charleston, S. C., and were divorced in Philadelphia in 1923. We had one daughter, who stayed with me and is now with my relatives and in school in Audobon, N. J.

"I had not heard of her since we were divorced, since I was not interested in her. This is the first news that I have had about her since we separated."

Bischoff's Washington address is at Sixteenth and R streets northwest. He makes monthly trips to his Audobon home, 250 White Horse pike. The letter he denies having received was sent to 145 Vassar road, Audubon, where Bischoff formerly lived.

Schroeder Murder Jury Complete.

Indianapolis, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A jury was obtained this morning in Criminal Court here to try Harold Herbert Schroeder, Mobile business man, charged with the murder and burning of an unidentified man last May. The trial opened Tuesday.

O'Neil Asks Legionnaires To Await Need for Loan

Kansas City, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, today appealed to members of his organization to refrain from borrowing on adjusted service compensation certificates unless the need is urgent. The request was made on a sound film of a newsreel company.

After completing the film, O'Neil said he was sorry President Hoover took the position he did regarding the bonus legislation. He expressed belief he was unduly influenced by "Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, who always has been unfriendly to legislation of this sort."

National Legion Workers Praised.

The executive committee of the American Legion at a meeting Thursday night adopted a resolution submitted by Lincoln Post, No 17, which expressed full confidence in the efforts of national officers and committees toward assisting disabled veterans, whether they were members of the legion or not.

Highway Contrcats To Give 4,000 Jobs

Contracts for improvement of Washington streets totaling $521,846.75 were awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners as a beginning of the huge highway construction program planned for the District this spring.

Warren F. Brenizer Co. Inc., was given the contract to build a number of concrete roadways for $157,766.75. The job of resurfacing, by the replacement method, went to the Union Paving Co. Inc., for $188,627.50.

McGuire & Rolfe, Inc., on its bid of $105,987.50, was awarded the contract to construct certain concrete alleys and also the job of building a number of sidewalks for $69,465.

Actual work on these projects will begin in the next few days, thus providing the first of the 4,000 new jobs promised by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District chief engineer, by reason of the city's street improvement.

Revision in Lunacy Laws Is Approved

Zihlman Measure Reported Favorably by District Commissioners.

The Zihlman bill, intended to revise the lunacy laws of the District, was favorably reported by the District Commissioners yesterday in a report to congressional District committees.

"This bill is the result of careful consideration of the lunacy laws of the District of Columbia by the authorities of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the Board of Public Welfare and the office of the corporation counsel," the report stated.

"The changes in existing law contemplated by the bill are a notable departure from the present practice in dealing with the mentally ill, but they are in line with statutory enactments to be found in the more progressive of our States and mark a distinct step forward in the handling of such cases."

Former Soldiers Seeking Loans Must Have All Required Papers

If a veteran is borrowing on his adjusted compensation certificate for the first time he must furnish identification showing that he is the person to whom the certificate was issued. He takes his bonus certificate, discharge certificate or some other tangible identification to Room 132, contact division of the Veterans' Bureau, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. daily.

The service man who has borrowed on his certificate should go to 1540 I street northwest, regional office of the Veterans' Bureau, taking with him the pink slip recording his previous borrowing.

If he borrowed from a bank on the previous loan and the loan has not matured, he should go there rather than to the Veterans' Bureau to make the new loan. The bank will send the old note to the bureau, which will liquidate it and make new loans, minus interest on the old.

All checks will be mailed, and applications may be made by mail if properly filled out.

FRAZER WILL FIGHT CHARGE OF MURDER

Special to The Washington Post.

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 27.—New Jersey's most sensational murder tale since the celebrated Halli-Mills incident of several years ago began to assume the proportions of a dramatic legal battle today.

William M. Frazer, alleged slayer of Mrs. Phoebe Stader, pretty 32-year-old woman, whose body was found near Doswell, Va., last Saturday, appeared in court with his attorney Victor Greenburg, and entered a prosaic plea of "not guilty." The arraignment was a technical matter, and he was immediately remanded jail without bail, pending the outcome of a grand jury hearing.

Frazer appeared stolid and expressionless when he was brought into court in the custody of two burly officers. He seemed to take but little interest in the proceedings that are expected by Prosecutor Abe J. David to result in a conviction of first degree murder.

Frazer was arrested when he walked into a rendezvous with police at Raleigh, N. C. in the city postoffice there. He readily admitted at that time his identity, but until prodded by police he remained adamant in his denial of killing the woman who is said to have accompanied him on "parties" in Rahway.

His socalled "iron nerve" failed him, however, when he was shown the death gun, a .22-caliber rifle that was found in the rear compartment of his car, and he launched into an explanation of an accidental shooting. He admitted cutting Mrs. Stader's clothing off her and burning it alongside the road somewhere near Fredericksburg. That was done, he said, to balk efforts to identify the body. He denied that he had mutilated it beyond cutting off the womanqs wedding ring.

Frazer went through a difficult day in Rahway. He arrived early yesterday morning and his path led straight from one questioner to another. He posed for photographers, but on advice of his attorney, he refused to answer questions. His attorney threatened to seek a State Supreme Court injunction to prevent Frazer being questioned about the murder details.

Frazer's mother was permitted to see him for a few minutes.

AUTO AND PRINCIPALS IN NEW JERSEY MURDER

FOES OF BONUS BILL ARE RAPPED BY FISH

Representative Points Out Spreading of Propaganda by Communists.

Digressing from his scheduled talk on communism, Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, last night denounced financiers and newspapers which had opposed the bonus bill, which had been passed over the President's veto. The address was given at an anti-communist demonstration in the Silver Spring National Guard Armory, held under the auspices of the Montgomery County American Legion and its auxiliary.

Representative Fish declared that the alleged raid on the Treasury merely means that the Government is loaning at 4½ per cent interest money for which it pays but 3 per cent. Ample funds are in the Treasury to care for the bonus bill loans, and those who attack the bill do so for their selfish end, he said.

Representative Fish, who is chairman of a special congressional committee investigating communist activities in the United States, told the gathering of the subversive propaganda being spread by the communists in an effort to undermine American institutions. Especially among the colored race is the propaganda being spread, but the average Negro is a sound American at heart, he declared.

Alien Bill Expected.

"We do not permit the plague in our ports although we have plenty of hospitals and gygiens facilities," the representative declared. "Why should we permit political plague?" He declared that a bill will be presented this afternoon or Monday which will add alien Communists to the list of those who may be deported. The representative told in detail of the matter collected by his committee regarding red activities in this country. He paid tribute to the American Federation of Labor for its efforts in combating communism.

The American Legion also was praised for its activities.

Mrs. William Sherman Walker, chairman of the national defense committee of the D. A. R., spoke on the five-year plan. A graphic tale of his experiences as a prisoner in the Soviet prison camp was told by Dr. Arthur A. Kopman, who was held prisoner for two years in a Siberian lumber camp under suspicion as a spy until a smuggled message to the American Consul in Poland secured his freedom.

Five-Year Plan Explained.

Greetings were extended by Mrs. Charles T. Conrad, State president of the Maryland Auxiliary. The invocation was by the Rev. Thomas A. Calnan, pastor of St. Micheal's Catholic Church at Silver Spring, and the benediction was by the Rev. Ralph D. Smith, pastor of the Woodside M. E. Church. Mrs. Estelle Hunt Dean, accompanied by Miss Helen Dean sang patriotic songs. A program of patriotic music was presented by the United States Army Band. Boy Scouts of Troop 209 acted as ushers. Lieut. Col. George Henderson, commander of the State legion, presided.

Man Sues Couple In Alienation Suit

J. R. Armstrong Charges That Dr. T. M. Shippell Caused Breach.

James B. Armstrong, of the Montgomery Apartments, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $25,000 for alleged alienation of his wife's affections. The suit is directed against Dr. Theresa M. Schippell, of 1329 Sixteenth street northwest, and her husband, Edward J. Schippell.

Mr. Armstrong alleges that the defendants disparaged him before his wife, and that as a result she left him. She is now living at the Shippell's home, the plaintiff states, and adds that when he went to their home in an effort to effect a reconciliation he was threatened and ordered to leave.

Culpeper Banker Dies at Residence

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Feb. 27.—Jackson B. Fray, 68, prominent Virginia banker and business man, died at his home here today after a protracted illness. Mr. Fray had remained active in business until his last illness.

For the past twenty years he had been president of one of the local banks and was a stockholder of practically every large business enterprise in Culpeper. He founded and was majority stockholder of the Fairfax, Culpeper's only theater, and also organized and managed the Culpeper Telephone Co., which at the time it was sold to the Chesapeake & Potomac, a year ago, had absorbed other telephone concerns until it was serving five or more counties. Mr. Fray was prominent in Masonic and church circles, being a member of the Lutheran Church. He was the son of Joseph M. Fray, of Madison County, and was twice married. One child, Mrs. Wilbert Rickman, of Baltimore, by the first marriage with Miss Belle Crigler, of Madison, survives.

His second wife, Mrs. Roberta Browning Fray, and five children also survive. These children are Mrs. Ewing Wall, of Quantico; Miss Virginia Fray Samuel, and Jack Fray, of Culpeper, and Miss Ellen Fray, of Goucher College. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

Albert Milhollen, 77, Is Dead at Philomont

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Feb. 27.—Albert Milhollen, retired merchant and director of the Purcellville National Bank, died at his home at Philomont this morning at 7 o'clock from pneumonia. He had been ill only a few days. He was a native and lifelong resident of Philomont, and for 53 years was a merchant in that town. He was the son of the late Henry and Charlotte Milhollen.

Surviving him are two brothers, Dr. William Milhollen, Round Hill, and Eugene Milhollen, Philomont, and one sister, Mrs. Dixie Lunt, Alexandria. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Senators Watson and McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leaders upon whom rested much of the burden of negotiating the legislative program through the short session, expressed belief last night that the way was clear for an orderly adjournment at noon next Wednesday.

With Democratic cooperation accorded after the drought relief compromise the Senate has caught up with its vital business to an extent which left Congress last night further advanced at this time than any similar short session in many years.

VOLUNTEERS' HEAD TO FACE CHARGES

A. A. Potter, of Montgomery County Firemen, Refuses to Quit.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post. 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Cabin John Volunteer Fire Department still pursues its turbulent way. A special meeting has been called for Monday night at which charges are to be presented against the president, A. A. Potter, in an effort to obtain his removal.

Mr. Potter refused to resign at a meeting held Thursday night until all other officers had resigned or until charges had been preferred against him and he had been held illegally in office. Mr. Potter contended that inasmuch as he had been elected unanimously, the faction fight in the department over whether or not reserve members could vote does not affect his status. The legal status of each officer must be determined individually, the president declared.

The demand for a special meeting was presented by David Tuohey, treasurer and leader of the anti-Potter faction. The meeting will be held Monday night at the Glen Echo-Cabin John School.

Two new officers were elected at the meeting. Joseph Blandford was elected vice president to replace Berlin G. Brann, resigned; and Norman Sheetz was elected to serve as secretary, it having been ruled that W. G. Hannen was not legally competent to hold office, as he is a reserve member.

Suit for limited divorce from Walter B. Pritchett, of Cambridge, Md., alleging desertion and nonsupport, was filed on behalf of Mrs. Priscilla Scharf Pritchett, of Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday in Circuit Court at Rockville by the law firm of Peter, Simpson & Oxley, of Rockville.

The wife tells the court that she was married to Pritchett October 2, 1928, at Manassas, Va., and that he has failed since that time to support her. She alleges that he sold their wedding presents and appropriated the money. She told the court that he has not worked more than two or three weeks since their marriage.

Apparatus for the conduct of a dental clinic Tuesday morning at the Glenmont School has been installed, it was announced yesterday by Dr. W. T. Pratt, county health officer, who will have charge of the clinic. There are 140 students at the school.

A committee headed by Roger Shaw is making plans for the annual smoker and oyster roast of the Rockville Chamber of Commerce which is to be held March 17. The committee will meet within a few days to prepare the program.

Other members of the committee are: Joseph N. Starkey, Leonard L. Nicholson, Eugene B. Gingell and Dr. Barrett P. Wilson.

The Bethesda Chamber of Commerce will meet Monday night at 8 o'clock in the county building at Bethesda, according to an announcement by Thomas E. Hampton, secretary.

Baltimore Woman Dies As Her Car Strikes Bus

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL AGREES ON TAX LOAN

Will Furnish $100,000 or as Much as Needed, Until Levies Are Paid.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 997 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

City council, at a meeting Thursday evening scheduled as informal and not open to the public, upon motion of Councilman Ticer, declared the meeting a special one and adopted the resolution that had been presented at a former meeting to place a temporary loan of $100,000, or as much thereof as necessary, to help defray general expenses of the city in anticipation of the collection of city taxes now delinquent. The loan is to be for a period of 90 days and is to be renewable if desired.

Judge William P. Wools, of the Corporation Court, appeared before council and made the following recommendations for improvements at the city jail:

Another cell tier and five additional drinking fountains, toilet in white women's quarters, cells to be arranged to segregate prisoners suffering from diseases, a delousing room, additional toilets. Judge Wools stated that these are the principal needs for health and also fire protection.

A committee composed of J. William May, O. Ashby Reardon, and Gilbert J. Cox, jr., of the George Washington Birthday Association, requested council to give its indorsement to the proposition of a parade in this city on February 22, 1932, and council went on record as being glad to cooperate in the celebration.

Council accepted an invitation from the city school board to inspect the city schools and the tentative dates fixed were March 2 or 9.

City council will give the local zoning and planning commission a hearing on March 3 at 3 p. m. for the purpose of obtaining its tentative ordinance on zoning and planning and also to view the maps prepared.

John T. Henderson, aged 70 years, died on Thursday evening at the Alexandria Hospital and the body was taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. E. Dawson, 914 Franklin street. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Pletchers Chapel, King George County, Va. The deceased is survived by two sons and two daughters, as follows: Mrs. Dawson and Frank B. Henderson, of this city; William P. Henderson, of Indian Head, Md., and Mrs. W. D. Jones, of Fredericksburg, Va.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell has detailed two members of the police force to round up the delinquents in city taxes, and persons after being cited will be given one week to procure the necessary license, after which time they will be summoned to police court and fined as well as being compelled to purchase the license.

Machado Aid Held In Cuba Bomb Plot

Commander Espinosa Faces Charge of Bribing Soldier in Blast.

Havana, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—With the arrest today of Commander Manuel Espinosa, aide-de-camp to President Machado, and five other members of the presidential guard, police believed they were near solution of the bombing of the president's palace on Monday.

The commander was regarded as one of the most trusted officers of the guard, but police said only that he had been implicated by an unnamed soldier, who had confessed planting a bomb on the palace roof.

That soldier admitted, police said, he was offered $6,000 through Espinosa to plant the bomb. One of Espinosa's brothers is a Cuban congressman and another is a judge. His brother-in-law is Miguel Mariano Gomez, who was mayor of Havana until last Tuesday.

District Heads Approve Revised Stadium Plans

Revised plans and specifications for the Dunbar High School athletic field, known as the Walker Stadium, were approved yesterday by the District Commissioners. An estimate of $72,750 was placed on the project.

Bids were received several months ago on the job, which was included in the 1930 appropriations, but all bids had to be rejected because they were above the $75,000 appropriation. The plans have since been modified. New bids will be advertised at once, according to Roland M. Brennan, and will be opened March 11.

GEOLOGICAL REPORT IS SENT TO POLLARD

Results of Investigations to Be Used in Making New Map of State.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The fifty-first annual report of the Geological Survey of the United States Department of Interior sent to Gov. Pollard today said that field work in Virginia, a northward extension of that done in previous years, included portions of Craig, Roanoke, Montgomery, Botetourt, Alleghany, Rockbridge and Augusta Counties.

The report was for the fiscal year 1930. An abstract of the report sections concerning Virginia follows:

"Charles Butts continued his field and office work in the Appalachian Valley in cooperation with Geological Survey of Virginia. The results of the investigations will be used in the revision of geological map of the State. The field work, a northward extension of that done during previous years, included portions of Craig, Roanoke, Montgomery, Botetourt, Alleghany, Rockbridge and Augusta Counties. Special problems in stratigraphy and paleontology of this region were studied by E. O. Ulrich in connection with M. B. Campbell in cooperation with the Virginia Geological Survey."

Published in Germany.

A paper on silicified bog-iron deposits and associated silicified rocks at the contact between Cambrian and Ozarkian 'basal Ordovician in Virginia by M. I. Goldman, was published in Germany in a Festschrift in honor of Prof. Johannes Walther, on the occasion of his seventieth birthday.

"The survey of the Bonsacks, Stony Man, Riders Gap, and Salem Quadrangles was completed and that of Old Town, Independence, Warm Spring Run, Healing Springs, Standardsville and Montrose quadrangles was begun, all in cooperation with the Conservation and Development Commission of Virginia, geological survey. The survey of the boundary of the proposed Shenandoah National Park was continued.

Gauging Stations.

"Eighty gauging stations were being maintained at the end of the year, fifteen having been established during the year. Investigation of the termal springs of Virginia was continued with cooperation of the State Commission on Conservation and Development. water-stage recorders were operated on the ebbing and flowing spring near Broadway and on the observation well in Arlington county.

"An examination of ground-water conditions at Camp Lee was made by R. M. Legette for the Department of Justice. A reconnaissance of the ebbing and flowing springs in the State was made by O. E. Meinzer. A preliminary report on the quality of surface waters of Virginia was practically completed. It contains analysis of 10-day composites of daily samples taken at 16 gauging stations for the year ended March 31, 1930. Analyses are being made for similar samples from 16 other gauging stations beginning April, 1931."

Virginia Tuberculosis Association in Session

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 27.—The Virginia Tuberculosis Association held its annual session here today. Nearly 40 doctors, public health officers and interested laymen from all quarters of the State attended. Dr. Bean B. Cole, Richmond, was elected president, Dr. William P. Caton, Accotink, and Mrs T Allen Kirk, of Roanoke, vice presidents; George P. Call, Richmond, treasurer, and Dr. Roy K. Flannagan, Richmond, secretary.

West Virginia Farmer Held in Boy's Murder

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 27 (A.P.). Alexander Fox, a farmer, was held responsible by a coroner's jury today for the death of his ward, Roy Stewart, 13.

Fox was charged with first degree murder, and Prosecuting Attorney Albert Shuman said he had evidence that the boy was beaten with fatal result. Fox denied the allegation.

Theft at Shoreham Reported.

A quantity of silverware, the value of which had not been determined, was reported stolen from the kitchen of the Shoreham Hotel, Connecticut avenue and Calvert streets northwest, early yesterday morning. Suspected persons were named to police, and headquarters detectives are investigating.

TELEGRAM ABSORBS WORLD NEWSPAPERS

Combined Afternoon Edition Issued; Morning and Sunday Papers Dropped.

New York, Feb. 27.—With the disappearance of the three World newspapers, for more than 40 years occupying a dominating position in American journalism, and their rebirth into the new World-Telegram, the newspaper map of this city was dramatically revised today.

The morning and Sunday editions of the World will not be published again.

Walter Lippmann, retiring editor of the World, said today he plans to travel and "settle down to do some writing."

Robert H. Lyman, editor of the World Almanac, used widely as a reference book, said today that the publication would be continued. The almanac, published by the New York World, has a circulation of 300,000 annually.

Here is the valedictory of Franklin P. Adams, for years conductor of the Conning Tower column in the Morning World:

"And so to all concerned the Conning Tower, trying to stave off the final word like a child asking for another drink of water before the light is turned out, says 'good-by.'"

Takes Over Features.

The World-Telegram took over today several features of the Morning and Evening Worlds, including the comic strips of the latter, the comic cartoon of Will Johnstone, and the theatrical column of Bide Dudley. The World-Telegram publishes Associated Press dispatches.

Rollin Kirby, cartoonist; Frank Sullivan, humorist; Harry Hansen, book critic, and others of the Morning World will join the World-Telegram staff.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's weekly article, appearing in the Sunday World, will appear tomorrow in the World-Telegram, and regularly on Saturdays hereafter.

Community Chest Plans Central Buying Office

Plans for a central purchasing committee for Community Chest organizations were discussed at a meeting of the Executives' Club of the Chest, yesterday at the Y. W. C. A. It was decided to appoint a committee to inquire into the feasibility of this plan and have the committee report back at a later meeting.

Club members expressed opinion that considerable economy could be effected under this plan, the one central committee doing all purchasing for the 62 organizations in the Chest, thereby purchasing in larger quantities and getting better goods for less money.

Einstein Bids Farewell To Pasadena Associates

It was simple, kindly, and affectionate adieu the world famous physicist bade the group of scientists and research workers with whom he has been thinking for two months.

U. S. Contends Airplane Is "Vehicle" in Court

(Associated Press.)

Is an airplane a "vehicle" or isn't it? The Supreme Court would like to know.

It questioned counsel closely yesterday on the meaning of that word in hearing argument in the case of a man convicted under the Federal motor vehicle theft act of stealing a plane.

The defendant was William M. McBoyle, of Galena, Ill. His counsel insisted a "vehicle" was a conveyance moving along the surface of the earth. The Government, on the other hand, contended the term was broad enough to cover aircraft.

SALE OF U. S. DATA SCORED BY WILBUR

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to penalize the sale of Government papers or information was urged yesterday by Secretary Wilbur.

This was advocated by the Interior Secretary in a letter to Chairman Nye, of the Senate lands committee, which is investigating sale of articles by Ralph S. Kelley to the New York World.

In a series of articles syndicated by the newspaper, Kelley charged the Interior Department with maladministration of Colorado oil shale lands.

The letter was made public shortly after the lands committee had received from Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, documents purporting to show that while Kelley was negotiating with the newspaper for sale of the articles he still was connected with the Interior Department's General Land Office.

Mr. Wilbur charged Kelley and the newspaper had signed a contract long before the former resigned from the department and that payment was to have been cut in half if he were discharged before offering his resignation.

"A question of public policy is thus squarely presented, whether a newspaper, for its own profit, can with impunity pay a Government employe to write for it disclosures of confidential Government records and to remain in Government service while he is doing so, so that the newspaper may have the benefit of his use of those documents and of his supposedly voluntary resignation," Mr. Wilbur said.

"As the newspaper in question has changed hands and stopped publication, I have no wish to personalize any issue between that paper and myself. I do not know whether anything is to be gained by demanding a personal examination of the members of the old management, contemptible as their conduct has been. "I do strongly ask, however, that your committee devote itself to the constructive job of rendering repetition of such a job impossible."

GREEN SEES SLUMP AT ROCK BOTTOM

Federated Labor Head Deplores Wage Cuts Made in January.

(Associated Press.)

A check this month in the increase of unemployment was interpreted yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as adding "weight to the evidence that we have reached the bottom of depression."

At the same time, Mr. Green said in a statement that wage cuts in January were nearly three times as numerous and affected nearly twice as many employes as in any month since the depression began.

"This movement to reduce wages at the moment when business depression appears to be reaching bottom is most untimely," he asserted. "If wage cuts continue we will limit our ability to pull up quickly from this depression."

Mr. Green said reports from labor unions and Government figures indicated the number out of work in January was 5,870,000 and 5,770,000 in February. He added this did not include office workers and farm laborers.

"This is the first check in the rapid rise of unemployment since October," he said, adding that betterment is not likely to come for several months.

"Efforts to provide work for the unemployed and relief for those who can not find work are of most urgent importance in the next two months," Green asserted

"There is a tendency to imagine that the need is over and to let relief funds run out. Suffering in March will probably be worse than in any previous month because workers' resources are exhausted with the long duration of unemployment."

Store Donates $3,400 To Employment Bureau

Two thousand dependents receiving aid from the Junior League Employment Bureau will continue to be assisted through a donation of $3,400 made to the bureau yesterday to insure its existence a few weeks longer.

The money was contributed by the Washington store of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and its employes, to the Washington Chamber of Commerce unemployed relief fund. The Chamber of Commerce, through its executive committee, yesterday voted to give the amount in full to the Junior League group, headed by Mrs. Cary T. Grayson. Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., secretary of the chamber, said that the organization also will give $1,500 to the league upon its expected receipt from the store within a few days as an added donation.

Four Women Witnesses As Six Are Electrocuted

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Six Negroes were electrocuted in the South Carolina Penitentiary early today for the murder of two Lexington County white men.

Electrocution of six men at one time set a record here, the greatest number previously being five, in 1916. Four women were admitted as spectators.

VOLLBEHR WINS BIBLE FEES CASE

Justice Adkins Decides Against Commission Stanfield Sought.

Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, noted collector, of Berlin, Germany, who recently sold to the Library of Congress, his famous collection of incunabula, including the Gutenberg Bible printed during the fifteenth century, will not be compelled to pay $150,000 commission to Otto M. Stanfield, New York City broker, for the latter's alleged efforts in obtaining passage of the bill authorizing the purchase. This was decided yesterday by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Supreme Court.

The famous collection was delivered last summer to the Library of Congress, following passage of the Collins bill. Immediately afterward Stanfield filed his suit against Vollbehr, claiming he had been promised a 10 per cent commission if the collection was sold.

Vollbehr, in defense, declared that the passage of the Collins bill was not due to the efforts of Stanfield, and asserted that Representative Ross Collins, of Mississippi, father of the bill, had never heard of Stanfield. It was asserted that the representative introduced the bill solely for the purpose of having the collection in the Library of Congress.

While Dr. Vollbehr valued his collection at $3,000,000 he asserted several years ago that he would sell it to the Library of Congress for one-half of that sum. Under the Collins bill $1,500,000 was paid for the collection.

Charles H. Strong, of New York City, assisted the law firm of Peele, Ogilby & Lesh in defense of Vollbehr.

REED ENACTS SCENE AT TRIAL IN SLAYING

Former Senator Performs Mock Struggle Before Jury Trying Woman.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Grasping a pistol in his hand, former Senator James A. Reed enacted a dramatic scene before the jury in the murder trial of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett here today in his effort to show that the defendant accidentally killed her husband, John G. Bennett, following a bridge game quarrel.

The silver-haired Reed, known as a relentless prosecutor, but now in the role of a defense attorney, performed a mock struggle with J. Francis O'Sullivan, associate counsel.

From Deputy Coroner Stanley M. Hall, State witness, Reed drew a statement, as the result of his pantomime, that the two bullets that ended Bennett's life might have been fired accidentally during a struggle with Mrs. Bennett.

Dr. Hall has testified Bennett was shot just below the left arm and in the back. He identified the blood-stained and powder-marked polo shirt worn by Bennett. Mrs. Bennett broke down and wept as the shirt was passed among the jury.

The deputy coroner, under questioning by Reed, would not hazard an opinion as to whether the powder marks proved the shots were fired at close range as contended by the defense, in contrast to the State's theory that Bennett was shot as he attempted to leave the Bennett apartment while his wife pursued him.

Mrs. Frances Trowbridge, policewoman, who remained in the police matron's room with Mrs. Bennett after the slaying, quoted the defendant as telling her:

"I shot him. He slapped me. I got the gun from my mother's room and followed him into the den and saw him packing his grip. I shot him."

George R. Wodoman, patrolman, testified he found Mrs. Bennett, weeping hysterically, on her knees beside her husband's body.

The witness said Mrs. Bennett exclaimed, "Jack, why did you do it? Why did you do it?" and later remarked, "If Jack's gone I want to go, too."

William S. Reid, a neighbor, testified he rushed to the scene and picked up the pistol at the request of Mrs. Charles Hoffman, one of the bridge players, who expressed fear Mrs. Bennett would take her own life.

After considerable argument Mrs. Annie Rice, half-sister of the slain man, was permitted to testify for the State.

Mrs. Rice said she had visited Mrs. Bennett after the death of her brother and said, "You told Brother Tom when he visited you you didn't know why you did this. But, Myrtle, you do know why you did."

She quoted Mrs. Bennett as replying, "Yes, Annie, no one knows but me and my God, and after this is all over and you find out, you will not be so bitter."

7 INDICTED BROKERS USED CLERIC'S NAME

Film "Racket" Promoters Found Giving Bishop Shahan's Signature.

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The Federal grand jury today indicted two women and five men on charges of using the mails to defraud in selling stock in the National Diversified Corporation, a concern which purported to promote production of "clean and religious films."

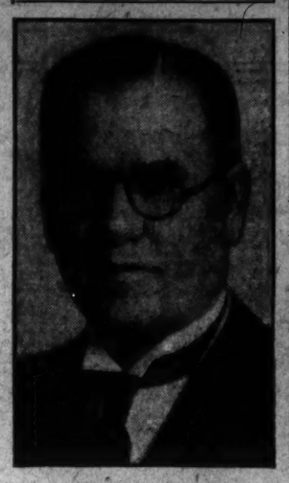
According to George J. Mintzer, assistant United States attorney, the corporation took in more than $2,000,000 from 400 Catholic priests and 6,000 laymen, paying dividends from principal as long as the money was flowing in.

Mr. Mintzer said that without authorization the promoters used in their stock selling campaign the names of Alfred E. Smith, Cardinal Hayes of New York, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, Bishop Shahan, of Washington, long president of the Catholic University, and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Those indicted are Otto E. Goebel, Frank J. Matre, Thomas A. Lynn, Elizabeth M. Flautt, Irene C. Flautt, James Casidy and Jerome D. Kline. Kline, Mr. Mintzer said, used the name of Kane when doing "high pressure" sales work among Irish Catholics and his own name when addressing Germans.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie said he wanted to make it clear that no priests nor any of the prominent laymen whose names were used were in any way culpable. "The boldest racketeering venture that has ever been pulled at the expense of persons with religious and moral ideals," he called the scheme.

RECEIVES CALL



DR. N. P. PATTERSON,
associate minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, has returned from a trip to California, where he has received a call to become minister of the First Presbyterian Church of San Jose. Dr. Patterson will not leave here, however, until early fall.

Al Smith Arrives At Raskob's Home

Wife Accompanies Former Governor En Route to North Carolina.

Centerville, Md., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and Mrs. Smith arrived here tonight for a week-end visit at the home of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith arrived at Wilmington late today and were met there by Miss Betty Raskob. Mr. Smith was reported fatigued by the trip and orders were given that no calls be answered at the Raskob estate until tomorrow morning.

Mr. Smith plans to leave the Raskob home, Mosley Hall, Sunday night for Raleigh, N. C., where Monday afternoon he is to address a joint session of both branches of the North Carolina Legislature. He has been invited also to address the Georgia General Assembly, before its adjournment.

U. S. Is Held Primarily Best Market for Goods

Chicago, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The market for American goods, Dr. Julius Klein told Midwest manufacturers today, is still primarily in the United States and not in the export field.

The Assistant Secretary of Commerce, addressing the foreign and domestic trade convention of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, said the consuming power of this country "at its lowest is greater than that of any other country at its highest," and expressed the "devout hope" that "prosperity for us shall never be heavily dependent on our trade with other nations."

TELEPHONE TO CALL PEOPLE TO CHURCH

Georgetown Lutheran Members to Invite Attendance in Evening.

Every minister in Washington is confronted with the problem of how he can get a congregation into his church on Sunday evening. Most of the churches which have a night service draw but a scant hand full of worshipers. A few of them, however, had found a way to stimulate interest and keep it alive. Among the few there are several notable instances.

Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, which has 5,000 members, and New York Avenue Presbyterian Church usually are filled to the doors, and at the latter there is an overflow meeting in the basement where the people hear the services through amplifiers from the auditorium above. Even with their large memberships both are more or less of strangers' churches, and also they draw attendance from other churches which either have no night service, or whose members wish to visit around and indulge in the old Scotch custom of sermon tasting.

One Methodist Church, Calvary, on Columbia road, near Sixteenth, the Rev. Mark Depp, minister, turned the matter of getting a crowd over to the men's committee or club, which has been doing a very good job of it. At this church the laymen take charge of the service, all but the preaching, and that is done by the pastor in a fifteen-minute discourse.

Will Use Telephone.

morrow is trying a somewhat different

Georgetown Lutheran Church to-plan. The pastor, the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, turned the problem over to the various societies and organizations of the church, and they have agreed to undertake to get every member of the congregation and their families out tomorrow night. Each organization is under a pledge to attend in full, and from them has come a telephone committee which will be on the phone all of Sunday afternoon, calling up those who do not belong to the societies, and extend an invitation to come. This, of course, is a one-time affair, but it may eventuate into an every Sunday-night habit.

Out at Petworth Methodist Church a plan that rather embraces both of these has been working so successfully that the Sunday evening attendance equals in size that of the morning. When the present pastor, the Rev. R. L. Wood, came here a year ago he found the usual baker's dozen coming out at night, and he told his people that if he couldn't get a crowd there would be no evening service. The evening service has not been stopped.

Being country-bred and having served country churches in Maryland and West Virginia, Mr. Wood believed his congregation at least had some of the traditions of old-time country Methodist churches, and so he harked back to those traditions for his inspiration.

As a sample of what he is doing to vary the service, Mr. Wood has secured for tomorrow evening the Little Symphony Orchestra of the University of Maryland, which will give a program of classical selections, under the direction of Prof. B. Louis Goodyear. Bach, Wagner, Rubenstein and Gounod are the composers drawn on for this program. But it will not supplant the "Heart Warming Song Service," which is the magnet used by Mr. Wood to draw the people to his church.

This service of song is the inspiring cause of the big thing that men at Calvary Methodist Church are doing. For half an hour preceding the regular service, Dr. H. M. Dudley, of American University, conducts a song service from the hymn book, the congregation doing the singing. Tomorrow night the songs will be illustrated with colored lantern slides, which is an innovation that will be studied closely.

Mr. Depp has been preaching a sermon built around one of the hymns, which the congregation selected by ballot. For March he will not do this, but will select his topics with an appropriateness to the Lenten season. His topic tomorrow night is "Windows of the Soul."

At Wallace Memorial.

In the Petworth Community the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, which is the home of the group of radio singers, "The Sunshine Carolers," has had no trouble drawing a crowded house at the evening service. Its radio programs over one of the Washington stations have won the hearts of people everywhere, and consequently many strangers come to hear them sing in their church. The minister, the Rev. C. E. Hawthorne, seizes the opportunity to enforce the old battle cry of Christianity, "How Can You Neglect So Great a Salvation."

The young people of Mount Vernon Place Church will have charge of the services tomorrow night, and, they, too, will have a service of song immediately preceding the regular service. Mr. Shure, the director, will lead the music. He will tell the story of the hyms before they are sung. The Mellotone Male Quartet, of Takoma Park, will give a group of special numbers. The junior pastor, the Rev. H. R. Deal, will preach.

GLEE CLUB OF G. W. IS CONTEST WINNER

Singers Victors in Annual Mid-Atlantic Competition; Decision Unanimous.

Already National champions, the Glee Club of George Washington University last night added further to its laurels by winning again the annual Mid-Atlantic Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest by night before an audience of more than 1200 persons, at the Shoreham Hotel. They club competed with the Glee Club from Catholic University, and the decision as to the winner was unanimous.

Last year the club won the national contest in New York City, a contest in which more than 200 American Universities and colleges were represented. It was its first entry into the contest. This year members will go to New York again to defend their title in Steinway Hall, on March 14.

Judges for the contest last nigth were Clyde B. Atchison, of the Interstate Commerce Commission; E. Hutzel, prominent in local music circles, and Mrs. Carl R. Chindbroom, wife of the Representative from Illinois.

Veteran Wins $10,000 Award.

A jury in city court, Baltimore, yesterday awarded George Harrison, 55-year-old veteran of the Spanish and World Wars, who is living temporarily at Walter Reed Hospital, $10,000 damages for injuries he received February 22, 1922, when his foot was crushed under a W. B. & A. electric car at Belmonte, Md. The plaintiff had asked $50,000.

"Weathermen" at Arizona Telescope Map "Resorts" on Distant Mars

Scientists Still Plugging Away at Mystery of Planet

Now, while the red planet is closest to earth, the 24-inch telescope nightly swings toward Mars, directed by E. C. Slipher, Lowell astronomer, who is making the Martian studies his life work.

There are four divisions of these observations. The chief study is change of seasons and all related matters. They are more regular on Mars than on earth. Spring, summer, winter and fall arrive always within two or three days of the same date.

It is suspected the general absence of large bodies of water gives this great regularity to the Martian calendar, which has long been well recorded.

Other observations will carry forward the making of a complete photographic record which began in 1905. This affords a valuable permanent record of the planet throughout the years.

Another will record temperatures by regional readings, not only for zones such as temperate or torrid, but figuratively country by country—if there are national boundaries on Mars.

These readings are made with a thermocouple, an instrument capable of recording the heat from a single star too faint for the eye to see. This is done by Dr. C. O. Lampland.

The temperature readings confirm previous evidence by Dr. Percival Lowell that Mars alone among planets shows undoubted signs of a climate like earth's.

Mars reflects only 15 per cent of the sun's light, compared with 50 per cent reflection by the earth, and this accounts for Mars absorbing about the same amount of heat, although approximately 40,000,000 miles further from the sun.

The fourth work is analysis of Mars' light through a spectroscope which breaks up light into its wave lengths, or colors and shows what substances are involved in the reflection. This is one method of detecting water and oxygen.

Thus far no great differences from earth's air have been observed, except as Lowell many times noted, the atmosphere is less dense on Mars.

The presence of this Martian atmosphere is not merely a scientific deduction. For more than a quarter of a century clouds have been observed and measured by Lowell and others at Flagstaff, where sometimes they have been seen as high as 15 to 17 miles above the planet's surface.

One such "storm" lasted through four nights of observing in 1922 and covered more than 300,000 square miles.

Martian clouds hang higher than earth's probably because the lesser gravitation pull on Mars does not compress the atmosphere so closely.

The "canals" still are mysteries, but the observations indicate strongly that they may be ribbons of vegetable growth.

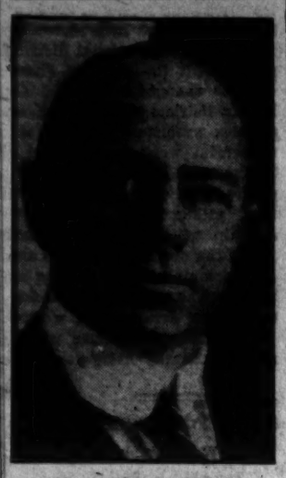
IN CHARLESTON



DR. JAMES H. TAYLOR, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, who is in Charleston to preach a bicentennial sermon.

Taylor to Preach In Charleston, S. C.

Capital Pastor Is Honored at Bicentennial of Old Church.

Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, will be in Charleston, S. C., tomorrow to preach the bicentennial anniversary sermon of the First Presbyterian Church. He was born in that church and grew up in it and entered the ministry from it.

This church was organized in 1731 and for years has been known as the Scotch Presbyterian Church, since the ministers of the church were from Scotland. The church building, which is an imposing structure of colonial architecture, is situated on Meeting and Tradd streets and stands in the midst of a large burying ground. Many of the old prerevolutionary churches of Charleston had their own burying ground adjacent.

The first white child to be buried in this church yard was a member of the Witherspoon family when this family came to the Carolinas about the time of the organization of this church. For many years this church was an independent Presbyterian church and did not unite with Presbytery of Charleston until in the eighties.

Dr. Freeman to Preach At Cathedral Sunday

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman will preach at the People's Evensong Service tomorrow at 4 o'clock in the Bethlehem Chapel. This service will be broadcast by radio over Station WMAL.

Lenten lectures next week in the Bethlehem Chapel at 4:30 o'clock following evensong will include: The Rev. John W. Gummere on Monday, subject, "Faith and Sacrament;" the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, on Wednesday—subject, "Isaiah's Vision and Ours;" and Canon Raymond L. Wolven on Friday—subject, "The Teaching of the Prayer Book."

Luther Place Memorial To Add New Members

At the 11 o'clock service at Luther Place Memorial Church tomorrow, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, the pastor, will receive another large group of new members into the fellowship of the congregation, bringing the total adult accessions since April 1 up to approximately 385.

At the same time he will announce the forming of another class to be received at Easter, with a dozen candidates already having expressed their intention of joining at that time.

Will Address Central Mission.

Talma L. Smith, will be the speaker at the service tomorrow night at 7:45 in the chapel of the Central Union Mission at 613 C street northwest.

DR. LUCEY TO SPEAK IN CATHOLIC HOUR

"Christ and Law" Is Topic; 28 Friars in Brown to Feature Procession.

The Rev. Francis E. Lucey, of Georgetown University, will speak tomorrow on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, which is broadcast every Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Father Lucey, who spoke on "Christian Self-Denial" on the preceding Sunday, will preach on "Christ and Law." Father Hurney will preside at the service and will be celebrant at benediction.

The soloists of the service will be Miss Florence Yocum and Mrs. Agnes Whelan McLaughlin, assisted by the Immaculate Conception choir, under the direction of Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard.

The blessing of the sick and the solemn Lourdes procession, which are featured in every first Sunday of the month service, will be observed. The procession is a colorful ceremony composed of 28 Friars of the Atonement in their brown habits, high school girls in blue hoods and white dresses, and sanctuary boys in blue and white cassocks, carrying specially designed lanterns.

The monthly meeting of the Aloysian round table discussion group will be held at the clubhouse, 47 I street northwest, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Current events and everyday problems affecting the Catholic laity will be discussed and questions received during the past month will be answered.

A program of unusual interest has been prepared and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend. Mrs. Frank O'Hara is the discussion leader.

Dr. Sherman to Speak At Chapel Tomorrow

Through Mrs. Mabel F. Roby, educational director, the Church of the Covenant and First Presbyterian Church invites the Sunday School Workers Association of the Presbytery to hold its monthly meeting in their church on Wednesday evening, March 11.

The Rev. H. H. Sherman, executive secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will be the speaker of the evening at 7 o'clock following the worship service and dinner. Dr. Sherman's subject will be "Can a Church Win Its Young People?"

Healing of Blind Topic of Service

"The Healing of the Man Born Blind" will be the subject of a talk to be given by Miss Alice Burton at the Healing Mission service to be held at 10:30 next Tuesday morning at the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest. The talk is the first of a series to be given during Lent.

The St. Stephen's Prayer Circle will meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the Chapel of the Incarnation.

The Tested Peace

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." John xiv:27.

PEACE is the bequest of Christ to troubled souls everywhere. Spoken to His disciples in the hour when He was preparing them for His death on the cross, these words have become the heritage of those whose lives have known trouble and distress.

There is no word more misunderstood than "peace" as it is used here. To many it means the absence of disturbing things, the calm which is not disturbed by things hurtful, the removal of all sources of worry or perplexity.

But to Jesus Christ, peace meant something more than this. The peace He bequeathed to the world had been tested in the dark hours of His life. It was the peace that sustained Him when friends were leaving Him, and foes were threatening. It was the peace that kept Him at the last supper, went with Him through the false trial, enabled Him to face the scourging, and made Him brave to endure the crown of crowns. It was the peace that made it possible for Him to comfort a thief on the cross, and with His last breath pray for those who had put Him to death.

We need such a peace as that. For we can not escape from the daily problems of life. Day by day we must face work and worry, sin and sickness, temptation and trouble, with but little strength within and no help without. Our need is for something that will sustain us, and keep us unafraid in the midst of our peculiar difficulties.

And Jesus has promised us that we may have just that which was His stay and help. "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you."

BONUS AND NEW TAXES.

The Senate's vote overriding the President's veto, following similar action by the House, now imposes the veterans' bonus upon the country. About 200,000 veterans are in need, but 2,500,000 veterans who are not in need are given an opportunity denied to other citizens—an opportunity to borrow from the United States Treasury at less than the current rates of interest.

Insofar as the needy veterans are relieved, this law can not be criticized. Such veterans have first call upon the gratitude and generosity of the United States.

The extension of this special privilege to veterans who are employed, including thousands in permanent Government positions, is a discrimination against all other citizens of the Republic. It is a gross misuse of the tapayers' money which can not be justified by grandiloquent speeches of legislators who try to curry favor with the veterans.

The true friends of the World War veterans are those who stand for generous relief of all the needy among them, and against unwise disbursements which tend to discourage the early return of prosperity to all citizens, including veterans. The bonus law will have the effect of increasing interest rates and thereby slowing down enterprise. A loss of work among veterans and others may result. President Hoover states that this will be the effect of the extravagant lendings to those who are not in need. The Treasury must go out and borrow huge sums with which to lend money to veterans. It must pay higher interest rates upon these borrowings than would be the case otherwise; and in addition to bonus borrowings it must borrow several billions for refunding purposes. The added interest upon these borrowings will run for the entire life of the Government bonds. Taxpayers must foot the bill. The revenues not being sufficient, new taxes must be levied. Since there is an enormous shrinkage of revenue due to depressed conditions in 1930, every taxpayer must be prepared to face a fresh burden. So much for the financial results of the bonus operation.

The most offensive feature of this legislation is the unblushing hypocrisy of certain legislators who have posed as special champions of the veterans. No soldier who faced the deadly realities of battle can feel complimented when he is made the object of slimy flattery by individuals who would use public money with which to buy his favor. Many men in the House and Senate voted for the bonus honestly believing that it is a proper method of distributing Treasury funds already allocated to veterans' certificates. They convinced themselves that the loans are merely an anticipation of payments that would be made later in any event. But other legislators, the most blatant of the lot, revealed by their remarks that they fully understood the costly consequences of their action, and were voting for their own advantage. They were willing to see extra taxes saddled upon all the people for the sake of winning the political support of the veterans.

Reports from all parts of the country indicate that President Hoover's stand against unnecessary loans of public money to veterans already employed is supported by the public. The people want business activity, not the discriminatory lending of tax money to individuals who are not in need. The President's exposure of the inevitable workings of the bonus project is known to be accurate by business men everywhere. The majorities in Congress have set up a stumbling block at a time American industry needs encouragement. The country will overcome this obstacle, as it has all others, but when the hour comes for enacting legislation to increase the income tax there will be few legislators ready to boast that they voted for the bonus.

EUROPE MENACED BY RUSSIA.

The European grain conference in Paris this week attracted unusual interest because it was another attempt by Aristide Briand to bring the nations of Europe to a common economic understanding. Having failed to establish a United States of Europe on either political or economic lines, M. Briand took advantage of the business and agricultural depression to make another attempt at some kind of accord. But this conference, like those which preceded it, merely brought out the insurmountable obstacles in the way of European cooperation.

The net result of the agricultural conference was a resolution "favoring" the disposal of surplus stocks of grain. The delegates found it impractical to sign an agreement which would accomplish that aim; so they merely made a moral gesture and left each State free to act in accordance with its own best interests.

Soviet Russia is the most formidable obstacle in the way of a solution for Europe's agricultural problems. Russia is supplying 25 per cent of the wheat imported into the western European countries. As a result a huge surplus has been accumulated in Poland, Roumania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Jugoslavia. These states can not hope to dispose of their surplus or their new crops so long as the Soviet is shipping wheat into western Europe at prices below the world market quotations. There is every indication that Russia will increase its exports during the coming few years, and the problem will be aggravated.

The conference studiously avoided mentioning this Red menace. Opposition to the importation of slave-grown wheat from Russia seems to be the most logical basis on which European grain-growing nations could cooperate. Soviet Russia threatens to demoralize the agriculture and industry of every European country if the products of forced labor are not barred. Instead of recognizing this fact the federationists of Europe are trying to dispose of the menace by ignoring it.

Russia is the key to all schemes for European union. No economic federation including Russia could succeed without communizing Europe; and none can succeed without Russia, unless it takes steps to protect itself from the common enemy. The nations of western Europe may be driven into some form of unity to resist the encroachment of the Soviet upon their markets.

PARKWAY SHOULD GO FORWARD.

Development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, which will beautify the Potomac from Great Falls to Mount Vernon, is being delayed by legislative red tape. Congress has appropriated $3,000,000 for this improvement, but the act provided that the sum must be matched by equal amounts from Maryland and Virginia. Both States contemplate participation in this project, but the Legislature of Virginia has not yet acted. As a result, the entire development is being held up.

Bills are pending in both the Senate and House to authorize the Government to go ahead with the work in spite of Virginia's delay. The Senate bill was called up Thursday night, but was passed over on objection of Senator Copeland in behalf of some other senator. It is understood that these objections have now been withdrawn, so that nothing stands in the way of the measure. The House bill may be called up and passed at any time. In the interests of getting this development under way during the Washington bicentennial year and of adding to the funds that will be available for the creation of jobs, it is to be hoped that Congress will not overlook this measure in the last-minute rush.

THE OIL HOLDUP.

Sulking over the failure of their pet measure to subsidize small oil well owners of the Middlewest at heavy expense to all users of oil and gasoline in this country, the Kansas delegation did not attend the Republican caucus which was held Thursday to decide upon the organization of the next House.

It was the first step, of course, in a campaign of intimidation in these days of narrow majorities. Kansas representatives would force an indefensible measure upon the Nation under the implied threat that they would not lend their votes to reelect Speaker Longworth and the present organization as decided upon by the caucus.

An oil embargo would tend to exhaust domestic resources of petroleum and place an unwarranted burden on millions of consumers of oil products. There can be no excuse for asking that gasoline users should be penalized hundreds of millions in order to make tiny wells in Kansas profitable.

Some remedial measures are needed to ease the situation of the small producers of Kansas and Oklahoma, but they can be devised without levying tribute upon 24,000,000 motorists.

EQUALIZING HOUSE MEMBERSHIP.

The last threat against equal representation for the States in the House of Representatives subsided yesterday when the House census committee voted to lay aside all proposals to disturb the reapportionment made by the last session of Congress. Two bills before the committee would have increased the membership in the House to assuage the wounded feelings of those States which lose representatives under the 1930 reapportionment. Another would have postponed the reapportionment for two years.

For ten years Congress defied the constitutional mandate to redistribute seats in the House on the basis of population. No one expected that the losing States could muster sufficient strength to perpetuate that political injustice any longer. But strange things happen in the closing days of a session. Apprehension lest the House vote to expand its size or maintain its present unrepresentative allocation of seats was not entirely removed until the census committee took a definite stand against such action.

The work of restoring the House to a strict representative basis is now in the hands of the States. States which gain representatives will create new congressional districts, which means that all the existing district boundaries will be changed. Losing States must extend their districts over larger areas. This is a complex problem. It requires a good deal of careful work on the part of State Legislatures.

When once the country is adjusted to the new allocation, attempts to enlarge the House membership will probably command no support. It is the contracting that hurts. When once it is accomplished the losing agricultural States may be expected to reconcile themselves to the new arrangement without complaint. Fortunately, the House will be reapportioned automatically every ten years hereafter.

THE NEW YORK WORLD.

The New York World expired yesterday, and its readers will mourn the passing of an old friend. From the time when Joseph Pulitzer raised it to a splendid position among American journals the World maintained its editorial prestige and its reputation for news enterprise and impartiality. Changing conditions brought financial losses which finally became too great to be borne, and at a forced sale the sons of Joseph Pulitzer brought to an end the institution which their father fondly believed he had made indestructible.

The Democratic party has reason to regret the extinction of the New York World. It was an able spokesman of the Democratic cause. It was vigilant in the public interest, especially with regard to the affairs of New York City. The World held the respect of its political adversaries because of its candor and good temper. A newspaper's character is as distinct as that of an individual, and the steady outpourings of a reliable journal may be likened to the friendly beams of a lighthouse, which no man wishes to see extinguished.

Out in Nevada they are feeding jackrabbits to the unemployed. Why not employ them in chasing the rabbits?

If the lame duck sessions are abolished how can disabled legislative veterans qualify for Federal jobs?

THAT CHERRY TREE

From the Boston Transcript.

We are sometimes sorry that Weems' story of Washington and the cherry tree has never been accepted as an authentic document. There are, indeed, good grounds for believing it to be true. Nobody seems to have disputed it in Weems' time. Nobody has ever yet disproved it. Nobody has ever pointed out the tree, standing unscotched in the garden of the paternal homestead on the Rappahannock. If the young George didn't cut it down it should, in the course of nature, have lived to a ripe old age, and its wood then have been preserved in the shape of napkin-rings, trenchers and highboys, souvenirs of Washington's respect for his father's fruit and fear of his father's cane. It is the strange disappearance of the tree that makes us suspect that George did, indeed, lay his small ax to the root of it with disastrous results.

As to the remarks attributed to the guilty boy when his irate father appeared upon the scene, we must admit that they are more Weemsian than Washingtonian. If the anecdote has any foundation in fact the chances are that the boy was soundly thrashed, for it was the practice in those days in well-regulated families to flog first and listen to excuses afterward—a wise custom, unfortunately fallen into abeyance in our supposedly enlightened age.

But there is another reason why we cling obstinately to the Weemsian legend: its rejection by later and fussier biographers carries the implication that Washington was not invariably truthful. Yet all that we know of him lends color to the essential fidelity of the Weems portrait. Always, in matters of vital concern, even if it came to swearing to his own hurt, Washington scorned lying and subterfuge. In others, of slight importance, or which involved merely his own comfort and convenience without injury to others, he was not always so strict with himself. He could equivocate if chivalry or good manners made it expedient; but, even so, the occasions when he fell below the Weemsian standard were rare. Indeed, the only record we have that he ever stooped to such a moral peccadillo, is to be found in the entry which he made himself in his diary under date of April 15, 1791.

In the spring of that year he made a tour through the Southern States, and everywhere was received with rejoicing and social festivities—dinners, receptions, balls. On nearing a town he was always met by a committee of citizens, who formed a cavalcade to escort him to his lodgings and accompanied him for some miles on his way when he departed next morning. Flattering as this attention was, the distinguished traveler did not find it invariably to his liking, for we find him noting in the diary, following his stop at Petersburg, Va.:

> Having suffered very much by the dust yesterday, and finding that parties of Horse, and a number of other Gentlemen, were intending to attend me part of the way today, I caused their inquiries respecting the time of my setting out, to be answered that I should endeavor to do it by 8 o'clock; but I did it a little after 5, by which means I avoided the inconveniences above mentioned.

There may be some who will regret that Washington stooped to this quibbling, or at any rate that he recorded it in his diary. But others, we are sure, will delight in the mental picture of that august figure, up with the earliest pipe of half-awakened birds, hurrying into his clothes, whispering instructions to his servants, tip-toeing down the stairs, fortifying himself with a hastily-snatched bit of breakfast and then rolling away to the dustless enjoyment of the open road, perhaps chuckling to himself as he thought of his assiduous courtiers still snug in their beds.

Oh, Yes?

POST HASTE.

The Chile reception of the British princes is evidence of her warm appreciation of the proper way to fill a royal flush.

"Now, Dinah, you tell the jury how it was that you came to assault the plaintiff with a hatchet."

"I couldn't find the ax."

Queen Mary's anatomical decrees in connection with court costumes are consistent. The "lowered waist line" at least allows greater nourishment capacity necessary to plump up that "rounded decolletage."

Yes, we know, professor, that puns are the lowest form of wit. That is the reason why we've never suggested that with all the recent reductions this will soon be a well-bread town.

Mrs. Lollyprop laments that she is having such a time with her course in mnemonics: "Such a Barnum—I mean Fourpaugh—I made last evening! I was all set for a Pacific coast senator's name and then I called him Pickle."

You can read World War history pretty thoroughly and not find any big job better done than that of Gen. Pershing, who stood single-handed and won against the tremendous pressure that was brought to bear upon him and upon the Washington administration, to scatter American soldiers among the allied armies; in which case there never would have been an American Army.

Yes, Arabella, we are called upon to give advice to the lovelorn and in such cases as yours. It is always the same—all men are devils; don't have anything to do with them.

Answering numerous telephone calls, fear that with the best efforts of officials it will not be possible to begin paying the bonus this morning; but it won't be long.

The battleship survived the recent battle of Panama. Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, says that any assertion that the plane can take the place of the battleship is piffle.

A late special report direct from London informs us that the "rounded decollete" refers to the dress and not to the contents. Well, some of us like them both that way.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

CONTRAST.

One thought she wanted diamond rings,
Rich opera cloaks and pretty things,
Tinctures and perfumes for her hair,
And hats and shoes and trinkets fair.

She thought her life would happier be
If it were trimmed with luxury,
Believing peace of mind is born
Of gewgaws fashioned to be worn.

But lived a woman down the street
Whose life with jewels was complete,
For every sort of trinket known
Was hers to wear and hers to own.

And yet she grieved from day to day
And would have flung her wealth away
From him she'd married to have heard
A truly sympathetic word.

Where love and understanding dwell,
Though wealth is absent, all is well,
But it's hell-fire to sit alone
With jewels you're allowed to own.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

Thanks for the newspaper clipping. It was worth a chuckle, and made the day brighter. But you must'nt take too seriously the witty things written in criticism of Coolidge and his literary efforts.

It is the fashion just now to poke fun at all of the old standards and ideals, and the great authors of the day are the ones that call every established truth a platitude and see good only in ideas that are new.

If you read the work of these fellows, and you can hardly escape it, their caustic wit and facile plausibility will fool you unless you stop to analyze what they say.

Their ardent supporters and mimics are young people, for young people aren't as wise as they will be, and any smart Aleck who hurls adjectives at the established order of things seems to a hero to them.

Don't let the smart boys fool you, Honey.

When they damn truth by calling it a platitude, stop and reflect that every epigram becomes a platitude when the world gets accustomed to it and every brilliant discovery a truism when everybody knows it.

There isn't anything new under the sun. Every true thing that is written has been written many times before, so that it must seem tiresome platitude to one who has read everything. But the people who have read everything are few, and the ordinary reader finds in ancient truths a great deal that seems original and new to him. The sunset is very old, but think how wonderful it would seem to one who had spent his life in a cave.

The smart-Aleck writers waste much ink in praise of "new ideas," but they never tell us what the new ideas are. I read their work carefully, and I assure you I haven't found a single new idea in the whole of it.

Their fault is that they can't distinguish between "new ideas" and idiocies.

If I should write that all statesmen are pirates, all vices a blessing to mankind and all Americans inferior to Berlin street sweepers, I might boast of giving the world new ideas, but I would be guilty of absurd untruths.

These cynical "young intellectuals," who seem so superior because they berate and denounce the world so wittily, succeed in giving us new ideas only by giving us false ones.

Truth is old. Many thousands of generations of men, equipped with minds much like ours, conceived and expressed most of the ideas that we are capable of comprehending.

When somebody conceives a new idea that is sound, you can trust this wise old world to adopt it.

Meanwhile, keep a level head and don't despise old ideas merely because they are old. If they weren't pretty good, they wouldn't survive. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Democratic Dynamite.

New York Herald Tribune.

The drys of the Democratic party seem to be doing most of the worrying over the meeting of the national committee called by Chairman Raskob for the day after adjournment of Congress. Knowing his burning desire for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, they at once interpreted his proposed "discussion" of "plans and policies" as a determination to force a wet declaration.

The drys, after an intensive canvass, say the 98 members of the committee would line up in a ratio of about 60-40 against any declaration for repeal or revision. The smaller States have the same representation in the committee as the larger ones, which will cast many more votes in the convention. The chairman is not likely to want such a record vote. However, if they are sufficiently sure of their strength, some of the irreconcilable drys may seek to force the issue and bring about the defeat of a wet resolution. No doubt they will be incited by the ever-active lobby and corridor brigade of the professional dry organizations.

Having called the meeting for the avowed purpose of handling high explosives, Mr. Raskob must be prepared for a possible explosion which may widen the existing rift to the magnitude of a schism.

Failure to Maintain Navy.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Congress, which every one will be glad to see leave Washington a week from tomorrow has much to answer for. This refusal to take advantage of the unique opportunity offered by the London Naval Treaty will be regarded as a serious blunder. The British and the Japanese have agreed to curtail their naval programs during the life of the treaty while the United States builds up to parity with Great Britain and to a satisfactory basis of superiority to Japan. They are not likely to offer such sacrifices again.

Lo, the Poor Indian.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

The congressmen who want another appropriation to pay the Indians the third time for land ceded by them in Oklahoma, should note that New York, which was bought from the aborigines for a reputed consideration of $24, has an assessed valuation of $18,000,000,000.

Everything At Once.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

The country has had a high pressure area and a depression at the same time, a drought and a panic, and to make matters worse a Congress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

North Carolina Democrat Hates to See Hoover Beaten, but 1932 Is a Democratic Year.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you please be so kind as to attend the Raskob love feast and tell Mr. Raskob that, regardless of what the Southern senators say about the dry votes of the South for home consumption, the South will vote for the nominee in 1932 regardless of his wetness. The voters understand these fellows, and are not going to pay much attention to their soft soap to please preachers. The preachers are not going to carry the South in 1932.

Tell Mr. Raskob that a 73-year-old Democrat appreciates, along with the voters of North Carolina, his embalming the Democratic "corpse," and he hopes that some of the senators who are able to help pay the Democratic debt, but are now raising Cain for political home consumption, will come across like men and show their appreciation for what Mr. Raskob has done for the Democratic party.

Mr. Hoover is a fine man, but he will be snowed under by Franklin Roosevelt. I don't consider Jim Ham exactly presidential timber, even if he did rob a nice widow of $500,000 campaign expenses and then beat her by 700,000 votes. The man who would object to Franklin Roosevelt for President and Al Smith as his good-will Ambassador to England lacks horse sense. Al controls the Democratic party, but he is not a candidate. Therefore send him as Ambassador to some big post in Europe, and let him get the world in love with the United States, instead of hating us.

The Democrats can win in a walk in 1932, but if they fail to make good President Hoover will come back in 1936. I hate to see as good a man as Mr. Hoover defeated, but 1932 is 75 per cent Democratic.

Department of Justice Should Meet Senate's Attack Upon Chairman Smith.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The reported announcement of Attorney General Mitchell to the effect that Chairman Smith, of the Power Commission, will have to employ his own counsel at his own expense in the contest which the Senate has precipitated, will meet with general disfavor and disappointment throughout the Nation.

Chairman Smith was duly appointed to office and given his commission in accordance with the Constitution. Not a single voice has been raised in contradiction of this fact. But merely because Chairman Smith and two other members of the Power Commission in the exercise of their undisputed rights after they took office incurred the enmity of certain senators, the Senate undertook to recall these officials in a manner not provided by the Constitution. It therefore failed in this effort and in its madness precipitated the contest.

No lawyer of any consequence in this whole country will admit that the Senate has a just case. Still, the Senate insists upon testing the matter in the courts at the expense of the taxpayers. Certainly the taxpayers would much rather have their money paid out in defense of the clear provisions of the Constitution than in support of an attack upon them. It is therefore important that the office of the Attorney General leave no stone unturned and spare no expense in meeting this attack. It is clearly the duty of the Government to provide able counsel in this case.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Eureka! Solution of the Problem of How to Straddle on Prohibition!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read your "To Straddle or Not to Straddle" editorial with interest. Although written with reference to Senator McKellar's appeal to wet Democrats not to upset the party's applecart at the meeting of the national committee in Washington next week, it also suggests the prohibition dilemma of time-serving Republicans.

Pending the final word in party platforms, many Republican as well as Democratic leaders are in a state of uncertainty. Such a situation is not unusual in the political arena, but this time it is more than usually embarrassing as you point out in the case of the Democrats.

However, straddle-or-not-to-straddle leaders are somewhat clever in their dealings with the masses and perhaps they will not be such objects of sympathy as one might think when they become thoroughly familiar with the raised stitching of the formula: If you don't know where you stand on prohibition or are afraid to stand where you would like to stand, make yourself solid by a vigorous protest against the return of the corner grogshop. Marine Band Concerts at Barracks a Treat to Music Lovers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems like a queer twist in human nature which can cause music lovers to pay from $5 to $10 a seat to hear high-class music by out-of-town orchestras and yet neglect that which the Marine Band furnishes free of charge down at the Marine Barracks.

To me, whose preference is for simple melodies and march tunes, the Marine Band Orchestra concerts are a great treat, no matter what is played. I like the band's Wagner nights, when only Wagner is on the program, and as a result am beginning to appreciate "the music of the future."

The concerts at the Barracks are well attended by residents of the Navy Yard section, with occasional virtuosi from up-town, and I really consider the Marine Band a very important factor in the cultural life of the National Capital.

3 ACCUSED AS REDS, STRIKE CHIEFS, HELD

Woman, Two Men Detained as Officers Inquire as to Legality in U. S.

Boston, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Three alleged alien Communists, leaders in the recent Lawrence textile strike, were detained in the East Boston immigration station tonight as Federal authorities sought to determine the legality of their presence in the country.

Apprehension over the possibility that sympathizers might find in the Government's action an occasion for a demonstration caused the immigration commissioner, Anna C. M. Tillinghast, to ask for a police guard for the station and for her home.

The three, who were taken into Federal custody at Lawrence and brought here by Inspector George Parker, are Edith Berkman, William Murdock and Pat Devine. They were held at the request of officials in Washington, who reserved the right to fix the amount of bail in which release might be granted.

The warrants for the arrest of Miss Berkman, Murdock and Devine, telegraphed from Washington, are based on Federal statutes dealing with organizations which advocate overthrow of the Government of the United States by force.

(Associated Press.)

Carl Robe White, Assistant Secretary of Labor in charge of immigration, said yesterday the issuance of warrants for the deportation of three organizers said to have been active in fostering the textile strike at Lawrence, Mass., was requested by the Boston office of the Immigration Service.

No information was in the possession of the department here as to either of the three persons—Edith Berkmann, William Murdock and Pat Devine. Mr. White said prior to any deportation order they will be given hearings and the facts reviewed by the Labor Department.

Brighter Business Auguries Gaining

Although Trade Increases Slightly, Outlook Is More Cheerful.

New York, Feb. 27. (A.P.).—The mercantile reviews report although the forward movement in trade has been slight, the number of encouraging auguries has increased. Bradstreets tomorrow will say:

"While a slight forward movement in the volume of wholesale and jobbing trade, as a whole, is visible in a summary of the week's reports, there are still a number of cities reporting that gains for spring or beyond are more largely in sentiment than in actual turnover. Signs of expansion are visible in the West Central and Far West, whereas Eastern and East Central markets show a slight quieting."

Dun's Review tomorrow will say:

"Two months of the new year have not been marked by any widespread rise in the level of commercial activity, yet the number of encouraging auguries has increased. Many contradictory reports give the general situation a confused appearance, but this is wholly natural after a world-wide economic upheaval."

GEORGE WINS SENORITAS' HEARTS

Representative Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, arose to defend the boulevard appropriation, inquiring if members knew of the difficulties of the route specified for the boulevard and that a good portion of a fill which was necessary had sunk into the river and the marsh territory through which the road was to pass. Representative Byrns replied that selection of the route was one of the mistakes which had been made.

Representative Snell (Republican), New York, protested against the cost of the boulevard and demanded that the conferees so arrange it that the House should have an opportunity to vote separately on the boulevard appropriation.

The House formally disagreed to all Senate amendments and asked for a conference with representatives of the Senate. Agreement having been reached between House and Senate conferees on the naval appropriations bill yesterday, the second deficiency bill is the last appropriation measure awaiting agreement.

Binoculars Stolen in Hospital.

Maj. Frank B. Chamberlain, attached to Walter Reed Hospital, yesterday reported to police that one pair of binocular field glasses were stolen from the hospital within the past two weeks.

Canadian soldiers during the World War, took his arrest and incarceration as a joke.

Arrested Thursday night at his home on Massachusetts avenue northwest near Sixteenth street, Sir Charles was forced to spend the night at the Willard Hotel guarded by Deputy United States Marshals John J. Clarkson and Harold Scott.

Bright and early yesterday morning, however, he was astir and was in the marshal's office with sealed and beribboned papers showing his side of the case.

6 Postmasters Win Senate Confirmation

Several Maryland postmasters were confirmed by the Senate in the course of a brief executive session yesterday. Those confirmed were:

Howard E. Dixon, Brunswick; Roscoe C. McNutt, Fallston; Richard B. Woodrum, Fort Howard; James W. Friend, Friendsville; George B. Gardner, Jessups; John S. Dean, North East.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

GANDHI AND VICEROY NEAR END OF PARLEY

Personal Negotiations Reach Limit; British View Is Held Problem.

New Delhi, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Negotiations which began so hopefully between Mahatma Gandhi and the Viceroy of India apparently have reached a point where the two men can go no further as individuals, and Gandhi tonight sat crosslegged in a circle of members of the congress working committee, talking over with them the things he has discussed with the viceroy.

Gandhi and Lord Irwin talked for three hours today and although neither would say what they had discussed, it was understood that they had failed to agree on certain outstanding demands in the Mahatma's program.

When someone asked him if things were going satisfactorily Gandhi said only, "it all depends." He disclosed, however, that he had called the working committee into session and indicated that he would probably see the viceroy again.

Tonight there was a general impression that the negotiations had not broken down, but that the deadlock could be solved only by the granting of certain concessions which London apparently is not ready to grant just now.

Among these, it was understood, are Gandhi's demands for an official investigation of charges of police brutality, concession of the right of peaceful picketing and boycott of British goods; the right of peasants to make their own salt, and the return of property confiscated for nonpayment of taxes.

Analostan Island Sale Is Prepared

Condemnation Proceedings Against Gas Company Taken in Hand.

Condemnation proceedings for Government acquisition of Analostan Island, owned by the Washington Gas Light Co., are being prepared by the Department of Justice under the active direction of Henry H. Glassie, special assistant to Attorney General Mitchell, it was learned yesterday.

The island, located in the Potomac River a short distance east of Key Bridge, would be taken over for inclusion in the park and playground system. This project for a long time has been under consideration by the Fine Arts Commission and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Public Utilities Commission records reveal that the island originally cost $72,785. The present valuation, according to Government officials, is in the neighborhood of $200,000. The gas company was said recently to have refused a considerably higher offer.

Theft From Fuel Firm Reported.

Richardson A. Baker, manager of the Crown Fuel Service Co., 917 Eleventh street northwest, yesterday reported to police that the office at that address was entered Thursday night, and that about $100 in checks and bills taken. A panel in a rear door was smashed to gain entry, he said.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Both Formerly Popular in Diplomatic Circles of Capital.

FROM distant Warsaw comes announcement of the marriage of Mr. Jan Stalinski, former second secretary of the Polish legation, before it was elevated to an embassy. Mr. Stalinski's bride is Mrs. Etelvina Rowe, of Washington.

Mr. Stalinski was attached to the legation in Washington for several years with Mr. Jan Ciechanowski, then Minister of Poland, and was among the most popular of Washington's diplomatic bachelors. Rumors that he was to marry Mrs. Rowe have been current since his return to the foreign office in Warsaw, but only now is the report verified. Mr. Stalinski and Mr. Frederic Knobel, former second secretary of the French embassy, had a charming house on Belmont road where they frequently entertained members of Washington's "smart set," at teas, dinners and delightful informal luncheons. They left Washington within a few months of each other, thus leaving a wide gap in their circle.

Since leaving more than a year ago, Mr. Stalinski has been in Warsaw, but Mr. Knobel has moved about surprisingly. From here he went to the French legation in Athens and then was transferred to the Quai d'Orsay in Paris. Last fall he was sent to Istanbul on a mission for his government, and is now again at the foreign office. He and Mr. Stalinski met in Paris several months ago and renewed their old friendship, and compared news which they had received from acquaintances in Washington.

Mme. Stalinska was recognized in Washington as a singer of talent, and was often the entertainer at various embassies and legations. Beautiful as well as accomplished, she was an asset to any party.

Last summer, with her mother and two children, she went to Europe for a trip of several weeks, taking an American automobile for a motor journey to Poland for the summer. Shortly after their return to Washington Mme. Stalinska again made the voyage to Europe and recently she and Mr. Stalinski were married. The children and her mother will go to Warsaw later, where they will make their home until Mr. Stalinska is again in a foreign post.

Mme. Stalinska is expected to pay a short visit to this country in the spring and will probably visit in Washington during her stay. Mr. Stalinski will not accompany her, as he is finishing up his work at the foreign office preparatory to a new period of foreign duty.

Senator's Daughter Visiting in Capital.

Senator and Mrs. Cameron Morrison have with them over the week-end their daughter, Miss Julia Angelia Morrison, who is a student at Sweet Briar College.

Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland, wife of the surgeon general of the Army, will be at home this afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock.

The counselors and secretaries of the Spanish Embassy, Portuguese Legation and the Latin-American missions gave the first of their monthly dinners last evening at the Shoreham. These dinners have recently been organized. The First Secretary of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Don Ricardo Jose Gomez Acebo, and the Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, Mr. Mauro de Freitas, were in charge of arrangements.

Lieut. Raymond F. Crist, jr., has been transferred from his post at Quantico and will sail Sunday, March 17, for Shanghai, China, for his new station. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Crist and their small son, Raymond 3d. Mrs. Crist was formerly Miss Mary Devereux, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryan Devereux.

Mr. R. L. McKellar, brother of Senator McKellar, and Mr. W. T. Shivell arrived yesterday morning from their home in Louisville, Ky., and are sojourning at the Willard.

Martha Mead To Be Bride of Boston Man

Engagement to William L. Hallowell Is Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jennings Mead, of 1026 Sixteenth street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha Montague Mead, to Mr. William Ladd Hallowell, son of Mrs. John W. Hallowell, of Boston.

Miss Mead was educated at Hills School, Great Barrington, Mass., and made her debut in New York four years ago. Mr. Hallowell attended Milton and Exeter Academies and the Harvard School of Business Administration.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Representative and Mrs. H. St. George Tucker are passing some time at their home in Lexington, Va., and plan to return to their suite at the Powhatan the first of next week.

Gen. Crosby Dinner Host Before Dance

Colemans Also Entertain Preceding Friday Class.

Several dinners preceded the Friday evening dancing class which held the fourth of its meetings this season at the Willard last night. The outstanding ones were those of the Commissioner of the District, Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby and Mrs. Crosby, and Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. Arch Coleman.

Gen. and Mrs. Crosby had as their guests Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Frederick H. Payne, Representative and Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John McA. Palmer, Brig. Gen. Francis LeJ. Parker, Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, Mrs. Robert Foy, Capt. and Mrs. Joel T. Boone, Col. Weitzel, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clifford.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman had as their guests Col. and Mrs. Fred Coleman, Col. and Mrs. Henry Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Tilton, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro, and Maj. and Mrs. Parker West.

Mme. von Lewinska also entertained a company at dinner. She recently took possession of her house on Sixteenth street, which was occupied by Senator and Mrs. Robert C. Bulkley, who are now living at the Shoreham.

Her guests were Representative and Mrs. James Strong, Representative and Mrs. Fred Purnell, Col. Charles Patterson, U. S. A., Mr. and Mrs. Peter Drury, Mr. Harmon Reeside, Miss Cordelia Reed, of Indiana; and Miss A. MacMullin, Mr. Charles M. Schwab, and Mr. H. Katz, all of New York.

Mrs. Joseph E. Washington will give a luncheon on Wednesday at the Willard, when the guests will include Mrs. Charles S. Deneen and Mrs. Sol Bloom.

Startling and pleasant is the news that Mr. Walter Schoellkopf, second secretary of the embassy at Madrid, has been ordered to Washington for duty in the State Department. Mrs. Schoellkopf only recently left the United States to rejoin her husband in Spain after a visit here, when she was the guest in the home of Mr. William Phelps Eno on N street. Mrs. Schoellkopf came here last fall to place her son, Walter, jr., in school. The Schoellkopfs own a charming house in Cleveland Park.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, will leave Washington Monday for Cumberland Island, off the coast of Georgia, where she will spend three weeks. Secretary Adams, in the meantime, will be in the Canal Zone for the annual maneuvers of the fleet.

America's Antiques Called Exhausted

Exposition Head Points to Europe as Source of "Old Things."

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Pretty nearly every highboy and lowboy and other articles of colonial American furniture has been hunted down by the antique buyers and venders, says E. F. Korbel, one of the organizers of the antique exposition which opened tonight at the Grand Central Palace.

But Europe is still a land of treasure, and there are enough undiscovered antiques there to stimulate oncoming generations.

Despite extensive shipments to the New World, the dismantling of entire castles and the removal, stick by stick and stone by stone, of a few of them, antique fanciers haven't begun to exhaust Europe's storehouses.

Spain is a particularly fruitful spot for travelers, he says. France and Italy are only slightly less combed. Several paneled rooms from ancient English houses have been reassembled. One, from "Ye Old Treaty House," at Uxbridge, Middlesex, has associations with Charles the First and Oliver Cromwell.

Empress in Japan Is Expecting Child

90,000,000 Subjects Await With Interest Tidings of Arrival.

Tokyo, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—An "interesting event" of paramount concern to the 90,000,000 subjects of the emperor of Japan is expected within a few days, for the birth of an infant that may become the sovereign of the empire should take place about March 10.

The Empress Nagako is about to present her consort, Emperor Hirohito, with a son or a daughter, and in the imperial palace preparations for the expected arrival have taken precedence over everything else.

Even if the baby is a girl there will be nation-wide rejoicing, but the celebrations will not be so extensive as if it is a prince to be welcomed.

Dr. Moncado to Attend Dinner Given by Friends

Dr. Hilario Camino Moncado, president of the Filipino Federation of America, will be given a banquet at the Willard tonight by friends of Philippine freedom in Washington.

Dr. Moncado is conducting a fight for independence for the Philippines and the limitation of insular immigration. Guests at the banquet will include Senator King, of Utah; Representative Dyer, of Missouri; Charles Edward Russell, author, and Clyde H. Tavenner, editor of the Philippine Republic.

Women House Members End Session With Achievement

Mrs. Florence Kahn Sponsors Bill for Bridge Over Bay, Edith N. Rogers Aided Cotton Trade With Navy Measure.

When Congress adjourns next Wednesday the women of the House of Representatives will go back to their constituents with good records of legislative achievement.

Mrs. Florence Kahn (Republican), California, has her name on the bill to build a $75,000,000 bridge across San Francisco Bay, which will connect her home city with Oakland. This is a State project of tremendous importance to California and San Francisco, but it had to have Federal sanction because San Francisco Bay is under War Department jurisdiction.

Mrs. Kahn also secured $250,000 for San Francisco from the new veterans' hospitalization appropriation and helped get a $5,000,000 dirigible base for her State. She startled a hearing before the military affairs committee, of which she is a member, by proposing that, since property owners adjoining West Point objected to allowing the Government to take over their land for expansion of the Military Academy, the academy should be moved to California and she would guarantee 18,000 acres of land, cost free, for its new location.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), Massachusetts, helped her constituents by inducing the Navy Department to advance its program for buying materials so that the cotton trade would be stimulated to the extent of a million dollars. For the veterans, in whom Mrs. Rogers is particularly interested, she helped secure the new hospitalization legislation as chairman of the hospitalization subcommittee of the veterans' committee.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, worked actively for the veterans' bonus and hospitalization legislation, and fought the birth control bill. She helped secure a new 3-cent carfare bill for school children of Washington, D. C., and supported Louisiana in have a new street in the National Capital named for that State.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen (Democrat), Florida, just mised getting her bill to establish a new national park in the Everglades. This was passed by the Senate and reported favorably by the House public lands committee, but failed to get by in the latter body. Mrs. Owen hopes for better luck next session. The lady from Florida also has been doing missionary work for her bill to establish a new department of home and child.

Mrs. Owen succeeded in getting a bill through the Senate to provide for a survey of the Florida area recently embargoed on account of the Mediterranean fruit fly, with the object of reimbursing fruit growers whose product was not infested but was a total loss because the Government ordered it destroyed.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt (Republican), New York, has spent considerably energy on a bill to help the blind by providing Braille books in the congressional and other public libraries. This carries an appropriation of $100,000.

Three of the other women representatives, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mrs. Pearl Oldfield and Mrs. Katherine Langley, will not come back to Congress next session.

Congressional Members Invited to Monroe Shrine

Members of the Senate and House have been invited to visit the James Monroe Law Office National Shrine at Fredericksburg, Va., and "Ash Lawn," Monroe's former home in Charlottesville, Va., tomorrow. The invitation was extended by Senator Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, and Representative S. Otis Bland, of the same State.

The James Monroe Law Office has been restored by Laurence Gouverneur Hoes, of Washington, who owns the shrine. The office is reputed to contain the largest existing collection of the personal possessions of the fifth president and his family. "Ash Lawn" is owned by Jay W. Johns, of Pittsburgh. It is situated in a grove of ash trees, adorned with a boxwood garden, planned and laid out by Monroe.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A NEW unit in the South, to be be known as the Dixie network, with WBT, Charlotte, N. C., as its key station, has just been formed by Columbia.

A majority of its programs will originate from the studios of WBT. Ten other stations already have been included in the chain: WWNC, Asheville; WGST, Atlanta; WBRC, Birmingham; WDOD, Chattanooga; KLRA, Little Rock; WREC, Memphis; WLAC, Nashville; WTOC, Savannah; WDSU, New Orleans, and WNOX, Knoxville.

Additional Southern stations which may soon become affiliated with the Dixie network, as announced by Columbia, are: WQAM, Miami; WDBO, Orlando; WDAE, Tampa; KRLD, Dallas; KTRH, Houston; KTSA, San Antonio; WACO, Waco, and KFJF, Oklahoma City.

These stations will operate in the regular national Columbia chain when not broadcasting as the Dixie group.

EDWIN FRANKO GOLDMAN'S Band will replace the Damrosch unit in the GE program tonight (WRC, 9 p. m.) in the absence of Dr. Damrosch.

Vaughn de Leath, contralto, will return to the N. B. C. net work permanently, beginning March 15. However she will make her first Nation-wide appearance in six months next Wednesday (WRC, 9:30 p. m.).

Melody Moments, presented each Thursday (WRC, 9:30 p. m.), will continue on the air another year.

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE'S verse, "In the Heart of a Friend," recently set to music, will be sung by Ben Alley, tenor, tomorrow afternoon (WABC, 6:30 o'clock).

"The Lady Next Door" program averages 250 fan letters daily, according to Miss Madge Tucker, who entered radio broadcasting through the WRC studios here several years ago.

ESTABLISHING a new record, 161 stations located in every State, as well as in several foreign countries, broadcast the sixth series of bridge by radio just concluded.

Radio's Rialto

11:00 a. m.—(WMAL) Schelling's Symphony Concert.

6:00 p. m.—(WOL) Walter T. Holt, mandolin.

6:15 p. m.—(WRC) Rudolf Schramm's Concert Orchestra.

7:30 p. m.—(WRC) Wilkins Coffee Orchestra.

8:45 p. m.—(WMAL) Gus Van.

9:00 p. m.—(WRC) Goldman's Band.

9:45 p. m.—(WJSV) Jubilee Singers.

10:00 p. m.—(WMAL) Show Boat.

11:45 p. m.—(WRC) Little Jack Little.

According to Allison P. Stanley, of Cincinnati, the popularity of these games is so great that next year will find even a larger network distributing them.

A program in which Chief Justice Hughes, of the Supreme Court, and Charles A. Boston, president of the American Bar Association, will join in honoring Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes on his ninetieth birthday, will be broadcast a week from Sunday.

NOW the N. B. C. is going in for miniature music scores. Recently a collection of 500 scores, each book measuring about 5 by 7 inches, has been added to the music library.

"Where is Europe Going?" will be the subject of discussion by Dr. Albrecht M. Bartholdy, of Hamburg, and H. W. Harris, of London, this afternoon (WRC, 2:15 o'clock).

FROM the Eskimo Night Club: "Did you ever take a chorus girl out for supper?"

"Yes. It was check and double check."

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sarnoff

KICK THE BUCKET
TRADITION SAYS THAT ONE BLUSOVER TIED ONE END OF A HALTER TO HIS NECK AND THE OTHER END TO A BEAM. THEN HE KICKED AWAY THE BUCKET ON WHICH HE WAS STANDING AND VENTURED INTO ETERNITY.
TOMBOY
THE OLD SAXON WORD "TUMBERE" SIGNIFIED A DANCER AND WAS SOMETIMES APPLIED TO ACTIVE GIRLS. WE HAVE CORRUPTED IT AND USED IT TO NAME THE TOMBOY.
BEYOND THE PALE
WHEN PART OF IRELAND WAS SUBJECT TO ENGLISH RULE UNDER KING JOHN, HE DIVIDED THAT PART INTO 12 COUNTIES. THE ENTIRE DISTRICT WAS KNOWN AS "THE PALE." GRADUALLY THE EXPRESSIONS "WITHIN THE PALE" AND "BEYOND THE PALE" WERE USED TO DISTINGUISH THE PART UNDER ENGLISH RULE FROM THE OTHER.

MONDAY—The Man in the Moon; Two Bits; Origin of Silos.

If you have other ideas as to HOW IT BEGAN, write to Russ Murphy, care of The Washington Post. If you want to see how some other particular custom or saying began, let Russ Murphy know and his answer will be illustrated in this series.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, February 27.

I SHOULDN'T really tell you about all these lovely "undies" in winter when, reluctant as one is to admit it, a lovely lady should be thinking in terms of warmth and weight. But isn't it surprising how that's all we do about it—think about it? And make up for the lack of warm underthings with fur coats or shivers!

But with the approach of spring, your thoughts have every right to turn to lingerie, and I might as well guide them on their little path, the correct one.

For instance, the really beautiful and luxurious lingerie gets less and less fussy. Which is as it should be, with slender dresses that reveal every little pleat or unevenness which might be beautiful on your combination, but which are just unfortunate bumps when outlined beneath your gown. Flat embroidery is a natural result of this need for decoration without bulk, and the flatter and finer the better. In fact, embroidery run neck to neck or (torso to torso, as it were) with lace. Lace, by the way, is newest and better taste when it matches the garment it adorns, rather than violently contrasting it as did the deep ecru lace for the past year or so. This matching lace is dyed the color of the material—rose, peach, cream, mauve. And that's something pretty and new!

As to slips, if you are wearing a dress which molds your hips and then flares, and if the dress happens to be of chiffon, your slip must flare to follow the movement of the dress—as it so spoils the effect to see a perfectly straight slip under your full dress.

And the less underwear you wear under you summer frocks the better—the combination of slip, step-in and brassiere, which dispenses with chemise—is very good.

* * * *

And don't you think it is about time that we had a leaflet on lingerie? Because you know every woman feels like making a dab of underwear now and then, let alone in the spring time—and then there is always something new going on in the lingerie world! So I've designed for you a tricky combination using two materials, and then an adorable step-in that is made of the materials left over from the making of the combination! Since that is the very latest lingerie frinkle which shouldn't have a wrinkle in it, the thing for you to do is to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you exactly how to make this tricky spring lingerie, isn't it?

* * * *

I never in all my life have seen hand bags so completely fitted as they are today. All one would have to do is to get caught on a desert island and hang on to the pocketbook and there she would be with everything for a year's tour around the world! I saw a dream of a one today on the avenue. It was made of very tailored calfskin with a weird amber handle in the form of a Japanese gold fish. And inside was just everything in the world and, my dears, it was only 4 inches square! The cutest amber comb, and a cigarette case, lighter and holder and coin purse in leather and the last thing, a tiny pair of scissors to go with needle and thread. Now, for goodness sakes, let's go get lost on that island, 'cause there must be a reason for that bag!

* * * *

And, oh, yes, there are some leaflets left showing you how to make a new spring hat that is as smart as anything—and can be three different hats all in the same one. If you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope today.

* * * *

Of course, you'll look for Dare's weekly fashion letter in the big Sunday Post tomorrow.

Au revoir!

YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

ALTHOUGH many family names appear at first sight to have but one origin and meaning, a careful study of them frequently reveals several unsuspected sources. Such is the case with the family name "Lewis." In most cases this name is an Anglo-French form of the French "Louis." "Louis" is derived ultimately from the Germanic "Chlodewich." "Chlodowich" was an old personal name meaning "famous war" and "famous warrior." Some of the families named "Lewis" have received the name because of a former residence in the town of Lewis in Scotland. This place-name is derived from the Gaelic "leoghas," which means "the marshy land." The commonest modern German equivalents of the French "Louis" are "Ludwig" "Ludwich" and "Ludowieg." Corresponding Italian forms are "Ludovico," "Lodovico" and "Luigi." "Lewis" has sometimes been adopted by Welshmen as a substitute for "Llewellyn," and by Jews as a substitute for "Levi." Finally, "Lewis" has frequently become confused with the quite different name "Lewes."

The family name "Lewes" has been frequently given because of a former residence in the town of Lewes in County Sussex. This place-name is the plural form of the Old English "hlaew," and may therefore be translated "the shelters" or "the sheltered places." A certain John de Lewes is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls (1273).

The family name "Berridge" is of English origin. In many cases it is the modern form of "Berric." "Berric" was an Anglo-Saxon personal name meaning "powerful bear." However, there is evidence that in some cases it is derived from the Old English "baer-hyrog," which means "the bare ridge." When "Berridge" is derived from this last source it indicates the place of residence of the persons who were first so called.

FRANCES M'DONALD

Nothing But the Truth!

IS it ever excusable to lie to the head of the house? Mrs. J. N. J. wants to know in a great hurry as her letter came special delivery. So, speed up the right hand and give your opinion. Would you, under any consideration, tell your husband a lie? (No. The question of what he does or does not do has nothing to do with the case.) The circumstances, too, have no bearing upon it. And just so that you may be careful in your answers we would like to state that our well-known intuition seems to tell us that "Mrs. J. N. J." who is in such a state for our opinions is in reality not any Mrs. at all—but Mr. J. N. J. And we can imagine that the missus has been holding back the milk money, or has committed some other such heinous crime for which some husbands would like to revieve the ducking stool.

Lying to husbands has never been developed into o really worth-while art. But if we had our way—which we never will—there would be a course in it in every woman's college on earth. The idea that any intelligent woman can be convincing in a tight place without training is a fallacy. Any woman who has ever been faced with a situation that required not only tact but almost second sight to prevent a wreckage of one or more perfectly good homes can tell you that there should be a course in the technique of the household for everyday lie.

We have a very dear friend who lies every time she serves lamb pie. She has to. Her husband is very fond of lamb pie. But if he knows what it is he does not like it. Two days after roast leg of lamb, what is a woman—a conscientious woman—to do? She looks at her lord with the bluest of eyes and says, "Why it is kidney pie, dear." And he eats himself dizzy and says it is great. Should she have said "I am sorry, darling, but it is the hoof of the leg of lamb we had on Sunday?" She does make one concession to her conscience. She puts some kidney in with the ground-up lamb. But does that let her out? Does it make an honest woman out of her?

Read what Mrs. J. N. J. has to say, and then use your own judgment:

Dear Frances McDonald: Have you ever known any circumstance that you would say justified a woman in deliberately telling a lie to her husband? Is any wiffe ever justified in such an act—regardless of circumstances? Would you say a man could ever feel entire trust or any trust at all in her if she did lie to him? Your opinion and that of your readers is most urgently asked and hoped for, as an ominous decision rests upon your arbitration of a serious matter. MRS. J. N. J.

Our answer is a plea for courses in artistic and detection-proof evasion. What is yours, dear readers, who never told a lie?

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF February 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

The astrological indications of February 28 presage a day marked by many unexpected events. Some thing or some person will come into your life, which will exercise considerable influence on your future actions. The evening atmosphere will be benign.

A child born on this February 28 will not be handicapped by either mental or physical weaknesses. It will be ambitious, persevering and affectionate—but not demonstrative. It will be better adapted to outside pursuits than to those of a sedentary nature.

If born on February 28, your disposition is an unusually suspicious one, and this rather embitters your whole life. Although endowed with ability, gifted with intelligence and appreciative of artistic effort, you are lacking in that generosity of spirit which contributes so much to the amenities of life. A great deal of your time is lost in trying to dissect the motives that engender the acts of others, no matter whether they be friendly or otherwise.

You are fond of reading, more as a recreation than as a means to learn. In social life, your inherent reserve militates against congeniality. You, too, are caustic, and often wound where it would be more to your advantage to please. Your temper is more sulky than violent, and you know little, and practice less, of the divinity of forgiveness.

You are very conscientious in all work entrusted to your care, and are no time server. A secondary position is more suited to one of your capabilities than one where control of others is involved. You lack that personal magnetism which, every time, and all the time, gets the best from subordinates. Your love attachments will not bring you the happiness that they could, and should. You are too jealous and too exacting.

Successful people born February 28:
1. William S. Barnard—naturalist.
2. Geraldine Farrar—prima donna.
3. Victor L. Berger—socialist.
4. Franklin Mott Gunther—diplomatic service.
5. William Allen Orton—plant pathologist.
6. Mary Lyon—founder of Mount Holyoke Seminary.

2 tablespoons grated orange rind.
1 teaspoon lemon extract.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 cups flour.
1 teaspoon baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and orange juice and beat two minutes. Add rest of ingredients and drop portions onto greased baking sheets. Flatten. Bake until brown.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

IN the old days of Whist, playing first the higher of two small cards and the lower was a conventional signal for partner to lead trumps; but as a trump signal is not necessary in Bridge, the play is used to mean "Partner, continue this suit." If the signal be made by discarding, its message is "Partner, lead this suit." Sometimes one card will indicate certainly that partner is not signalling, for example when it is the lowest that partner can have of the suit; or one high card may indicate that partner is signalling. But nothing except the player's lowest card can be a sure nonsignal until he has played to the second trick; and even as high a card as an Eight may not be the start of the signal as the player may have Ten-Nine-Eight.

South is playing a Spade contract and West leads the King of Diamonds; North would play the Four, East the Trey, and South the Eight. Of course the Trey may be East's lowest card and South may hold the Deuce and be false-carding; but with the Deuce missing, West should not assume that East is not starting a signal.

West should lead the King of Clubs to trick 2, and with East playing the Six, West would know that East was not signalling because the Deuce, Trey, Four and Five are in West's sight. West therefore should go back to the Ace of Diamonds; and when East played the Deuce it is evident that he wants Diamonds continued, either because he can ruff the third round or win it with the Queen. So West should lead a third round of Diamonds, which East wins with the Queen.

The fact that South did not win West's Club King indicates that West holds the Ace; therefore East should lead the Jack and South's Queen is caught. Played in that way West and East make a total of six tricks.

If West merely noticed that East had played the Trey of Diamonds and the Six of Clubs, and therefore thought that Clubs should be continued for three rounds, holding up his Ace and Jack of Diamonds for an expected finesse, the Declarer would make game instead of being held to seven tricks.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me whether sedums require a moist or a well-drained soil. I know there is a rather bewildering array of these plants, all of which are interesting. I want to plant some about my summer cottage if my soil will agree with their demands. It is rather dry and the places where I would plant them would be in the sun.

VIRGINIA McC.

The sedum, often called stonecrop, includes a large group of plants especially good for dry, sunny situations. Many of them will withstand severe cold weather. The low, creeping ones are used for rock gardens and wall gardening, while the larger, more erect ones are better suited for the open border. Most of them are evergreen. The soil where sedums are to thrive must be well drained. Most species prefer full sun.

Do marshmallows do well except in marshy land? I am so fond of them and want to scatter a few through my shrubbery border this spring if you feel that they will live in good soil that has splendid drainage.

MRS. LESLIE H. T.

Although naturally swamp-loving plants, marshmallows, correctly known as rosemallows, will thrive in any good garden soil, but require some water during prolonged dry spells. Keep in mind that they demand full sun and never do well when crowded.

Please tell me why my lily of the valley fails to bloom. It used to bloom profusely but for the last few years has produced few flowers.

ANNA T. Y.

Lily of the valley requires replanting every four of five years. When it is overcrowded, as it is apt to become under ordinary garden culture, it sets few buds. Better dig and separate your plants in June. Plant them so that you have about six shoots to a clump. Add some bonemeal to the soil before resetting the bulbs.

Please tell me how often to reset iris. MRS. THOMAS T. B.

Iris multiply quite rapidly and at least every three or four years the plants should be lifted and divided.

Do hardy chrysanthemums require a great deal of sun and a very rich soil? I have a new home and want a few chrysanthemums if you feel they are a wise choice for an amateur.

MRS. EARNEST R.

Chrysanthemums thrive in good garden soil, but give best results in a deep, well-enriched one and are responsive to good care. Keep them well-watered during uly and August; also be sure to keep the weeds from encroaching on their grounds. Being heavy feeders they do not care to divide their food.

Please tell me whether this is a good time to spray lilacs for scale disease. I have one bush that is literally covered with what I suppose is San Jose scale." MARY G. T.

Yes, spray at this time and again just before growth starts in April.

Is there any known remedy for cut worms? Last year these crawlers destroyed all my asters and most of my zinnias. EMILY L.

CITY BANK CLEARING FACILITIES PRAISED

Washington's bank clearing facilities were held up as a model at the closing session of the Second Central Atlantic States Bank Management Conference yesterday at Willard Hotel.

O. Howard Wolfe, of the Philadelphia National Bank, chairman of last year's conference, told bankers from seven States Washington has "as fine an organized clearing house as there is in the country."

He said this city "has a system of bank management, under clearing house supervision, that is worth imitating."

Called on to summarize the two-day discussion, Mr. Wolfe said bankers have been shown the necessity of maintaining a liquid position, carrying adequate secondary reserves, maintaining proper supervision of directors and eliminating excess interest payments.

Four Qualities Stressed.

He said the four qualities stressed at the four sessions of the conference, devoted to "The Sound Bank," "The Protected Bank," "The Profitable Bank" and "The Practical Bank," should all be found in one institution. He suggested the day may come when a "czar may rule over banking as Judge Landis rules over baseball."

F. G. Awalt, Deputy Comptroller of the Currency, who also addressed the morning session, urged that the American Bankers' Association promote "a plan of education of bank directors in their duties and responsibilities" in the interest of sound bank management.

Mr. Awalt said the active officers of banks should make available to their directors such information as will enable them to better understand their duties. Such a course, he said, would not only make for better banks, but is one to which the directors are entitled.

William K. Payne, president of the Cayuga County National Bank, off Auburn, N. Y., urged a closer understanding between banks and their customers.

"The time has come," he said, "when we should attempt to explain banking functions to the public so they can distinguish between good banking and bad banking."

Better Salaries Urged.

C. E. Talman, vice president of the American National Bank & Trust Co. of Richmond, saw the need of better bank salaries and "more human" interest in bank employes. Discussing his paper, John Poole, president of the Federal American National Bank, outlined the methods followed at his institution in developing an "esprit de corps."

Other speakers included Harold Stonier, educational director of the American Institute of Banking, who recommended more intensive educational activities in banking ranks, and George D. Snyder, manager of the Reading and Berk's County Credit Bureau, of Reading, who outlined the advantages of an efficient credit bureau system in relation to bank management.

A resolution commending officials of the District of Columbia Bankers Association for the manner in which they had conducted the conference, presented by Mark H. Holmes, president of the New York State Bankers Association, was unanimously adopted.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

IT is probably a matter that occasions the casual cash customer small concern, but to the house manager it is a major worry. I am talking about the supposedly decorative posters that adorn the fronts, sides, lobbies and lounges of the more pretentious of our cinemagogues. When the effect is good, such of the public as give it a passing glance presumably take it as a matter of course, believing that one-sheets, three-sheets, sixes and twenty-fours leap into their respective places in the pretty gold frames or on the expansive "stands" at bidding no more onerous than the waving of a wand.

A great deal of planning goes into the composition of the three-sheets that you pass by so unconcernedly every time you enter a local first-run or neighborhood picture theater. And it is surprising how many of these pictorial announcements are needed—especially at the RKO-Keith Theater, where, in addition to the lobby frames, there are a whole string of spaces along the entire G street frontage of the building that have to be filled every time there is a change of bill.

These particular posters are prepared for RKO-Keith's a little differently from the others in use around town, according to my best information. Instead of obtaining his effects with paints and brushes, cut-outs from lithos and the like, J. B. Cox, who is responsible for the poster and sign work on Fifteenth street, works almost entirely in pastels.

Now, when you get to working in pastels, you are creeping up toward the John Cassel-Penrhyn Stanlaws-Harrison Fisher class and no longer rate as a sign painter.

Pass yourself to a glance at the "Millie" posters and you will see what I mean.

Robert Milton, the noted stage director, who was responsible for the successful production of "Outward Bound," for both the theater of flesh and blood and the films, has been signed to a five-year contract by the Warner Bros. as a reward of conscientious and painstaking artistic effort on their lot.

How do you mean, "outward bound?" The Greeks had a word for it, but it was Skouras, not Milton!

A telephone call has just brought the information that Mrs. Harriet Hawley Locher, formerly in charge of the public service and educational department of the Crandall Theaters, will serve as liaison officer between the theater and interests not usually allied with either stage or screen, on behalf of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Trader Horn," coming into the National Theater the night of March 8, on a road show basis.

(Noe to Mr. Daly: This belong to you and "In the Playhouse" from now on.)

Old reliable "East Lynne" still has the power to pull them in. Mr. Meakin informs me that yesterday's opening day business ran ahead of the first day's gross on "Anybody's Woman," the Ruth Chatterton-Clive Brook vehicle that holds the attendance record of his incumbency of the managing directorship of the Fox. It may not be wholly unimportant that Clive Brook is also the menace in "East Lynne."

By the way, this and other pictures opening new, or continuing old, engagements yesterday will be found reviewed elsewhere in today's issue of The Post. Look around.

In case you wonder where it was you saw her not so long ago, Helen Warner, featured in Panchon & Marco's "Southern Iea," at the Fox, played the same house a comparatively short time ago in a similar capacity with the same producers' "Jazz Buccaners" unit.

But I can't remember the phone bill, or when those notes come due, to save my life.

Knute Rockne, head Irishman at Notre Dame, is getting temperamental. He recently registered a complaint at Universal City, where he is making short-reel subjects, because he was limited to one-reel footage. His contention sems to be that he can't get all the oratory that accompanies the action whipped into any kind of team play on so short a field.

In other words, while he may have only one reel of action suitable for the cameras, he has two reels of conversation about it for the sound track. So far, Universal hasn't made up its mind.

So Knute's dropping back for another kick!

METROPOLITAN

"REDUCING." A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Willard Mack and eBatrice Banyard, costarring Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, supported by Anita Page, Sally Eilers, William Collier, jr., and Lucien Littlefield. Directed by Charles F. Reisner. Reviewed by W. A. Whitney.

Even as a restaurant is the inevitable result when Greek meets Greek, so when Marie Dressler and Polly Moran meet—be it in the roaring forties or in Grand Central Terminal—little can be expected but howling, side-splitting hilarity.

"Reducing" is another of those things which, without Marie and Polly, would be little more than a rehash of innumerable Mack Sennet comedies, but with those supreme queens of the farce, it rises to new heights, and the time-honored (to say nothing of time-worn) gags shine with all the resplendence of innovations.

Admirably supporting the Dressler-Moran company are Anita Page, as Marie's charming country daughter; Sally Eilers, as Polly's city ditto; Lucien Littlefield, Jay Ward and Billy Naylor, as Marie's remaining impediment; William Collier, jr., and William Bakewlel, the ultimately successful suitors.

The supporting bill includes "Love Nest," a boisterous comedy of marriage and ready-built homes, featuring Billy Wayne and Thelma White; another of the "Believe It or Not" series and the current release of the Universal News, with Graham McNamee newscasting.

RKO-KEITH'S

"MILLIE." Radio picturization of a story by Donald Henderson Clarke, starring Helen Twelvetrees, supported by Lilyan Tashman, Robert Ames, Joan Blondell, John Halliday, Anita Louise and James Hall. Directed by John Francis Lillon. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Helen Twelvetrees did a grand job in "The Grand Parade." She made a name for herself as an emotional actress and in "Millie" lives up to the promise of her former appearance, goes beyond those expectations by a considerable margin and in general proves to be a thoroughly competent artiste. "Millie" offers her plenty of opportunity to act and she laughs and cries her way through the story in a manner to bring reminders of many older stars whose "emoting" has induced tears for many seasons.

"Millie," as a book, may have been slightly off color, but there is nothing in the picture to drag out the censors' shears. To be sure, there are many situations which probably do not occur in the respectable homes of the Nation with any great frequency, but the film itself is clean and minus even the often-present suggestion in the lines.

Aiding Miss Twelvetrees in presenting a gorgeous bit of entertainment is a cast that stacks up like "money from home." Lilyan Tashman, Joan Blondell and Frank McHugh keep the piece from too much pathos; James Hall and Robert Ames are excellent as the careless lovers of the star; John Halliday is smooth and flawless as the villain, while the real surprise is the fine bit done by Anita Louise, a newcomer, in the role of Millie's daughter. A half dozen others have minor characters, all excellently portrayed.

"Millie" is the story of a red-headed girl who loved love. She marries into wealth but after three years, finds her husband, James Hall, with another woman. Swearing off men, she goes to work but falls for Robert Ames, a newspaperman with a yen for liquor and who also fails to hew to the line in the matter of femininity. All this time Halliday, as Jimmy Damier, has been trying to win Millie in vain. He learns finally of her 16-year-old daughter and seeks revenge by enticing the daughter to his hunting lodge. Warned, Millie goes to the lodge and when her daughter appears, shoots Damier. At the trial Millie risks death in the chair to protect her daughter.

While "Millie" is not the fastest moving film of recent weeks, it sparkles in spots; has some brilliant dialogue, and some not so good, but never ceases to appeal.

An issue of Pathe News featuring Einstein and Von Hindenburg's niece, thus lending a decided German flavor stick comedy called "The Wife O'Riley" to the current events, and a slap-complete the bill.

NAVY WILL PROMOTE 4 WASHINGTON MEN

Two Will Become Captains and Two Others Are to Be Commanders.

Two Washingtonians are listed for promotion to the rank of captain and two others for elevation to the rank of commanders in the Supply Corps of the Navy, according to a slate of the Navy Department which has been recommended by a special board and approved by President Hoover.

Commander Elwood Alexander Cobey, of 3201 Thirty-third place, on duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics here, and Commander Charles Erwen Parsons, of 1406 Shepherd street northwest, disbursing officer of the Washington Navy Yard, both are to be raised to captaincies.

Lieut. Comdr. Eaton Conger Edwards, of 2737 Devonshire place northwest, and Lieut Comdr. Charles Clement Copp, of 2817 Woodley road northwest, both attached to the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, will be made commanders.

The four are included among four captains and twelve commanders to be created in the Supply Corps, with several other officers formerly of this city slated for promotion.

In this group are two other natives of Washington, both to be commanders. They are Lieut. Comdr Robert Smith Chew, attached to the Naval Training Station, Newport, R. I. and Lieut. Comdr. Omar Dwight Conger, stationed at the Navy Yard, Puget Sound, Wash.

$260,000,000 Fund Before French Senate

Paris, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—France's 1931-32 army and land defense budget which has been approved by the Chamber of Deputies and now goes before the Senate, provides for a total expenditure of $260,000,000, of which $190,000,000 will be expended in France itself and the balance devoted to the eneeds of colonial troops and armament.

The total figure is approximately $3,000,000 more than that of last year and represents, according to the minister of war, the lowest figure to which France was prepared to go and at the same time feel her security unthreatened.

NET PHONE INCOME INCREASES $24,770

Efforts Under Way to Enroll Women Bank Leaders by Association.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

A balance net income for January of $136,433, an increase of $24,770 over the month last year, is shown in the statement of operations of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. The report listed telephone operating revenues for the month at $761,229, with expenses amounting to $530,021. After deduction of taxes and uncollectible, the company's net operating income totaled $172,597.

Taxes during January were $53,796, an increase of $5,971 over the month a year ago, and capital expenditures for new plant and equipment added to the company's system in the District during the month amounted to $172,-164. Gross retirements during the month were $106,497, making net additions $65,667. Net additions to plant for the twelve months ended January 31 totaled $182,136.

On January 31 Washington was served by 169,348 telephones, 868 having been added during the month. Telephone users made 19,193,000 originating calls during the month, an increase of 9.3 per cent over those during the month in 1930.

An effort to enroll women bank executives throughout the mid-Atlantic region as members of the Association of Bank Women has been undertaken in a national membership campaign of the association, according to an announcement made by the regional vice president, Miss Mary E. Stetson, manager of the women's department, Fifty-seventh street branch of Chase National Bank, New York City. In the mid-Atlantic division, which includes the following States: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, there are 221 women bank executives.

The total number of bank women executives in the United States eligible to become members of the Association of Bank Women is 3,600, according to a statement by the president of the association, Miss Grace S. Stoermer, assistant vice president, Bank of Italy, N. T. & S. A., Los Angeles, Calif.

These women are holding executive positions in trust companies, national, state and savings banks and in the performance of their duties are brought in contact with the customers of the institution with which they are associated, thus fulfilling the requirements for membership.

In 1921, a small group of progressive women in New York City who had the vision and the desire to dignify positions of women in banks, organized the Association of Bank Women. In ten years it has grown from a small local group to one of national importance. At the present time there are approximately 300 members representing 101 cities. The tenth annual convention is to be held in Atlantic City this fall in conjunction with that of the American Bankers Association and will be attended by women from all over the United States who will discuss financial problems confronting every woman.

RHEEM CREDITORS TO MEET MARCH 14

Naming of Trustees in Bankruptcy Is Expected at Meeting.

Fred J. Eden, referee in bankruptcy, announced yesterday that the first meeting of creditors of the bankrupt investment house of Swartzell, Rheem, & Hensey Co. will be held March 14 in one of the equity divisions of the District Supreme Court.

Mr. Eden announced that the meeting would not be held in his office in the Wilkins Building, as is customary, because of the large number of creditors involved.

Trustees in bankruptcy are expected to be named at the meeting, but it could not be learned whether they would supplant Capt. Julius I. Peyser and Attorney Henry P. Blair, who at present are conducting affairs for the concern.

Quite a number of attorneys were in the office of the clerk of the District Supreme Court yesterday examining the schedules, in an effort to determine if their clients have been listed as creditors. The schedules were filed Thursday through Attorneys Tobriner & Graham, and indicated that the firm has more assets than liabilities. Assets totaled $6,503,-253.77 and debts were listed at $6,329,-795.40.

District Body Approves Parole Board Proposal

The District Commissioners yesterday approved the Zihlman bill to establish a Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole for the District, with the provision that certain amendments would be made. One of the suggested changes is that the present parole board shall lose its authority upon appointment of the new board.

The measure provides for the appointment of three members of the board, none of which shall be officially connected with prison administration in any other capacity, and that they shall serve without compensation.

Louisville Bank Heads Indicted by U. S. Jury

Louisville, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The Federal grand jury today indicted James B. Brown, president, and Charles F. Jones, vice president and cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky on charges of misapplying funds of the closed bank.

The Federal indictments followed a few hours after county grand jury indictments charging embezzlement had been returned against these two and against W. T. Zurschmiede, secretary-treasurer of BancoKentucky.

BANANA VALUABLE FOOD FOR INFANTS

Cabbage Another Vegetable Now Fed to Babies 2 Years Old.

Bananas and cabbage furnish many valuable food elements to the diet of a 2-year-old child, according to Mrs. Rowena Schmidt Carpenter, specialist in child nutrition at the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

This data was made public yesterday in connection with the study the bureau is making of the present employment emergency when so many families find it impossible to buy the extra foods usually considered necessary for their younger children. Mrs. Carpenter, in discussing the matter, declared also that, for the most part, children can eat the same foods that are cooked for the rest of the family.

"Children can safely eat a very much greater variety of foods than was formerly considered prudent," asserted Mrs. Carpenter. "Bananas, for instance, may be fed raw to children as young as 2 years old providing the fruit is entirely ripe, which is indicated by black seed, mealy pulp and a brown spotted skin. Bananas less ripe may be served when baked, but otherwise they are likely to be slow in digestion and cause discomfort.

Cabbage Served Babies.

"Cabbage is another food that formerly young children were not supposed to eat, largely because of the way it was prepared. Cooked for a long time with fat meat it is not suitable. But we now recommend cabbage for children if it is cooked quickly, until tender, so that the flavor is not strong. It can also be chopped and used in sandwiches. Grated carrots and chopped celery can likewise be served in bread and butter sandwiches at the noon meal as a supplement to a thick soup and a simple dessert. Children are fond of raw vegetable sandwiches. They are valuable because the entire vitamin content is retained. The sandwiches help solve the meal problem in the middle of the day.

"If meals are planned carefully and prepared properly the 2-year-old child can eat almost everything that the rest of the family does. Foods which are too rich, highly seasoned or fried should be avoided in the family meals if the children are going to eat them.

"When fresh vegetables and fruits are too expensive or are out of season, canned or dried products are suitable. Tomatoes and citrus fruits, which are practically interchangeable, are essential."

Mrs. Carpenter again emphasizes the importance of milk in the low cost diet, calling it the best single food for the growth of children, since it builds bones, teeth and muscle. Mothers are safe in buying a good grade of fresh raw milk and boiling it over the open fire for three minutes, or heating for twenty minutes in a double boiler. Whichever way the milk is heated it must be cooled quickly.

Unsweetened Canned Milk.

Unsweetened canned milk may also be used for part or all of the supply if the cost of fresh milk is prohibitive during the stress of unemployment. Its food value is similar to that of fresh whole milk, but if canned milk is used over a long period of time, the diet should include more raw fruits, tomatoes and vegetables.

"We used to think that little children should have a very simple supper of cereals," Mrs. Carpenter said. "Now we include vegetables and fruits in the evening meal, keeping the heavy protein dish for noon."

So many families with one young child have appealed for help in budgeting their food money that the bureau has gathered prices for a father and mother and a 2-year-old child. If this family group buys a week's supplies as outlined in the food guide, the average cost for the country is $5.70.

For Small Incomes.

Dr. Hazel Stiebeling, food economist of the bureau, who prepared the food guide, points out that it is intended for families with low incomes. As it stands, it offers the maximum return in nutritive values for each dollar spent and can be followed safely, provided the various items are not reduced. Whether or not the housewife can purchase the foods for the prices quoted depends on her care in getting the most for her money. She needs to buy staple articles in as large quantities as practicable and should buy perishables frequently to avoid waste.

The range in the price of bread is responsible for most of the variation in the cost of the week's market basket for this family of three as quoted above. Ten 1-pound loaves of white bread cost anywhere from 45 cents in Kansas City to 90 cents in Washington, D. C.

Following are listed the cities where the figures were gathered in the order of the expense of filling the market basket for a family of three: St. Louis, $5.31; Chicago, $5.33; Kansas City, $5.44; Pittsburgh, $5.47; Detroit, $5.57; New Orleans, $5.66; Philadelphia, $5.69; Atlanta, $5.88; Boston, $5.88; Dallas, $5.89; Charlotte, $5.92; New York City, $5.97 and Washington, D. C., $6.10.

Menu for Small Family.

A family of three including father, mother, and 2-year-old child, should buy every week:

Bread	10-15 lbs.
Flour	1-2 lbs.
Cereal	3-4 lbs.
Whole fresh milk	9-14 lbs.
Or canned unsweetened milk	9-14 tall cans
Dried beans, peas, peanut butter	1-2 lbs.
Potatoes	8-10 lbs.
Tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruit	4 lbs.
Other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color) and inexpensive fruits	12-14 lbs.
Fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarine, butter, etc.	2 lbs.
Sugar and molasses	3 lbs.
Eggs (for children)	3 each
Coffee	1 lb.
Tea	½ lb.

EGGS AID COOKERY; RICH IN NUTRIENTS

Give Lightness and Bulk to Cooked Products; Have Needed Vitamins.

"Our estimate on the value of eggs in the diet is based on two sets of facts," said Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, of the Bureau of Home Economics, of the United States Department of Agriculture, in speaking before the National Poultry Congress. "These are facts regarding their nutritive importance, and facts concerned with their adaptability to cookery processes."

The physical properties of eggs, she said, make them useful in giving lightness and bulk to such cooked products as sponge cakes, meringues, omelets and certain desserts, and in giving the characteristic consistency to mayonnaise.

"From the standpoint of nutrition," she continued, "the egg is really two foods instead of one. The white part of the egg is almost a pure watery solution of certain proteins of high biological value for body-building and maintenance. The yolk, on the other hand, contains many well-recognized food substances. It furnishes concentrated fuel for the body, contains protein of fine quality, and has an unusually rich store of the minerals and vitamins necessary for growth and development, and for the maintenance of health and vigor."

An egg a day for children over 2 years old is suggested for the formation of good red blood. For younger children smaller amounts of the yolk may be given with benefit.

FRENCH ARTICHOKE DELIGHTFUL TO EAT

Edible, Once Costly Delicacy, Contains Many Essential Nutrients.

Perhaps you have seen in food stores a curious looking green cone-shaped vegetable, covered with scale-like leaves, called a "globe" or "French" artichoke. You may have wondered what to do with it. Until comparatively recently, in this country, globe artichokes were considered expensive delicacies, served chiefly in hotels and restaurants, although they have been well known in France and other European countries for a long time. An increased supply and more widespread distribution has now brought them, like many other foods that were unknown a short time ago, into our everyday markets.

People are asking whether or not globe artichokes have value as food, and how to cook and serve them. The globe artichoke, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, supplies vitamins A and B and carbohydrates in amount similar to young peas, as well as other nutrients. It is not to be confused with the Jerusalem artichoke, which is a tuber, growing profusely in many parts of the country. The characteristic flavor of the globe artichoke is liked by many people.

In purchasing globe artichokes, plan to serve one to each person unless they are very large, when the individual artichoke may be cut in half.

To prepare globe artichokes for the table, wash them in cold water, trim off the stems and remove a few of the outer leaves. Drop them into lightly salted boiling water to cover and simmer for 20 or 30 minutes, or until the central part is tender. Test by pulling off a leaf. Artichokes are usually served with drawn butter or Hollandaise sauce in a small individual dish beside each plate. As the leaves are pulled off, they are dipped in the sauce, one by one, and eaten from the fingers. The flower center, or hairy portion growing on top of the heart, is discarded but the bottom or "cheese," is considered by many the choicest part of all.

ULTRAVIOLET RAYS LITTLE AID TO COLDS

Conclusion Is Reached After Tests by Johns Hopkins Medical School.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The conclusion that the ultraviolet ray is of little effect in treating the common cold has been reached at Johns Hopkins Medical School following exhaustive tests, it was announced today.

Dr. John H. Clark, one of the four persons who made tests with a mercury arc lamp, said somewhat similar tests conducted at Cornell University indicated the rays were of some value in treating colds, but experiments in England with a carbon arc showed negative results.

Because of the part which ultraviolet rays play in the sunlight, the tests have been closely watched here, where a five-year research into the cause and cure of the common cold, financed with a $195,000 fund, is in progress.

The Johns Hopkins authorities pointed out, however, that there are other elements in sunlight other than the ultraviolet ray and warned that their conclusions do not attempt to say what sunlight will accomplish.

The ultraviolet ray tests were made also by Dr. James A. Doull, former director of the common cold research here and now connected with Western Reserve University, and by Mary Hardy and Nathan R. Herman.

Committee to Study Bridge Traffic Loads

Upon the recommendation of Capt. Hugh P. Oram, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, the District Commissioners yesterday appointed a committee of three to make a study of the effect of heavy vehicular traffic loads on the bridges and roadways of the District.

The committee, which is composed of L. P. Robertson, deputy engineer of highways; C. R. Whyte, engineer of bridges, and M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic, will make recommendations following the inquiry designed to alter the present regulations governing heavy vehicles.

Income Tax Facts

No. 27.

Taxes on personal property and real estate, business or residential, paid during the taxable year 1930 are deductible from gross income. However, so-called taxes on local benefits, such as the construction of a sewer, sidewalk, street paving, drainage and similar improvements, the cost of which tends to add to the value of the property assessed and the benefit of which accrues to a limited number of property owners, are not deductible. Taxes paid by a tenant to or for a landlord for business property are deductible by the tenant as rent and constitute taxable income to the landlord. Taxes paid by a tenant to or for a landlord for property occupied by the tenant as a residence are not deductible, since they are a personal living expenses.

The Federal income tax may not be deducted. However, income taxes paid upon the incomes of individuals to States may be deducted by an individual on his Federal income tax return. The deduction of estate and inheritance taxes is confined to the estate.

Admission taxes are deductible, but the taxpayer must show that account has been kept of the amount paid. Taxes on club dues are deductible by the member paying them.

Stamp taxes on the issue of bonds, stocks, passage tickets, and playing cards may be deducted either as business expense or taxes, but if deducted under one heading they may not again be claimed under another.

Import or tariff duties paid in the operation of a business are deductible, provided they are not added to or made a part of the merchandise with respect to which they are paid. Customs duties on articles imported by a person for his own use are deductible.

License fees exacted by a State or city upon certain businesses are deductible as taxes. Automobile license fees are ordinarily deductible.

BOY SCOUT AWARDS WILL BE PRESENTED

Awards signifying the highest achievements in the program of the Boy Scouts of America, will be presented tonight at 8 o'clock by the awarding court of the District of Columbia Scout Council at the Wilson Normal School.

The twenty-year Veteran Scouting Award, an honor seldom bestowed in the organization, will be presented to Wilton R. Eyer, scoutmaster of Troop 29, who since 1911 has been an active scout.

The Harmon Award, one of 52 scholarship awards presented to eagle scouts selected from all parts of the country, will be given to Paul Boesch, local eagle scout.

Other awards include the presentation of seven eagle scout badges to Richard Canham, Troop 3, of Christ Church; Leon Cohen, Troop 73, of the Jewish Community Center; L. R. Eakin, jr., Troop 25, of the Church of the Covenant; Edgar Hyatt, Troop 12, of the Sherwood Presbyterian Church; John Mehlig, Troop 44, of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church; Randall Book, Troop 134, of Christ Church, Alexandria, Va., and Robert Hankins, Troop 12, of the Sherwood Presbyterian Church.

In addition to the eagle scout awards, a number of star scout badges and life scout awards will be presented.

School Officials Home After Detroit Parley

School officials who attended the convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association in Detroit returned to Washington yesterday.

They were Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent; Jere J. Crane, assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs, and George D. Strayer, public school statistician.

Will Irwin to Talk At Community Service

Will Irwin, author and playwright, will be the principal speaker on the community institute program, to be given Monday night, March 9, at the Central Community Center.

Called the "greatest reporter in the world" by Lord Northcliffe, of the London Times, Mr. Irwin declared he is "just an all-round writer." His reputation as a speaker and authority on many subjects, will be insured by his appearance on the institute program.

Coffee Falls to Lowest On Exchange Since 1908

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Another low record was added to the books of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange today when the quoted price of Rio coffee for March delivery dropped to the lowest level since November 1908.

The future dropped from 5.04 cents a pound at the close yesterday to 4.97 cents. The decline was attributed to weakness of Brazilian exchange.

Baking Success Depends On Character of Flour

You can be ever so good a cook but if the flour you have to work with is not adapted to the facilities of your kitchen you cannot hope to have the best results. Here is where has its advantage over all other brands. It is made of that sun-ripened June wheat, which mellows it and endows it with that natural, nutty flavor that is so palatable.

Plain Washington Flour is good for all purposes. Self-rising Washington Flour is mixed with the exactly correct proportions of the purest leavening phosphates, so that you have no need for baking powder—and is especially designed for biscuits, waffles, shortcakes, etc. It will be a revelation with what ease and invariable success you will do all your baking when Washington Flour is used.

Both Plain Washington Flour and Self-rising Washington Flour are for sale by grocers and delicatessens in all sizes from 2-lb. sacks up. Remember that every sack of both Self-rising Washington Flour and Plain Washington Flour is guaranteed to give satisfaction.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

DEFEATING DIPHTHERIA.

THERE is a good chance that diphtheria will make a bow and retire from the stage within the lifetime of people now living. It has had a decreasing prevalence for a generation, and, at the present time, is of small public health importance. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. bulletin says of diptheria: "The death rate has declined to a point where the disease may no longer be ranked as a scourge of childhood."

This statement is based upon a country-wide study of the vital statistics for 1930. The report says further: "The diphtheria rate in the brief space of three years has been practically cut in half. In a single year it has been reduced more than one-third, and since 1911 the rate has dropped four-fifths. We may confidently look forward a relatively few years when diphtheria will be a negligible factor in our mortality. Deaths from diphtheria today are due almost altogether to ignorance or carelessness on the part of parents. When they will immunize their children through inoculation diphtheria will be out of the picture of children's afflictions."

In New York City in ten years the annual number of cases of diphtheria fell from 15,110 to 3,794, and the deaths fell still faster. Dr. James Roberts, health officer of Hamilton, Ontario, writes: "During the last three years we have averaged thirteen cases of diphtheria with less than two deaths per year. We venture to hope, then, that with a still further increase in immunization, particularly among preschool children, the disease will be eradicated."

In Hamilton they make exceptional efforts to get all the children of school age and preschool age vaccinated against diphtheria. They succeed in vaccinating over 10 per cent of the school children every year. Since protection lasts several years they figure that over 80 per cent of their school children are immune. They also try to immunize babies. They estimate that they immunize 76 per cent of the babies during the first year of life. In consequence of these successes diphtheria has ceased to be a disease of children. Such cases as they have are principally among people 16 years of age and older.

The decline in the importance of diphtheria, from the public health standpoint is due in part to the wide use of antitoxin, to better methods of diagnosis and treatment, and to better health service, but far more of it is due to the use of vaccination, in the opinion of Dr. Roberts and of other health officers of large experience.

Dr. Roberts uses toxoids as a vaccine material. Many health officials use toxin antitoxin. Both are good. Dr. Kegel is doing some promising experimentation with Lowenstein's salve as a vaccine.

SLEEPING IN A LOW BED.

D. L. writes: Is it harmful to sleep only 12 inches above the floor? We have a folding day bed and when it is opened out it is very close to the floor. We always feel dizzy when we get up from it.

REPLY.

LIVING ROOM HUMIDITY.

C. R. writes: What is the proper relative humidity and temperature for living rooms?

REPLY.

WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1931. 13

MARYLAND FIVE WINS, VIRGINIA LOSES AT ATLANTA

Westbrook Pegler Says

YOUR correspondent has just returned from a daring tour of exploration in the Adirondack country in a two-horse sleigh, in the course of which he discovered and took possession of Little Broadway and Forty-seventh street in the name of the City of New York and his honor the mayor. As soon as your correspondent has assembled his notes, he will write a book about the expedition under the title, "Cracked Ice."

Just at present, the notes are in a rather haphazard state. There is a Pullman stub for Room E, Car 98; a document in a foreign language entitled "Commission des Liqueurs de Quebec; Liste de Prix, December 1930; Sujette a Etre Modifiee Sans Avis," and a penciled memorandum reading, "Write articles about 'bobsleding.'"

No time will be lost in the preparation of the book, as the royalties are urgently needed to defray the costs of porterage, tippings and rummage, which run quite high in the land of the snow.

Arriving at the end of the railroad at 7 a. m., your correspondent was introduced to a lady by the name of Bill, who was wearing long trousers, stuffed into her shoes, a sweater, and no hat. This lady said she was just about to qualify as a bob-sled pilot, explaining that in order to obtain a license the candidate must steer a bob sled down the course eight times. This all seemed somewhat elaborate and absurd as your correspondent used to steer a bob down Galpin's Hill onto Mud Lake many years ago, and there were no such formalities about it. One aimed the bob down hill, hopped on and, steering either with the feet or with ropes, slid down.

HOW TO GET BOB SLED LICENSE

However, when Bill asked, "Do you like to bob?" some warning sense prompted your correspondent to say, "No, it's too effeminate."

"Oh, you might like it," Bill said. "This run goes down the side of Mount Van Heevenberg, a run of about a mile and a half, and some of the turns are banked to an angle of 90 degrees. They have an electrical timing device, and some of the bobs have been clocked at about 80 miles an hour going into the turns. The State of New York built it for the Olympic bob run next year. It seems much faster than St. Moritz. You have handled a bob on St. Moritz, I suppose?"

"No," your correspondent said. "Never on St. Moritz, but on Galpins's Hill, at Mud Lake, in the old days we used to—"

"Well," Bill said, "maybe that spoiled you for these mountain runs. No kick left, probably. The synthetic run can't be anything like Galpin's Hill. This one was laid out by engineers. They came up and figured out the friction and the momentum and wind resistance and stream lines and quite a few things, and then they built up the turns with wooden walls supported by four-inch stakes and iced on the running side.

"Rheumatism?" your correspondent suggested. "He ought to go to some warm climate. This North country is only for the well and strong."

"No," Bill explained, "Godfrey's bob went over the top on one of the turns in the championship races last week, and he hurt his ankle. Some other people landed first among the trees in another spill, and I heard they were pretty thoroughly hurt.

SLED WENT OVER TOP OF TURN

"My trouble seems to be to keep the bob away from the top of the turns, and if you would only show

Liska Defeats Griffith in Wage Talk

New Ball Discussion Is "Bunk," Avers Johnson.

BY FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent)

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 27.—Pitcher Adolph Liska tonight signed his 1931 contract with the Nationals. This in itself is not particularly exciting, but the commotion he caused before he did so and the fact that he out argued that master arguer, Clark Griffith, finally getting the healthy increase he demanded, is extraordinary, to say the least.

As a matter of fact, there was more excitement at headquarters here at the Biloxi Hotel than there was on the ball field, where Manager Walter Johnson was putting his battery candidates through their daily chores. From 10 o'clock until lunch time, guests were disturbed by loud barking and sounds of strenuous argument which emanated from President Griffith's room.

At one time, the National owner was heard to exclaim: "Get out of here! And another thing—never mention again about you finishing second to Lefty Grove in effectiveness last season. It's games won and lost which count with me."

Contestants Are Groggy.

As the luncheon period approached, the door opened and Liska came out literally "burnin up" while Griffith was seen to slump into his chair to fumble about for an aspirin tablet.

Although this first round was called a draw, neither apparently making any headway, Liska deserves a technical verdict for, when they faced each other tonight in round two it was seen that Griffith's spirit was broken and he quickly capitulated, the subway ball flinger getting what he asked for whether he earns it or not; in other words, with no bonus clauses in his contract.

With Liska in, only Fred Marberry and Jack Hayes have yet to come to terms with the Nat owner for the coming season, with the Marberry verbal clash due probably Sunday, when he arrives here from Hot Springs.

New Ball No Different, Says Johnson.

After having had two practice sessions with the new baseball, Manager Johnson has just about come to the conclusion that the magnates were "kidding" the pitchers when they announced that a change in its manufacture would be made for the coming season. The seams may be raised more than they were last year and the cover may be a little thicker, but the pitchers here have been unable to discover any advantages they get as to grip, while Johnson declares that the ball traveled just as far as the old style one when he was fungo-hitting to the pitchers both yesterday and this morning. To the naked eye, the old ball and the new one are identical.

"All this new ball talk is the bunk, in my opinion," Johnson remarked, after today's session, 'and I have an idea it was started simply to bolster up the morale of the pitchers, who took an awful licking from the batters last season.

"Along with the new ball talk, the

SCIENCE explodes many old notions and superstitions, but now and then it proves that the old folks were right. Most of us have heard grandpa predict rain because his "corns was a aching," but few of us had any faith in his predictions until it really did rain. Now science comes along and proves that grandpa was right. The American Chemical Society is presenting John Arthur Wilson, of Milwaukee, with a medal for his recent discovery that moisture in the air causes dimensional changes in shoe leather, so that an approaching rain storm might easily produce aching corns.

Each Place Six in Conference Semi-final Round.

Knockouts Frequent; 4 From Florida and Tulane Survive.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 27.—The semifinals of the Southern Conference boxing tournament will start tomorrow afternoon with North Carolina and Virginia having six entries each, Tulane, Florida and Louisiana State, four each; Washington and Lee and Mississippi A and M., two each, and Duke and Virginia Military Institute, one each.

Capt. Sloshberg, of Washington and Lee, was hard pressed to get the decision over Capt. Buck, of Virginia Military Institute, in his featherweight match, while in the lightweight division Welford Smith, of Virginia, registered his second victory of the season over Ralph Starnes, of Duke.

Rainey, of Virginia, Again Beats Epps.

Bob Rainey, Virginia's captain and welterweight title holder, opened the night's program of nineteen bouts by registering his second victory of the season over Epps, of Virginia Military Institute.

Two other classy welters appeared in the next matches in the person of the undefeated "Red" Debuys, of Tulane, who found little trouble in besting Fuller, Blue Devil entry, and Dial Holderness, of North Carolina, who earned a decision over McKinney, of Washington and Lee, after three fast rounds.

The first big upset of the tournament came in the middleweight scrap between Phil Bolick, of Duke, who had had a clean record through two seasons of college boxing, and Rochelle, of Mississippi. The bout went an extra round, the verdict going to the Mississippi lad.

Myers Rallies to Gain Knockout.

The next middleweight match provided a thrill. Myers, of Virginia, knocked into the ropes early in the first round, came back to administer a clean knockout blow to Pound, of Washington and Lee.

Virginia undergraduates gave Fenton Gentry, light-heavy, a big hand when he emerged victorious over Hyatt, of Duke, who defeated Bryant here a fortnight ago. It was a slashing bout from start to finish.

What promised to be a close match in the light heavyweight division ended suddenly when Almokary, of Louisiana State, wrenched his knee at the end of the first round, the decision going to Zemurray, of Tulane.

There were two knockouts in the heavyweight division, Warren, of North Carolina, brother of "Ad" Warren, flooring Bacon, of Washington and Lee, in the first round, and Hill, of Tulane, defeating Brady, of the Mississippi Aggies in the second stanza.

Duke and Virginia survived the afternoon matches without having an entrant eliminated. North Carolina and Louisiana State lost only one, Florida and Washington and Lee, two each, and Virginia Military Institute, Mississippi A. and M. and Tulane, three each.

There were nineteen bouts on the matinee program, which attracted a crowd of 2,000. The first seven were elimination matches, and the remaining nine quarter final bouts.

Technical knockouts were registered in seven of the sixteen bouts. The first came in the bantam elimination match, Riddick, of Duke, flooring Young, of North Carolina, in the second round.

Capt. Buck, of Virginia Military Institute, won over Clark, Louisiana State featherweight, and Duke registered its second victory of the afternoon when Starnes bested Surlowitz, Washington and Lee.

Mississippi Welter Scores Knockout.

The Gators, last year's champions, registered their first win when Houston was awarded the verdict over Norton, of Louisiana State, after three fast rounds.

The Tarheels, favored to win the championship for the third time since the ring game was started in the Southern Conference, presented its first winner in Landis, heavyweight, who bested Munday, of Washington and Lee.

The heavyweight elimination match was a battle of gridiron stars—Bryant, Virginia, and Dunn, Virginia Military Institute. In a dual meet at Lexington the Cavalier won by a knockout at the start of the first round, but this afternoon the cadet did not succumb until the third round when Referee Lukas stopped the match.

Three sterling featherweight crashed through with victories — Goldstein, Virginia; Leavenson, North Carolina, and Southgate Martin, Duke. The last named won a technical knockout over Stubbs, of Tulane.

An upset came in the final bout of the afternoon when "Ding Dong" Jacobs, of Tulane, a skilled scrapper, was knocked out in the third round, after having had the best of the argument with Pecaham, of Florida, up to that time.

Georgia, one of the favorites to clinch the title, narrowly escaped elimination in its first test tonight. The Washington and Lee Generals tied the Bulldogs at 30-30 during the regulation game and only an extra period gave Georgia a 32-31 victory.

Auburn pulled the big first day upset in the tournament this afternoon when it took the measure of the University of Virginia's tossers by the score 33-26, after a determined second half drive.

Auburn's courtmen went into the final inning with the score 17-15 in favor of Virginia, but Jordan and Kaley, crack Auburn forward and guard, came through with opportune baskets to give their team a well-earned victory.

With Rogers, forward, turning in his brightest bit of shooting of the year, Duke moved into the second round of the tournament this afternoon by nosing out Clemson, 31-27. Rogers' work was a life-saver for the Dukes, whose great center and persistent high scorer, Joe Croson, failed to add appreciably to his team's percentage.

Clemson threatened seriously in the second half, after going into that period on the short end of an 18-10 score. All Clemson hands joined in the scoring. But a Duke team, generously sprinkled with reserve material, held a small but fairly comfortable advantage at the end.

G. W. and American U. In Final Frays Tonight

The home basket ball season for major local colleges ends tonight, when George Washington entertains Drexel Institute in the H street gym and American plays host to Virginia Medical on the Methodists' floor. Both games begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Past performances indicate victories for the local teams, George Washington having beaten Drexel in Philadelphia, 47-23, and American having defeated the Medicos in Richmond, 26-24.

Play in the Washington Collegiate Conference continues tonight, with Bliss engaging Southeastern at Silver Spring Armory and Strayer tackling the champion Ben Franklin Team at Tech High. The Bliss-Southeastern affair will be part of a home-coming celebration in honor of the Bliss players. It will be preceded by a game between two girls' sextets—the Towson All-Stars and the Aloysius Club—commencing at 7:30 o'clock. Dancing will follow the varsity game.

Biennial Davis Cup Play Urged by South Africa

Philadelphia, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—A proposal that Davis Cup tennis competition be held biennially instead of annually has been made to the International Lawn Tennis Federation by the South African Lawn Tennis Union, according to Paul M. Gibbons, Philadelphia, secretary of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

The suggestion also contained a warning that the cup series ultimately will go into decline unless such a change is made.

Piedmont Loop Admits Charlotte and Asheville

Durham, N. C., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—W. G. Bramham, president of the disbanded South Atlantic Baseball Association and the Piedmont League, said today Piedmont clubs had voted in favor of admitting Charlotte and Asheville to the circuit.

Whitney's Easter Hero Runs Second in Upset

Lingfield, England, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—J. H. (Jock) Whitney's Grand National candidate, Easter Hero, was defeated today in the 2-mile Buckhurst Handicap Steeplechase by Maj. C. E. Davy's Desert Chief.

Easter Hero, an overwhelming favorite in the betting, made all the running and cleared the last fence four lengths ahead. Desert Chief, coming like a whirlwind, just nipped the American horse at the wire.

Observers were inclined to discount the victory, pointing out that the race was hardly a Grand National test, since it was only at 2 miles, whereas the steeplechasing classic is over four. They also believed Easter Hero could have won if his rider had not been overconfident.

Northwestern Five May Clinch Honors

Chicago, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Northwestern's Wildcats will be ni Columbus, Ohio, tomorrow night with the purpose of formally clinching the Western Conference basket ball championship by a victory over Ohio State.

Northwestern, with its nine victories and one defeta, virtually is in now, but another triumph will clinch the title.

Minnesota, the erstwhile competitor in the race, will meet Purdue and, at the rate the Boilermakers have been traveling since recovering from their weak start, the Gophers may take another beating.

In previous meetings both Northwestern and Minnesota were victorious over tomorrow night's opposition.

Lott Beats Mexican; In Pan-American Final

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The Latin-American threat was removed from the Pan-American tennis championships here today, when George Lott, Chicago seeded player in the tournament, eliminated Ricardo Tapia, Mexican star, in singles semi-finlas play, 6—1, 6—2, 6—0.

Lott then teamed with John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., to defeat Tapia and Gustavo Vollmer, Cuban ace, 6—1, 6—1, 7—5, in doubles.

Lott and Van Ryn will play Hall nad Rainville for the doubles title tomorrow, with the singles finals scheduled for Sunday. In the singles Lott will face the winner of the Van Ryn and Hall semifinal round slated for tomorrow.

Rapp, Third Baseman, Reenters Georgetown

Bill Rapp, Washington boy, has reentered Georgetown University as a student in the foreign service branch and may be available for service with the Hilltop baseball team this spring. About one month ago Rapp was one of several athletes declared ineligible because of academic failures, and at that time was not expected to continue in the university. He is a third baseman, but last spring filled a utility role.

TUT KNOCKED OUT; PURSES HELD UP

Petrolle's Triumph Is Suspected as Cheers Turn to Boos.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Battle-scarred Billy Petrolle, a mad hatter of a puncher from the wide open spaces of North Dakota, blasted his blonde tormentor, King Tut, from Minneapolis, into defeat in four rounds tonight, but aroused so much question in so doing that the New York State Athletic Commission ordered the purses of both fighters held up.

Petrolle knocked the blonde King, who a few weeks ago flattened him in 34 seconds in St. Paul, down and out in two minutes and nine seconds of the fourth round after belting him to the canvas three times with left hooks and right crosses to the chin. The finishing punch was a left hook to the jaw that stretched the squat blonde helpless and bleeding on the rug, but the crowd roared in suspicion and the moguls of boxing in this State shook their heads.

Commissioner Orders Purses Held.

From the ringside, Commissioner John J. Phelan ordered that the purses be held up until an investigation could be conducted.

"I don't care to say anything about it at this time," the Commissioner said. "I will say that it looked to me to be the sort of fight that deserves a little investigation. Our action speaks for itself."

To the 12,000 customers who gathered about the battle pit for the sixth of the Petrolle-Tut series, it was a savage, boisterous battle, replete with thrills and studded with fierce punching and knockdowns until the Minneapolis blonde dropped

A's Quoted at 7 to 10 to Win; Nats 3-1, Yanks 4-1, in Odds

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Betting odds on the 1931 major league races make the Philadelphia athletics a prohibitive favorite to win their third consecutive American League pennant, but no definite choice is established in the National League.

The odds, as quoted today by Tom Kearney, the St. Louis bookmaker whose prices are accepted all over the country, are:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Team.	Odds.	Team.	Odds.
Philadelphia	7-10	Detroit	20-1
Washington	3-1	St. Louis	100-1
New York	4-1	Chicago	100-1
Cleveland	8-1	Boston	100-1

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Team.	Odds.	Team.	Odds.
St. Louis	5-2	New York	6-2
Brooklyn	5-2	Philadelphia	60-2
Chicago	5-2	Boston	80-2
Pittsburgh	6-2	Cincinnati	100-2

In the American League dope all clubs are figured to finish just as they did in 1930. Odds offered against St. Louis, Chicago and Boston are the highest ever quoted in the major leagues and larger than those against any National League contender.

Although the Cardinals outclassed all opposition in the National League last season after they overcame injuries, the great spurt from last to first place is not accounted of sufficient import to life them over the fourth place Brooklyn Robins.

Brooklyn's acquisition of Fresco Thompson and Lefty O'Doul has pulled the Ribins above the third place New York Giants in the bookies' list, while Hornsby's expected return to active competition and the addition of veteran pitching talent has made the Chicago Cubs an even choice with

NAVY MEETS PENN STATE BOXERS IN SPORT FEATURE

Nittany Lions Threaten Record

Maryland Varsity and Frosh Riflists to Face Middies.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 27.—Another varied athletic card of thirteen events, eleven at the Naval Academy and two a St. John's, marks tomorrow's program here. While the afternoon offers a long range of contests, principal interest centers in the night attractions, which finds the Middie leather slingers facing their chief rivals, Penn State, while St. John's cagers will wind up their campaign by tussling with Hopkins Varsity and Freshmen teams.

Through twelve seasons of boxing Penn State has been the only team ever to seriously threaten Navy's great record. The Nittany Lion battlers are particularly well fortified this season in the lighter weights, where the Middies also pack skill and punch. Because the stars of the two teams will meet in their respective classes, both contingents are vastly excited over the clash. Navy's edge lies in big Frank Crinkley, heavyweight. Crinkley is almost certain to best his State rival, and even if the teams divide the first six bouts Navy will feel reasonably safe.

Penn State Relies On Trio.

Stoops, bantam; Epstein, feather, and Lewis, welter, are the three men Penn State is banking upon. Stoops will face either Bolan or Wright, Epstein will oppose Fitzgerald, one of the aces of the Navy team, while Lewis will battle Hall, intercollegiate champion. Hall won from Lewis in the finals last year when he cut the Lion battler so badly he could not continue. Davis, middleweight, and Andrews, light heavy, meet State men equally as inexperienced. Action is set for 8:30 p. m.

The afternoon card finds wrestling with Lehigh as the star attraction. The grappling will not get under way until 4 o'clock, however, and the swimming meet, with City College of New York, starting half an hour sooner, will draw many who are anxious to see Ray Thompson, Navy's dash specialist, perform, while in water polo the Tars will also face City College, which boasts the league's leading scorer.

Maryland Riflemen To Invade.

The only early events are rifle matches between the Navy and Maryland, varsity and plebes. At 2:30 o'clock there will be swimming with Mercersburg Academy, and wrestling involving Franklin and Marshall Academy and the plebes. A plebe gym meet with a New Jersey high school is slated for 4 o'clock, while a practice track meet between the Navy and Maryland is planned outdoors.

The week's fencing match will be with Hamilton College.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

NURSERY Stakes, second division, for 2-year-old fillies, features a sparkling card today at Hialeah Park, the first division of which was run last week for colts and geldings. The Cold Stream Stud's VIBA, by Upset—Binding, is selected to win the $2,000 purse, as she won in her last start by a length from Porter's Dream and Cholla by a length, running the distance of the straightaway, slightly less than three furlongs, in 0:33 3-5. She had some bad luck in that race also. She picks up a penalty and carries 110 pounds. J. E. Widener's FAIREST is rated the contender. PINK should be close.

FIRST RACE — MINERALOGIST, after coming close in two recent starts, should make good here. He was second to Woodgain, and the favorite, Thursday. SCARLET BRIGADE may get the place money, but he will be an outsider in the betting. STUPENDOUS should be in the money.

SECOND RACE—PROMETHEUS has had a checkered career at Miami, but he may redeem recent failures by winning here. He is running against the weakest opposition he has met this winter. CHLO BOY may come to life and take second money. JACK HOWE is rated best of the others.

THIRD RACE—LA HOE should repeat in this. The Rancocas cast-off galloped home in his last start, beating Prince Takalon in 1:40 on a heavy track. But if anything should happen, BOUNDING DEEP would be close around to take up the running.

FIFTH RACE—RACCOON seems to be a stand-out in the Keenland handicap, secondary feature. He was running fast Thursday, being second to Sandy Ford all the way. SUN MISSION seems to be the only probable challenger.

SIXTH RACE—OKAYBEE is overdue and is picked to beat DEDICATE, but this is a hard race. DEDICATE'S last was a good race, in which the Everglade colt beat Murky Cloud, but that was a distance race, and this is a 5½-furlong sprint, in which OKAYBEE will be at home.

SEVENTH RACE—NEALON KAY has the edge here. He was third to Punishment in his last start, and that makes him look much the best. FAIR BILL appears to be the strongest of the opposition.

Suburban Bowlers Fail in Tournament

Suburban bowlers, participating in the National Duckpin Bowling Championships being held at Convention Hall alleys, failed to make any high scores last night.

The best performers were those of the Rockville Bowling Alley outfit, which leveled 1,554 pins, and the Sports, of Frederick, Md., which turned in a 1,581 card.

Paully Harrison, brilliant local youngster, toppled out of first place in the all events sector when J. Della, sterling Baltimore exponent, moved into the top post with a total of 1,132. Harrison remained second with 1,094.

St. Alban's Five Wins From Friends, 27-10

St. Alban's surprising basket ball team wound up its high successful season yesterday at Friends' School gym, when it took its hosts into camp by the score of 27-10.

Big Bob Freeman, asusual, was the major howitzer on the Saints' outfit. The former Western High star came through with eight field goals to set the pace for the high schorer.

PRESSURE RELENTS AGAINST U.S. BONDS

Treasury Issues Regain Bit of Lost Ground After Low Levels.

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The bond market got a load off its chest today when pressure against Government obligations was lifted, permitting long-term Treasury issues to regain a little lost ground.

Treasuries advanced from 3-16 to 1-2 a point from the week's bottom reached yesterday. Buying however was not as extensive as the selling in the two previous sessions. Liquidation appeared to have dried up, permitting the group to make some headway coincident with the disposal of the soldiers' bonus legislation through the concurrence by the Senate in the House's action in overriding the Presidential veto.

Corporate domestic issues paid little heed to the better tone of Governments. Traders displayed little interest in the list and the volume of business receded. It again remained for the foreign list to provide the market with some relief from its dullness. Heavier turnover in a rising market that carried some to new 1931 peaks tells the story.

Real Vitality Shown.

The dullness of the domestic market this week has apparently turned investors to the foreign list where yields generally are even more attractive than among home investments. European and Latin-American bonds were depressed last year due to political and economic developments and only recently have they shown any real vitality.

Both European and Latin American bonds shared in the improvement. New 1931 highs were reached by Berlin City 6½s, Berlin City Electric 6s, German 5½s, German Central Agricultural Bank 7s, Cordova City 7s, Pirelli Co. of Italy 7s and Budapest City 6s.

Australian bonds were buoyant in the clear-cut statement of the Australian government denying any intention to repudiate its external debt. There were gains of a point or more in several South Americans, notably, Rio Grande Do Sul 7s, Uruguay 6s, of 1960; Brazil 6½s, Chile 6s and 7s and Argentine 6s of September, 1960, the latter at a new year's high.

City of Philadelphia.

With only a total of $19,000,000 in new financing for the shortened week, the market was surprised today by announcement of two additional offerings totaling $27,500,000. Apparently encouraged by the reception accorded the Pere Marquette 4½ per cent issue, offering syndicates for $15,000,000 city of Philadelphia 4s and 4¼s, and $12,500,000 Southern California Gas Co. 4½s marketed them today.

The Consolidated Gas Co. is expected to market $40,000,000 debenture 4½ bonds within a fortnight. Strength to this belief was lent by trading in the bonds on a when issued basis on the produce exchange today.

LOW-PRICED STOCKS JUMP INTO DEMAND

Industrials and Utilities Give Market Rather Tired Appearance.

New York, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Leading stocks took the back seats in today's irregular market, but professional traders filled vacancies in the front rows with a miscellaneous assortment of low-priced shares which the advance had neglected.

Listlessness of the industrials and utilities gave the general market a rather tired appearance and the sluggishness encouraged selling in the last hour after a final attempt had been made to inject spirit into the list via the merchandising and copper issues. Net losses of 1 to 2 points in recent strong stocks indicated that profit taking was a major consideration with many traders. Sales totaled 3,700,000 shares against Thursday's turnover of 4,600,000.

Bonds, dull but slightly steadier, appeared to be relieved by the final decision on the bonus, for United States Governments rallied, some as much as half a point. The Treasury's March 15 financing plans are expected to appear early next week. A stronger Winnipeg market and an improved export demand tended to offset concern over Farm Board selling and wet weather in the West, and wheat firmed after early heaviness, closing virtually unchanged. Corn finished slightly lower and cotton was off 8 to 11 points.

Radio Loses Point.

The range of prominent stocks was narrow compared with recent fluctuations. United States Steel, after several unsuccessful attempts, made up the dividend of $1.75 but then receded and closed fractionally lower. Radio, after losing two points, more than made up its decline, although it finished with a 1-point loss. Bethlehem, General Electric, American Telephone, Byers, Consolidated Gas, North American, Loew's, Paramount, Case, Westinghouse and International Telephone ended the day 1 to more than 2 points off.

Reports that both Rock Island and St. Louis & San Francisco were likely to declare common dividends next week held those stocks relatively firm, although the latter was off more than 3 before word of the directors' intentions to vote a $1 payment was circulated.

The list of temporary popular specialties rising 1 to 5 points included Borg Warner, Holland Furnace, National Supply, Kroger, United Fruit, Warren Bros., Spiegel May, Wrigley, Hahn, preferred; National Tea, Superior Steel, Purity Baking, Pierce Oil, preferred and Columbia Graphophone. Most of their gain was held. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck, after rising a point, sagged back to yesterday's close.

Reviews Are Conservative.

Weekly mercantile reviews phrased conservatively their reports on the state of trade, agreeing that some gains had been made, but that, in the words of Bradstreet's, improvement for spring or beyond was "more largely in sentiment than in actual turnover." There is a slight forward movement in wholesaling and jobbing, especially in the West. "Without disregarding the seasonal character of the upturn in some lines," said Dun's, "and with recognition of the unsatisfactory features which yet remain, the outlook is reassuring." The same review reported that commercial failures throughout the country had been at "an unusually high level" for another week.

The approach of the month-end went unnoticed in the money markets, said a large supply of demand loan offerings found no takers, even at concessions from the unofficial rate of 1 per cent.

South American currencies improved, but otherwise there was little change in foreign exchanges. Sterling cables were firm at $4.85 13-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Lessening of nervousness over proposed large scale export selling of United States wheat at Liverpool had a conspicuous steadying effect on grain markets today. Wheat trade leaders emphasized that moves to dispose of American Seaboard stocks of wheat would be helpful in averting congestion of storage facilities here. Announcements that banks were asking increased margins on wheat loans had no market effect, the rate changes being looked upon generally as a seasonal step toward a new crop basis.

Wheat closed firm, unchanged to 1/4 cent higher, corn at 1/8 decline to 1/8 advance, oats 1/8 to 3/8 off and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Helping to give poise to grain values was evidence that European markets were in a watchful waiting attitude, and were following rather than leading price developments on this side of the Atlantic. Only at one stage did wheat show a downward trend. That was after corn had temporarily dropped to a fresh bottom price record for the season. Brief news was received that American farm board allies had sold No. 1 hard winter wheat to Antwerp at equal to 10 cents a bushel under Chicago May delivery.

Transient downturns carried both wheat and corn about a cent a bushel lower, but rallies ensued when the fact became apparent that the setback in corn was due to other terminals offering corn to Chicago at the wheat discount, yet this season. Another development which promoted late upturns was an official report showing that stocks of domestic wheat in export positions totaled but 25,363,000 bushels, almost evenly divided between Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf of Mexico outlets. It was also received that the question of whether the Australian government would consent to an export bonus would be settled until March 4.

Throughout the day, corn was under more selling pressure than was wheat. Chicago receipts of corn totaled 271 cars, compared with 161 a week back and 126 on the corresponding day of 1930. Arrivals at other primary markets, however, were smaller than a week ago. Oats were governed chiefly by the action of corn.

Provisions were responsive to changes in hog values.

FAIRFAX EDUCATORS TALK OVER SURVEY

Plans to Advise Pupils on Life's Work Are Made by Principals.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
F. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon, 3324-W-2.

Principals of high schools of Fairfax County, members of the county school board and C. J. Hyslup, State director of vocational education, met yesterday afternoon in the office of Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson and discussed the results of the county-wide survey among the high school pupils of the county concerning the demand for vocational education and guidance. This survey was made last December when questionnaires were filled out by the students showing their preference for future courses of study.

Director Hyslup reported that when the results were checked, the following were outstanding: That of 81 per cent of the girls who indicated their choice, 287, 79 per cent, chose one of the three occupations they expected to follow on completing high school. These were teaching, nursing and secretarial work. That of the total number of boys, which was 363, taking part in the survey, 71.4 per cent indicated that they had chosen some vocation, and of the 356 girls answering the questions, 81 per cent showed that they had decided upon their life's work. Agriculture and aviation headed the list of the boys choosing, while the various branches of engineering ranked second.

The number of occupations listed by the pupils was extremely small; the average number listed by the boys in each school was a fraction more than fourteen and the girls averaged only nine. It was also noted that 55 per cent of the pupils desired to hold conferences with their teachers concerning the problem of selecting a life's work. There were 122 boys who indicated that they would be interested in some type of vocational education in high school. The majority of the number stated that they would be more interested in automobile mechanics or electrical work. The survey showed that the interest in commercial courses was very apparent in each of the six high schools.

Summing up the survey, Mr. Hyslup stated that the result of the survey showed very clearly the great need of a vocational trade school for boys and girls in Fairfax County and that vocational and educational guidance are little in evidence in the county but very much needed in the light of the survey.

He suggested that the principals form guidance committees in each high school to advise the students, to secure literature on occupations and industries and the possibilities of each; to make a survey of the local industries and give the pupils a broad view of the various occupational fields so they might choose their life's work more wisely and intelligently and find their best abilities and interests. He advised that teachers correlate teaching of vocational work as much as possible with the regular subject, to interview personally each student and find out what he is most interested in, and show what the college requirements are in the chosen fields, to build the school libraries on subjects that explain the various vocations and to have the seniors write themes on the subjects they are most interested in.

The principals decided to raise funds to purchase certain recommended vocational guidance books for their school libraries during this school term and to work up the pupils' interest in this branch of teaching by having the teacher give vocational work along with the subject now taught. It is hoped that in time the vocational civics can be taught in all the county schools, making it a required subject in the freshman year and an additional credit will be given for a special course in the senior year which will be an optional subject for the student. The teacher will assist the students in making out a program of study in high school that will fit them for the vocation they wish to pursue in later life.

Teachers of Franklin Sherman High School at McLean presented a supper dance last night at the school for benefit of the school fund. The dinner was in charge of Mrs. A. M. Berthiaume, who was assisted by Miss Bertha F. Hibbs, Miss Jennie Tomko and Miss Margaret Wingo. Miss Louise Millard and Miss Mary Leigh had charge of table decorations, G. C. Cox, tables and dishes, Miss Adele Pfaisgraf, publicity, Miss Eolene Follin and Miss Ruby Dunkham, programs and decorations.

The weekly fox hunt of the Fairfax Hunt Club will start this morning at 10 o'clock from the club house at Sunset Hills, Va. Following the hunt, a club breakfast will be served.

The special water committee of the town of Falls Church held a meeting in the Falls Church Police Station and discussed the best methods of procedure following the success of the recent bond issue election. The principal question considered was the holding of a second election of the qualified voters. The first election of the freehold property owners on the water bond issue is believed to be sufficient, but opinion seemed to be divided as to the wisdom of delaying the installation long enough to hold a second election.

It was decided to hold a conference Monday with Attorney John S. Barbour to discuss the next step. The engineering subcommittee was instructed to investigate the qualifications of an engineer to handle the job and to be ready to make recommendations at the next meeting of the town council.

The Fairfax County board of supervisors held a special meeting in the board room of the courthouse at Fairfax to discuss questions of the sanitary condition and public health work in Fairfax County with representatives of the State health department. The State department was represented by Col. C. R. Kelley, of Richmond, State director of rural health; Dr. H. G. Grant, assistant director of rural health and State Epidemiologist, and James W. Smith, who has charge of northern Virginia in sanitation work.

The meeting was held to determine what course would be followed when the annual budget, which includes funds for health work, is made up next week.

Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr, of Fairfax, stated yesterday that rumors had reached him concerning his being a candidate for Commonwealth's attorney for Fairfax County this year. He stated that many persons were saying that he was not going to seek this office again. "This is absolutely false," he declared. "While I have not made an official announcement, I intend to be a candidate for this office and will make an official announcement of my candidacy in the near future."

Available Outlets Provided for Products Cited in Partial Survey.

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Virginia is favorably located with respect to market outlets for agricultural products, material prepared by C. C. Taylor, former professor of agricultural economics at V. P. I., for use in the State industrial survey being made jointly by the engineering extension division of V. P. I. and the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, points out.

Virginia is primarily an agricultural State, with the welfare of its entire population depending upon the general prosperity of the farming people, who represent about 40 per cent of the population. Because a large proportion of the urban population depends upon trade of the country people, and most important industries look to the farms of Virginia for their raw material, the commercial importance of agriculture is doubly great, the author says.

Three Major Cities.

Within the State, there are three cities of more than 50,000 population. The groups of cities around Hampton Roads represents an unusually important market because large quantities of agricultural products are used for supplying nearby military posts and many vessels replenish their supplies at this port. There are eleven other cities in Virginia having a population of between 10,000 and 50,000, and 74 towns with a population of between 1,000 and 10,000 each. These 88 urban communities constitute the principal market outlets within the State.

Social conditions which influence farming in Virginia were discussed. Agricultural advancement in Virginia, the chapter says, has been handicapped by the lack of education among farmers, particularly Negro farmers, among whom illiteracy is high and the influence of science in agriculture is negligible. The lack of educational facilities dates back to the devastation of Virginia's wealth and resources during the war between the States, but the increase in taxable wealth offers much promise for the educational advancement of Virginia farmers in the future, Mr. Taylor said.

Isolation Being Ended.

The disadvantage of isolation among farmers in the past was said to be in the process of being replaced by the development of farmers' organizations. These organizations, although they include a small fraction of the total number of farmers, are directed by vigorous leadership which was doing much to improve conditions through adult education, and their influence on governmental administration.

Supplementing these, the chapter continued, are a large number of cooperative associations engaged in the business of marketing farm products or buying farm supplies for their members. The aggregate volume of cooperative business amounts to about $25,000,000 a year, of which a small but increasing proportion is represented by cooperative purchasing.

The completed industrial survey was expected to be published early next summer by the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce. The material is being compiled by faculty members of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Hamilton Man Weds Teacher in Washington

Special to The Washington Post.

Round Hill, Va., Feb. 27.—Samuel O. Graham, son of Mrs. W. R. Graham, of Hamilton, and Miss Frances C. Ballenger, daughter of Mrs. Nannie C. Ballenger, were married in Washington yesterday by the Rev. J. W. Morris.

The bride is a teacher in the Purcellville graded school, and the bridegroom is a prominent business man. They will reside in Round Hill.

COLLEGE EDUCATION FOR GIRLS STRESSED

Mrs. J. K. Bowman, in Interview, Calls Training Necessity.

Richmond, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Mrs. J. K. Bowman, first vice president of the National Business and Professional Women's Clubs, said today that a college education for the woman in the business world is more important than it is for a man.

"While it is a recognized asset in the business world for both men and women, I believe it is even more important at the present time for a woman than a man, since opportunities still open easier for men than for women, and women consequently need every added advantage to overcome that fact," Mrs. Bowman said in an interview given to Lewis Warren, of Richmond, for publication in the Southern Collegian, a magazine sponsored by the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association, which made its initial appearance today.

Mrs. Bowman, who now is engaged in a successful business of her own here, continued with the statement: "Indeed, at the present time a college course has become so essential that the woman who enters the business world without one starts with a real handicap.

"It is impossible to overestimate the value of college training to the young woman starting in business. It is one of the most vital factors in her favor in securing a position in the first place as is shown by the fact that almost every questionnaire asks 'Have you a college education?'"

Death of Veteran Remains Mystery

Prince George Courthouse, Va., Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Coroner W. C. Webb returned a verdict today that Walter G. Spangler, 42-year-old shell-shocked veteran, whose bleached bones were found in woods near here this week, came to his death in a manner unknown to authorities.

The inquest also failed in fixing the time of the death of the veteran who was last seen alive September 12, 1929, near the spot where the bones were discovered.

Mrs. Spangler, of Reidsville, N. C., widow of the dead man, identified clothing and other articles as those belonging to her husband. The body was sent to Reidsville for burial.

Features in Tomorrow's Post

Veto of the bonus bill by President Hoover focuses attention on the use of this prerogative by the White House in this and other administrations. How does President Hoover's record in rejecting legislation compare with those of his predecessors? How often has he asserted his unwavering opposition to measures which have been popularly passed by Congress thus far. David Rankin Barbee, of The Post staff, writes a penetrating article on this timely topic to appear in The Washington Post tomorrow.

Washington's leading industry comes to a close this week, unless all indications go awry. What have been the accomplishments, the outstanding acts of commission and omission, the facts which make the Seventy-first Congress an unusual legislative mill. An article on this subject appears as a feature of the tabloid magazine.

Do all roads lead to Mexico? A long-time resident of the neighboring republic has written a colorful story of the land to the south appearing in tomorrow's Post. It is the description of the new Mexico that is rising prom progress along its new highways, the moving picture films and other signs of advancement from the United States.

CONSTITUTION BILLS ARE UP IN MARYLAND

Two Measures Calling for Convention on Changes Are Presented.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Twin bills which provide for calling of a constitutional convention to consider possible changes in the Maryland constitution, were introduced in the Senate and House of the General Assembly today. They are administration measures, drafted by Attorney General W. Preston Lane and were presented to the houses at the instance of Gov. Ritchie. Senator David O. McIntosh, jr., Baltimore County, presented the measure in the upper branch, while James J. Lindsay, also of Baltimore County, Democratic floor leader of the House, offered it in that body.

A resolution extending an invitation to Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, Marine Corps, to address the assembly on the subject of police organization and administration, was presented before adjournment until Monday night.

Steps calling a constitutional convention are in accord with the mandate of voters at the last general election in November, when the proposal received a majority.

60 Days Limit.

The bills provide that all of the counties and Baltimore City shall name delegates to the proposed convention, and it is stipulated that sessions should be held as long as there is any business to be considered, but 60 days is fixed as the maximum limit.

The special legislative committee appointed early in the session to consider the proposal of bridging Chesapeake Bay has ended its inquiries, Senator Emory G. Coblentz, of Frederick, announced today, and a meeting has been called for next Wednesday, when a report will be drafted.

Decision to bring the committee's activities to a close followed an open hearing when opponents of the plan had their say. Included among these were former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, Cambridge, who is president of the Claiborne Annapolis Ferry Co., W. Mason Shedran, Easton, a director of that company, and Senator Dudley G. Roe, Queen Anne County.

"While the substance of the committee's report has not been revealed it is understood it will suggest that the appointment of a special commission, to have some engineers on its membership, qualified to make its own traffic surveys to determine the need for a bridge, and to sound out the sentiment of the State toward spending $10,000,000 or more for the structure.

Taxicab Bus Measure.

Bills of State-wide interest that were started through legislative channels today included one drafted by the public service commission which tightens the regulations governing taxicab companies. The measure was presented in the Senate by Senator McIntosh, and under its provisions taxicab companies operating in Baltimore City and other sections of the State that desire it would be placed under supervision of the service commission. Either insurance of $10,000 for each cab or a blanket bond would be required of the companies.

Another service commission bill provides that all holding companies chartered or having offices in other States must maintain a resident agent in Maryland upon whom services at law could be made.

Delegate Carroll (Democrat), Carroll County, introduced in the House a bill that provides that persons starting fires on their own property would be held liable for damages from flames spreading to adjoining properties.

Hunter Boyd, Jr., Dies in Hospital

Baltimore, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Hunter Boyd, jr., general attorney for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, died today at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he had been taken after a heart attack.

Mr. Boyd, 52 years old; a bachelor, was the son of the late Chief Justice Boyd of the Maryland Court of Appeals. Born in Cumberland, he was graduated from Princeton University in 1900, where he made a brilliant record.

After his graduation, in 1902, from the University of Maryland Law School he practiced several years before joining the railroad legal staff.

Mr. Boyd is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bessie M. Thurston Boyd, of Cumberland, and a brother, J. Thurston Boyd, of Cumberland. The body will be taken to Cumberland tonight.

WASHINGTON STREET ROUTE GETS BACKING

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Joining in the movement sponsored by the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association, and backed by representatives of Ballston, Clarendon, Lyon Park and Lyon Village Citizens Associations, to have the county officials take over Washington street as the most logical and direct route to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge, it has been announced that the Livingstone Heights Civic League is unanimously behind the movement. The committee from the Livingstone Heights Civic League, named to work with the other committees, includes Walter G. Campbell, chairman; Harry C. Bates, Joseph G. Dunn, and John A. Petty.

L. C. McNemar, chairman of the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association, which is taking the lead in the movement, stated last night that he hopes to have every association in this section of the county appoint a special committee. With this accomplished, Chairman McNemar stated the matter will be presented in concrete form to the county board of supervisors.

A committee headed by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth has already been appointed to obtain the remaining rights of way needed and it is hoped that this committee will complete its work within the next few days, McNemar stated.

John Edward Anderson, 19 years old, of Washington, was held yesterday on a charge of manslaughter, by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, in connection with the death of Louise Hern, of 2414 K street, Washington.

Anderson, who will be represented by Attorney H. Bruce Green at the hearing to be held Monday morning before Police Judge Harry R. Thomas, was released last night on $1,000 bond. Charles H. Turlington also 19, and of Washington, who was in the car Anderson was driving when the death resulted, was not held.

The mass meeting scheduled for tonight in the Ashton Heights Women's Clubhouse, to protest use of convict labor on the Lee boulevard by the State Highway Department, has been postponed, according to an announcement last night by Thomas R. Mechem, chairman of the committee on arrangements. The meeting will be held Thursday night, March 5.

Election of officers will be the principal business at the meeting of the Clarendon Lodge, No. 1315, Loyal Order of Moose, Monday night. The lodge will meet in its new hall, at the intersection of Courthouse road and Wilson boulevard.

The March meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation will be held in the Lyon Park Community Hall Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. With a number of important projects to be considered, President Harry A. Fellows has requested that all delegates attend.

Walter O'Hara, owner and developer of a major section of Bancroft, stated last night that he has signed a lease with the State highway department for the use of a 50-acre tract of land in that section for a convict camp, to be used in connection with Lee boulevard construction. Mr. O'Hara stated he has refused compensation for use of the land and that it will be available to the State as long as work is going on.

In order that the camp may be as modern as possible, Mr. O'Hara stated that water from the county water system will run through the camp, and electric lights will be installed. Poles were erected yesterday.

There are now 20 prisoners in the camp, erecting the necessary buildings which will house the 100 men, who are to arrive in the county next week.

"I have erected more than 52 homes in this section, which practically adjoins the site on which the camp will be located and all of these homes are now occupied mostly by Government clerks, and not one has expressed any objection to the camp being located in this section or in Arlington County," said Mr. O'Hara.

"I consider the location of this prison camp in the county a superior arrangement to establishment of a camp by a private contractor, who would have men coming into it at all hours of the night. In this camp the lights go out at 9 o'clock, and all men are inside," he declared.

"The people of Arlington County should cooperate with the State Highway Department in construction of this boulevard, which means more to Arlington County than any other road ever constructed within its boundaries, instead of trying to stop construction by protesting the use of convict labor, which has been used on the roads in the State for many years," he concluded.

The County Board of Supervisors will hold its monthly meeting at the courthouse today. The morning session will convene at 10 o'clock with Chairman Edward Duncan presiding.

Representative William R. Eaton, of Colorado, will be the principal speaker at a special meeting to be held tonight by Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon. The master Mason's degree will be conferred.

County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green announced yesterday that the forms for personal and State income tax returns are now at his office for distribution to taxpayers. He said returns must be filed with his office on or before June 1, and that he and his assistants will assist in preparation of returns.

The exemption of State income returns was increased by the last General Assembly of Virginia, and married persons are now allowed $2,800, plus $400 for each dependent, instead of $2,000, plus $400 for each dependent, in the old law. Single persons are now allowed, according to the new law, exemptions totaling $1,350 instead of $1,000 as before.

The Cherrydale Council, No. 11, Daughters America, will present an American flag to the Parent-Teacher Association of the Cherrydale School tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The presentation will be made on the school grounds, weather permitting, after which the flag will be raised on the pole on the grounds. A special program has been arranged and all county school officials have been invited to attend.

The Charles J. English family, oGspel singers, will conduct both morning and evening services tomorrow at the Cherrydale Baptist Church.

The Clarendon Loyal Temperance Legion will hold its monthly meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of the director, Miss Sara Miller, 60 Virginia avenue.

The Women's Society of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church has announced a food sale to be held today in the building formerly occupied by the Virginia Public Service Co. on Wilson boulevard. A luncheon will be served from 11 to 2 o'clock.

THE BRIDGE CRUISE.

("Two hundred and fifty bridge players sail on liner for sixteen-day bridge-cruise to West Indies."—News Item).

* * * *

The haze dissolving, there appeared
An island locked within it—
A coral reef and no one said
A word for quite a minute.
Then suddenly a tourist did;
He uttered two: "No bid."

How fair a vision! How serene!
Can men forget them who have seen
West Indian panoramas?
Can others match the palm-tree cove
They entered on the day they hove
In sight of the Bahamas?
On that occasion some one broke
The silence with "Revoke."

How soft a breeze off Cuba,
One day, however, there arose
A squall that threatened trouble.
Though perfect order was preserved,
One passenger appeared unnerved,
Exclaiming, "I redouble!"
His neighbor also had the jumps;
He shouted "Five no trumps!"

At last the ship returned to port
Of passengers a little short
And missing from their places
Two dozen gentlemen, or more,
Had disappeared far, far from shore—
They'd trumped their partners' aces;
This being so, 'twas felt the ship
Had had a most successful trip.

CIRCUS LOSS.

THE recent death of Lillian Leitzel, famous circus queen, in Copenhagen, marks the passing from the sawdust arena of one of the most glamorous figures of circus history. Petite and seemingly fragile, this little woman for 20 years amazed circus audiences throughout the world in a spectacular act requiring incredible strength and endurance. The secret of its success was that it never seemed quite believable.

* * * *

To this writer the great moment of the Greatest Show On Earth always came as the daintiest star of circusdom, suspended by the wrist in mid-air, went through her sensational evolutions as Lew Graham, king of announcers, bawled out the count, "One hundred! two hundred! two hundred and one! two hundred and two!" &c, until it seemed the little lady must come apart in space. The big top will never be the same without her.

A CONSOLING THOUGHT.

MESSRS. Alexander Legge and Samuel R. McKelvie are to retire from the Federal Farm Board and if they are inclined to feel pretty regretful over their experiences they should remember the old saying, "Into each life some grain must fall."

GOOD NEWS.

THE Tariff Commission has reduced the new tariff rates on straw hats and maple syrup, thus bringing the economical breakfast to the American public.

You can appreciate how cheap eggs have become from the fact that they are being thrown at mayors.

With so many people short of food, the egging of Mayor Thompson may have been a friendly act. Chicago may have intended to run him for office as an omelette.

ROAD BILLS GIVEN MARYLAND HOUSE

County Aid Supervisor and Work Agent Asked for Montgomery.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Two bills of interest to Montgomery County made their appearance in the House of Delegates today. Dr. George Edmonds, chairman of the county delegation, introduced a measure which would empower the board of county commissioners to designate one of its members as a road supervisor, who would hire at the rate of $4 per diem, chargeable against the funds for the road work under construction. The second bill provides for the appointment of a supervisor of county aid. Both measures were referred to the county delegation.

While a number of Montgomery bills are now on file in both houses of the assembly, Dr. Edmonds said today two of the most important measures are yet to be presented. They are the bills that will provide for bond issue for roads, and public school construction work. They will probably be introduced next week, Dr. Edmonds said.

Chairman Edmonds said that a bill empowering the county commissioners to increase the expense account of members of the county board of education from $100 to $300, is now being drafted and probably will be read next week.

Delegate Farrington will be its sponsor. The county education officials are unpaid officials, their only allowance being expense accounts.

J. P. Cotton Improved, Says Hospital Report

Baltimore, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—Joseph P. Cotton, Undersecretary of State, who has been in a critical condition for weeks following two operations, was reported "a little better" at Johns Hopkins Hospital today.

Mr. Cotton underwent an operation last month for infection of the spine, and two weeks ago an eye was removed.

$310,989 IN ESTATE OF MILL PRESIDENT

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 27.—The will of the late F. R. Fitzgerald, late president of the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, was admitted to probate in the Corporation Court today. It disposed of an estate valued at $310,989, all of it being left to his widow, Mrs. Ida Flippin Fitzgerald, and his four daughters—Mrs. Russell Gant, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Fuller Hill, Durham, N. C., and Misses Ida and Harriet Fitzgerald, of Danville.

The will was executed December 28, 1922, and included seven clauses. With it was a penciled, undated codicil providing more complete explanation of the settlement for his family.

His widow and the First National Bank of Danville were named joint executors. The estate is composed chiefly of stock in the corporation he headed.

No bequest was made to charity, the testator denoting in his will that it had been his lifelong policy "to share my earnings with various branches of the Lord's work, in consequence of which I have only kept a moderate amount for the protection and benefits of my family."

All of his real estate was left to his wife, and to each of the daughters went 100 shares of the mills' common stock. In addition, he established a trust fund of $50,000, the increment to be paid to the daughtres and to their children. If they die childless the fund will go to the Ferrum Training School, in Franklin County. In the codicil Mr. Fitzgerald said he had transferred 750 shares of common stock to his wife, to be held as a family trust, the income to defray "family expenses." Through shrinkage in stock values the estate is worth only approximately one-fourth its value in 1922.

James I. Pritchett, president of the First National Bank of Danville, was this evening elected president of the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills. Malcolm K. Harris, counsel for the corporation was elected assistant president and treasurer of the mills.

The board of ten was fully represented, and R. A. Schoolfield nominated Mr. Pritchett for the post. Salaries were not set. The post has paid $50,000 a year. Mr. Pritchett has for several years been ranking vice president of the mill organization and is identified with several large Virginia corporations.

NEW SCHOOL BUDGET WILL TOTAL $250,000

$20,000 Additional to Be Sought in Prince Georges County.

A tentative budget for $250,000 for the construction of new schools in Prince Georges County has been sent to the delegation in the legislature, and includes new buildings for both white and colored schools in Marlboro, Surrattsville, Laurel, Ammendale, Aquasco and Fairmont Heights.

In addition to these, a provision for a new school at Bowie is almost certain to be added before the bill is passed authorizing the bond issue. It is understood that one member of the delegation has promised that the bill will not be acted upon until the Bowie school is added, at an additional cost, probably, of $20,000.

In releasing the budget submitted by the school board, the legislators stressed the fact that they have not definitely decided that these recommendations will be included in the bill. The bill authorizing the commissioners to issue bonds customarily bears the details of the building program. A measure following the board's recommendations is being drafted by Ogle Marbury, attorney for the school body, however.

Although $100,000 had been asked for an addition to the white high and elementary schools in Msarlboro, this was cut by the board to $70,000. Eight rooms and auditorium will constitute the new building here.

The request for $60,000 for a new ten-room building for the high and graded schools in Surratts was cut to $55,000, and the sum for Laurel also reduced $5,000. The request from this community was for $60,000 for a four-room and auditorium addition, but only $45,000 was recommended.

Two small colored schools received the same amount they requested, $4,000 for Ammendale and $8,000 for Aquasco, but the proposed appropriation for the Marlboro colored high school was cut from $40,000 to $35,000. The Fairmont Heights cost was reduced from $50,000 to $35,000.

Two other schools made requests for new buildings or additions which were not recommended by the school board. They are the District Line School, which wanted $45,000 for a new building and the purchase of surrounding land, and Meadows School, which wanted a new two-room building to cost $10,000. The land wanted at the District Line School will be purchased out of the current budget of the board at a cost of $2,000.

Not all of the items recommended are certain to be approved finally, as it is known that the delegation is anxious to keep the bond issue within $250,000. The schedule proposed by the board totaled just this figure, but the Bowie request, if granted, will raise the amount. It is not impossible that Bowie will get their school at the expense of some other community.

After a crash on the Southern Maryland pike at Silver Hill yesterday, Henry Hernbaum, of Ontario road, near Euclid street, northwest, was arrested and released on bond of $100. He was charged with reckless driving, failing to stop at an intersection and failing to give the right-of-way.

Hernbaum's car is alleged to have collided with one driven by John F. Burgess, of 1010 G street southeast. Burgess was uninjured.

A sentence of six months in the House of Correction and a fine of $100 was placed against Paul Proctor, colored, when he was convicted yesterday in county police court in Marlboro. Proctor was arrested several days ago by County Policeman Frank Prince near Croome.

Judge J. Chew Sheriff also fined the man on a number of other traffic charges. He will have to pay $25 for being drunk and disorderly, $10 for having fictitious markers, and $1 for having no registration card.

The county war on peddlers who operate without licenses claimed its first victim yesterday when Joseph N. Saah was fined $25. He was arrested in District Heights by Officer Prince. Another case was dismissed because the arresting officer was not present.

Thomas L. Robertson, of Capitol Heights, was held for the grand jury in bond of $500 on a nonsupport charge. Dorothy Gaffany, of Eighteenth street near D street southeast, was fined $10 for driving without a license.

Arrested by State Policeman W. A. Rogers, Edward Bates, of Fifty-fourth street northeast near F street, was fined a total of $48 and committed to jail in default of the fine. He received a fine of $25 for driving on an expired chauffeur's license, $10 for reckless driving, $10 for using tags issued to another, and $1 for having no registration card.

Percy Tolson, of Benning road southeast near Southern avenue, was fined $5 for having no rear light. Lewis Perkins, of Benning road northeast near Twenty-fourth street, paid the same amount for the same offense.

A fine of $10 for reckless driving was placed against Edward S. Eagan, of Thirteenth street near B street northeast. John E. Grimm, of K street northwest near Second street, paid $5 for having no lens in his headlight, and James E. Smith, of Third street southwest near B street, was fined $5 for passing when the road was not clear ahead.

Attorney Robert W. McCullough yesterday noted an appeal in a decision awarding damages of $75 for the death of four pigeons to Arthur E. Buddington, of College Park. Buddington had sued John Carniello. McCullough's client, for $100 and Judge J. Chew Sheriff decided for the plaintiff.

It was alleged that Carniello, hunting on Buddington's farm, shot the birds, trained as carrier pigeons. The appeal will be heard when the circuit court convenes.

For one week, beginning today, boxes will be placed in all banks and other business places in the upper end of the county for donations for supplying milk to undernourished children in the county. The fund will be administered by the Exchange Club of the county, which is already supplying some milk from its own funds.

A local dairy has agreed to furnish milk for the school children at 10 cents a quart. Nine quarts a day are now being distributed, according to the Rev. Clyde Brown, chairman of the welfare committee, and donations will enable this amount to be increased.

The Independent Players, an amateur group, last night gave a play called "Family Jar," for the benefit of the rescue squad of the county. The show was given in St. Luke's Parish Hall under the direction of the Cottage City Women's Club.

Services were donated by the theater group, which includes Edwin Pitts, Anna Burroughs, Edna Pitts, Marie Ax, Elizabeth Laughton, John Ernest and Donald Pitts. All cheer were in the [illegible] night's performance.
